Figures—not vague generalities—prove the economy of this fixture as it affects current consumption, wiring and number of light-units.

BRASCOLITE
DIFFUSION PLUS REFLECTION

Better Light More Light
Fewer Units Less Current

Photometric TESTS PROVE the Brascolite unit 50 PER CENT. MORE EFFICIENT than indirect lighting.

The diagrams show an installation in which four Brascolite units served the purpose of 16 direct reflected units; an ECONOMY OF 75 PER CENT. ON FIXTURES, 50 PER CENT. ON WIRING AND 37 PER CENT. ON CURRENT. Entire equipment cost less than wiring alone for the 16 units.

Not dependent on color, shape or height of ceiling. Has its own reflecting, FLAT depolished surface.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

USES OF COMPRESSED AIR IN BUILDINGS

By GEORGE E. ANTHON, E. E.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THE use of compressed air in the industrial field has so increased during the last few years that at present practically all new office and loft buildings are equipped with air compressors. The compressors are usually small, compact units of steam or electric motor drive, since the space in engine rooms or cellars of buildings is limited. The depth to which the foundations and lower floors of large buildings extend has necessitated the design of apparatus to force the sewage into the higher level drains in the city streets, and the general application of this system to the large structures having sub-cellars and points of drainage below the level of the city streets has introduced large numbers of compressors for furnishing air to operate the ejectors. Their ease of installation, compactness and automatic operation make them especially adaptable to this class of work.

Usually the sewage flows into a large receiver or air-tight receptacle placed at the lowest point in the building, and when this receptacle is three-quarters or seven-eighths full a floor valve mechanism admits the compressed air into the reservoir, forcing the sewage to the higher levels of the city sewers. This operation is automatically repeated from time to time as the receptacle fills up. A great many of these compressors are used in subway work where the necessity for removing the drainage to higher levels is of prime importance.

Among the many uses to which these compressors are put may be mentioned furnishing air for elevator cushioning, operating elevator doors. An interesting installation illustrating this service is furnished by a new department store in 42nd street. The elevators are equipped with pneumatic door devices which are operated by the elevator attendant in the car, greatly increasing the speed of loading and unloading and adding to the comfort of the passengers. The cleaning of boiler tubes, another use, is obtained by rods on which are operated small pneumatic hammers; when these devices are thrust into the tubes the impact of the hammers dislodge the boiler scale surrounding same.

Machinery, especially electric motors, are readily cleaned by means of compressed air blasts, the accumulation of dirt and carbon dust greatly shortening the life of the motors. All kinds of pneumatic tools are of advantage in the work carried on in factories, drills, riveters, etc., and the speed at which the modern office building rises would be impaired without the use of these devices.

The spread of automatic sprinklers as a means of fire protection and the desirability of increased water pressure upon the piping systems of same, has necessitated the use of the small motor-driven compressors shown in this article. The large pressure tank placed upon the roof of the modern loft building is filled two-thirds full of water and has compressed air at 70 pounds maintained in it by use of the compressor so that when the fire occurs and the sprinkler heads open and discharge the area and quantity of water driven on the fire may be increased. These little compressors are also used extensively in garages for pumping up automobile tires, cleaning engines, etc.

Control of Compressors.

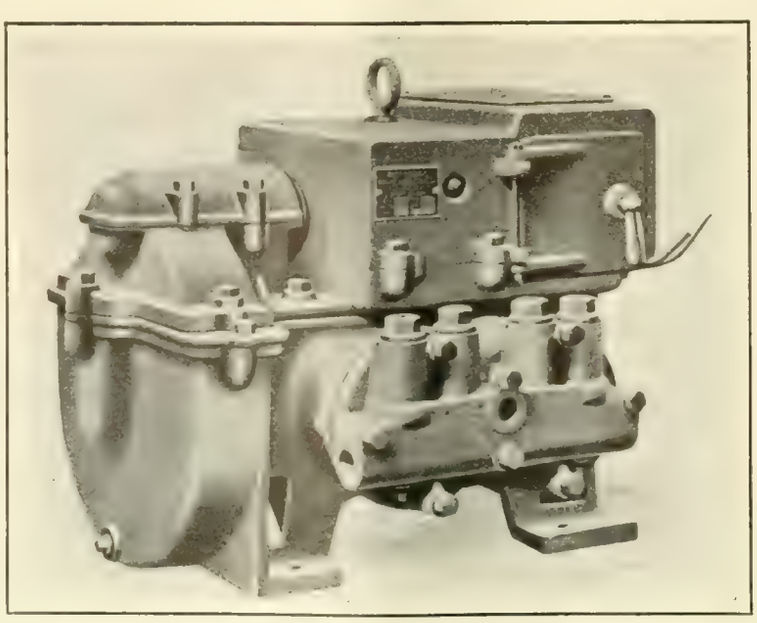
The control of the motor-driven compressors is obtained by automatic governors, which start and stop the motors when desired pressures are reached, and the motors of the series wound type do not require any starting resistance. By means of this control the small compressors in the case of the sprinkler systems may be placed in the tank houses on top of loft buildings and with little or no attention will maintain a constant pressure upon the sprinkler systems.

A new use for which compressed air may be put is found in the dyeing and decorating of fine silks so much used in dresses. The dye is imprinted on the surface of the silk through two stencils by means of pneumatic pencils which atomize it and force the liquid into the fibres of the silk. The compressors illustrated in this article are representative of the types most in use for the above services and have been designed with a view to extreme simplicity, absolute reliability and low maintenance cost.

The steam-driven compressor consists primarily of an air cylinder in which the air drawn from atmosphere is compressed, a steam cylinder located above the air cylinder, the two being connected by a suitable center piece. The steam and air piston are mounted on a common rod and the valve motion controlling the admission and exhaust is placed on top of the compressor.



The compressor is double acting, steam being admitted alternately on either side of the air piston, causing it to move up and down. On the upward stroke of the air piston the air above it is compressed and is discharged into the main reservoir, while the space below is filled with air drawn from the atmosphere; on the downward stroke the operation is reverse. It will be seen from the illustration that this type of compressor is well adapted to engine rooms where space is required for other devices. It is manufactured in the single stage and compound types and in the latter is much favored by contractors for both electric work and other services.

The motor-driven compressor shown consists essentially of a duplex single-acting compressor upon which is mounted an electric motor which drives it through gear and pinion. It will be noted that the crank case on the compressor is entirely enclosed and it is partially filled with oil so that the lubrication is maintained by the motion of the cranks and connecting rods, which are moving at all times. This gives a minimum of requirements in regard to attendants and renders the device practically foolproof.

COMPRESSOR WITH DIRECT CURRENT MOTOR.

An interesting example of one of the uses to which the air compressor was put, was at Biddeford, Me., where a total of nearly 2,000,000 bricks, from razed buildings, were cleaned with six pneumatic brick cleaning tools, the average being almost 14,000 a day. The air was conveyed to each tool by means of a flexible hose, connecting the main supply line.

As new buildings are designed and constructed new problems are overcome by the air compressor and the field is continually being expanded. Efficiency is the reason.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Illumination by Tubing.

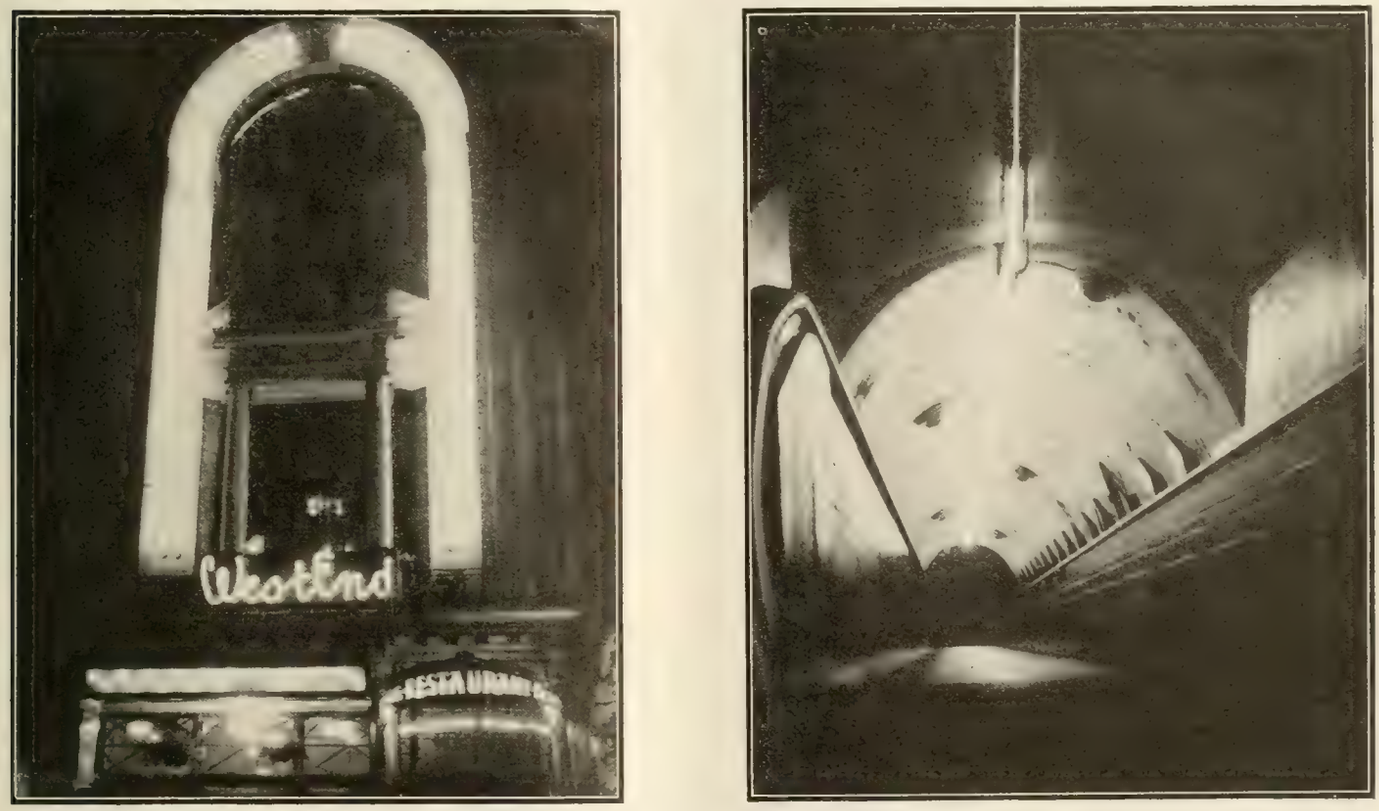
TUBE lighhting has recently become the vogue in London and an interesting description of the application of this type of illumination appeared in the recent issue of the Electrical Review, through whose courtesy the accompanying illustrations are presented. The first figure shows the facade of the West End Cinema in London and the other the illumination afforded by tube lighting in a moving stairway shaft in a railroad station.

The Moore tube lamp is used in triple system on either side of the arched facade in connection with a neon-tube illuminated sign over the theatre entrance. The columns of tube rise to a height of 48 feet from their base just above the level of the second floor of the building. The tube is of 1.75-inch-diameter, clear, thin glass, and the three tubes on either side are united at the top by a short end section. The continuous length of each side is thus about 145 feet, allowing for the eight inches of the tube which joins the three tubes at the upper end, these vertical and arching tubes being four inches apart throughout their length.

The light is operated at the high pressure of 21,000 volts alternating current, which is produced through a rotary converter and step-up transformer set located in the basement, which receives direct current from the lighting current at 100 volts. The tube contains nitrogen gas, under very low pressure.

The value of the light for advertising purposes is obviously great. The neon-tube lamp, which, by a series of convolutions of the glass of which it is composed, forms the sign letters, "West End," has a distinctly reddish tinge, contrasting with the orange tint of the lamps above.

The words are formed by three distinct tubes, each about 35 feet in length, which wind in and out of the operating box located on the gallery referred to, which is reached through French windows from the lobby within the building. The letter W is formed by one tube, the letters "est" by a second, and the word End by the third. About half the length of the convolutions is contained inside the operating box, hidden from public view.



The use of the Moore light for interior illumination is exemplified by the extraordinary installation in the Liverpool Street Station of the Central London Railway, the electrified subway which runs through the heart of London under Holborn, Oxford street and Cheapside and terminates at Liverpool street in "the city."

Here two moving stairways, one ascending and the other descending, and a fixed stairway, are lighted, overhead, by a continuous Moore tube 255 feet in aggregate length. This tube is, like that on the cinema, of 1.75-inch clear glass, and is fastened to the ceiling of the three shafts by insulated brass rings. The three sections are joined at the lower landing by a horizontal tube, while on the wall at one side of the upper landing is located the operating box, suspended on the wall near the ceiling and well out of reach of the public.

The lengths of the tube above the stairways are within easy reach of the passengers, and for the most part are entirely exposed; but for short distances a protection to the brittle glass, which would readily be broken by a curious or mischievous person with a penknife or an umbrella, is afforded by a wire netting hung under the tube, while over a part of the stairway a zinc trough in short sections provides protection, though this is somewhat dimming to the light in that it cuts off the illumination from shining directly on the staircase.

The danger of public interference with the installation is recognized by the railway officials, who say that for the time being the public awe of the mysterious lighting provision is its safeguard. If the lamp were punctured, it would require about two days to repair the breach by "grafting" in a section of new glass pipe. To provide for a possible extinguishment through the breaking of the glass, or otherwise, 15 incandescent units of 35 candlepower each, in deck-lamp bowls are installed at intervals in the ceilings of the shafts.

The new illuminating equipment, which was installed a few weeks ago in the nature of an experiment, is proving abundantly satisfactory. The use of the tube lamp is being considered in London, for outlining the exterior lines of store buildings, and for interior showroom illumination. It is stated that the length to which the tube light may be practically used is limited only by the electrical pressure applied at the electrodes.

TWO APPLICATIONS OF THE TUBE SYSTEM OF LIGHTING USED IN LONDON.

Steel Protection for Concrete.

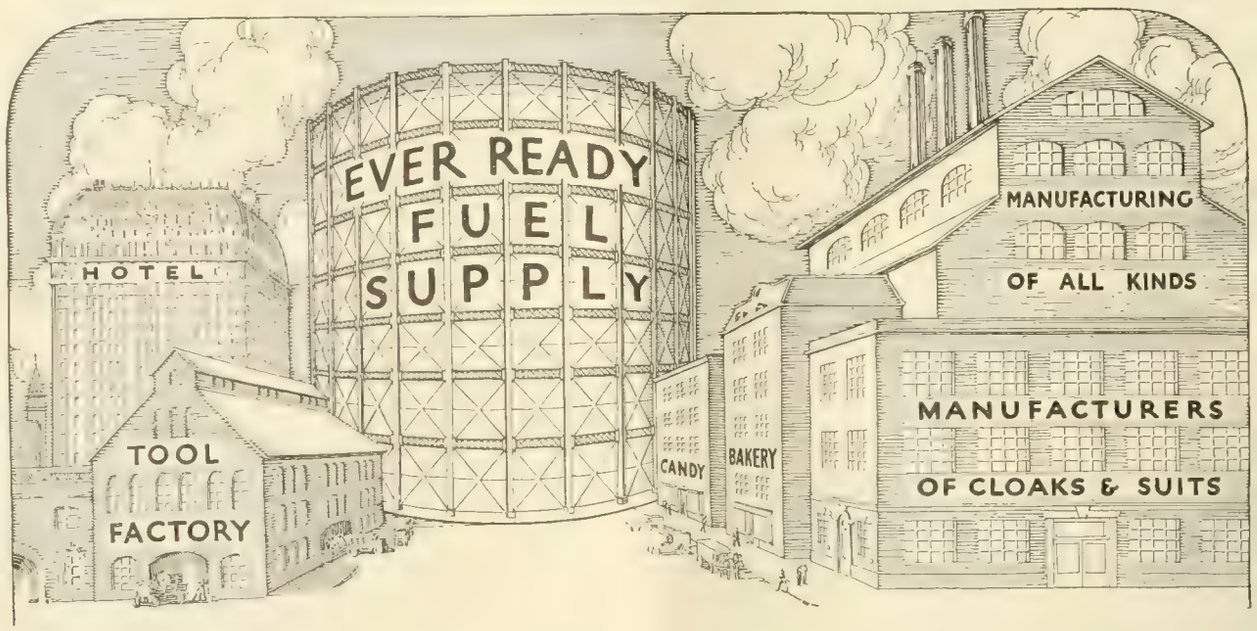
CONSIDERABLE attention is being given of late to the subject of properly protecting concrete edges. Of course, there have been protecting systems in vogue of one sort or another for years, but it is only comparatively recently that attention has been scientifically applied to combine elements of basic strengthening with those of mere exterior protection against abrasion. Mention has been made of several types of concrete protection in previous editions of the Record and Guide, and so a description of the latest product of the Trussed Concrete Steel Company, of Youngstown, Ohio, may be of interest.



This device is known as the Kahn curb bar, and is said to be scientifically designed to most efficiently meet every practical requirement for the perfection of concrete edges. It is manufactured from a special steel section which is punched and expanded by powerful special machinery, giving to the finished product these virtues:

A steel plate of ample size will take up all shocks and distribute them throughout the mass of concrete. The anchors formed from the same section as the plate extend well into the concrete. The positive shoulder affords absolute anchorage, independent of the adhesion of the concrete. The open anchorage does not separate the concrete and eliminates any tendency to split at corners. The plate and the anchorage are a single section of steel, insuring the absolute distribution of shocks and preventing separation of the plate from the concrete. The rigidity and convenient size of the curb bar make it easy to handle and install without special tools or equipment. They come in standard lengths of 8, 10 and 12 feet.

Various applications are made of these curb bars. They are used for step-edging, column protection, platform edges, and in any other application where constant abrasion occurs.

The Modern Business Building Is the Building Piped for Gas

While erecting a new or remodeling an old building, you cannot afford to omit gas pipes.

You are building for the future as well as for the present.

There are hundreds of buildings in New York City that are hives of industry, but were originally built as private residences.

The tenantry of your building—as to the character of its business—may go through kaleidoscopic changes within a comparatively few months. You have seen such changes !

With gas pipes provided, your building is ready for occupancy for any number of tenants in their various industrial pursuits. You are prepared to take care of a Luncheon Club or a Restaurant on an upper floor. Gas fuel—unlike other fuels—needs no storage room. It banishes Rubbish.

Put the gas-pipes in now and not later on when the expense is far greater and the inconvenience is considerable. The cost for gas-piping is a small item.

Have one of our Engineers consult with you, Mr. Architect or Mr. Owner.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Telephone Company Has Installed Every Device in Walker-Lispenard Building for Safety of Occupants and Fire Prevention

ON the principle that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," constructors of modern buildings are using every method in order to allay the possibility of fire and panic, though of course all appliances for the fighting of conflagrations are installed. In the case of the new structure, known as the Walker-Lispenard Building, planned, owned and built by the New York Telephone Company, three aims were followed: 1st, To protect the lives of occupants in every possible way; 2nd, To safeguard the system of long distance telephone and telegraph communication in the building, and 3rd, To guard the costly apparatus that makes possible these important wire services.

Telephone engineers have made the safety of employes a life study. The Iroquois theatre fire in Chicago, the Asch fire in New York and many others have given impetus to the efforts of these men and have created a larger sense of responsibility that is emphasized in the Walker-Lispenard Building. B. E. Loomis, of Marsh & McLennan, was largely responsible for the fire protection installed in this building.

Great care was used in the selection of devices and materials for the structure and only those having known fire resisting qualities were chosen. The devices were selected from the list approved by the Underwriters' laboratories, where each was tested.

The structure is shaped like the capital letter "L" and is of skeleton type of construction, the outside walls being of brick, with terra cotta. It is seventeen stories high, with foundations capable of carrying an additional seven stories. In fact, plans were filed for increasing the height by seven stories, McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin, of 1123 Broadway, being the architects. There is but little likelihood that the work will be started in the near future, however.

Following are the general statistics regarding the Walker-Lispenard Building: The area upon which the building stands is 20,846 square feet, total floor area in the building 297,000 square feet, area of space available for business purposes 221,297 square feet, height of building 268 feet. The building contains 5,392,000 cubic feet of contents, and the average height of stories is 15 feet. The foundation work was started in April, 1911, the superstructure in March, 1912, and the structure completed in December, 1913. The approximate number of employes in the building is 5,000. The number of telephone calls handled every twenty-four hours is about 12,400, the outgoing being about 6,400 and the incoming 6,000. These calls are divided among 250 cities and towns on long-distance toll lines.

The occupancy of the structure is divided as follows: 1st floor, stores and commercial tenants; 2nd, ventilating plants, collection bureau, public telephone department, and the New York Telephone Company's plant department; 3rd, the A. T. & T. terminal room; 4th, 5th and 6th, A. T. & T. operating rooms; 7th and 8th, New York Telephone Company, division plant department; 9th, general traffic department

PROTECTED FIRE-ESCAPES.

(A. T. & T.); also commercial rate department; 10th, general plant department; 11th, Western Union quarters; 12th, Western Union division traffic department; 13th, Western Union terminal room; 14th and 15th, Western Union operating rooms; 16th, Western Union bookkeeping department, and 17th, Western Union school and restaurant.

The foundation is of grillage and caisson type, the thirty-five caissons having been sunk under air pressure to a depth of about forty feet below the curb. Five of the caissons are unusually large, two in particular carry a load of 8,104 and 6,291 tons respectively. All of the columns are protected by from three to four inches of concrete and "chases" for electrical and miscellaneous conduits are provided, so it is unnecessary to cut away the concrete covering in order to provide such "chases" and thus lowering the fire-resisting qualities of the columns. No wood has been used in any portion of the building, all doors, trim, partitions, sash, "cut-out" boxes for lighting circuit, etc., are of metal.

One of the great dangers is the possibility of fire being carried from adjoining structures and to safeguard against this contingency all the windows are equipped with hollow metal frames and sash, with small panes of wire glass. These are designed to close automatically when the temperature exceeds about 160 deg. F. Fire shutters are installed for added protection to the more exposed windows.

There are two batteries of elevators, each having seven cars, but they are not centered. One set is in the Walker street side and the other in Lispenard street. The advantage is that the entire crippling of elevator service is practically impossible. Instead of locating the elevator cars in one shaft, with no partition walls between the cars, two four-inch terra cotta fire walls have been built in, so that three cars are placed in one compartment and two in the other two compartments. Should fire sweep up one section, the others could be kept free and service continued.

The elevator doors are of steel and glazed wire glass in panels, so as to give greater strength to the glass space subjected to heat pressure. These doors are not intended primarily to stop the spread of flames, but rather to prevent the spread of smoke. Each floor is isolated from the others, at the elevator halls, by eight-inch partitions of terra cotta blocks laid up in Portland cement mortar, while the doors leading to the interior of the floors are of hollow metal, bearing the Underwriters' seal of approval. Yale & Towne, three point locks are used.

Additional security is afforded the hinge side of all corridor doors by the use of steel studs set in the door bucks. These studs engage in the door when closed, so that even if the door hinges should be melted off, it would be impossible for the door to give away. The door openings are framed with bucks made of structural steel channels secured together at the top and bottom and anchored at the sides to the eight-inch partitions. The doors are locked to the bucks at six different points and the combination makes it practically impossible for the door to warp out of shape. In addition all the doors have self-closing checks so that they will not remain open.

Great care has been taken that no door is equipped with any device to hold it open and as a further precaution every door locks from the outside, so that egress from any room is always possible. All the doors open out, eliminating the possibility of obstruction of escape from any room, and also regulating the traffic flow throughout the building, according to the desired action in case of danger.

An eight-inch fire wall separates the Lispenard side of the building from the Walker street side, practically dividing the building in two parts. This wall is designed to act as a check to the flames. All doors in this firewall are of hollow metal and are equipped with the same devices used in the elevator hallway doors.

SHOWING BALCONIES TO SMOKE TOWER.

All openings in the floors, for cable runways or other purposes, are, or will be, cut off in a manner approved by the Fire Underwriters. The Western Union Telegraph Company, one of the tenants in the building, finds it necessary to use a conveyor system to carry telegrams from one floor to another, but these openings are protected by automatic fire doors on inclined tracks. The doors are held open by fusible links which melt at a given heat pressure.

Automatic dampers are provided for the ventilating ducts which pass through the corridor partitions or fire walls. These are also operated by fusible links which melt at a temperature of 160 deg. F. Vertical ventilating ducts, where they pass through floors, are cut off from the floor area by eight inch partitions.

Ventilating Plants.

Three ventilating plants have been provided, two on the pent house roof and one on the second floor. These are equipped with automatic rolling shutters, which close and shut off the draft when a certain temperature is reached. Should the ventilating fans carry smoke into any of the large rooms, push buttons, conveniently located, can be touched. This act trips a circuit-breaker, which controls the current to the fan and shuts off all ventilation.

Two main stairway exits are at opposite ends of the building and are cut off from the floor areas by eight-inch walls and from the main hallways by hollow metal doors. Supplementing these stairs and the elevator batteries is a smoke tower and an outside iron fire-escape, making a total of four sets of stairs extending from the first floor to the roof; also fourteen elevators. To obtain access to the smoke-tower it is necessary to go outside the building to balconies which run along each side of the main court on each floor. These balconies can be reached at two different points approximately fifty feet apart. The floors of these balconies are of concrete and their railings five feet high. Added security is thus obtained and the emotion of freight, that often leads to panic is minimized.

Fire Tower.

The fire tower is of standard construction and the stairs, instead of being winding, are of the usual pitch, with broad landings and meet the stairs above and below at right angles. The outside stairs, near the Lispenard side of the building, is enclosed in wire mesh and at its foot is a fireproof passageway enclosed in eight-inch walls, which connects with the main hallway on the first floor.

Three sets of six-inch fire lines are provided at approximately equi-distant points in the building, one in each of the two main hallways and the other approximately half way between. In the roof tanks there is a reserve of 10,000 gallons of water for the fire lines. In addition there is a suction tank in the basement containing about 30,000 gallons. The house pumps consist of one 500-gallon and one 750-gallon underwriters' fire pumps so arranged that they can be connected directly to the fire lines, if necessary. Fire signals are located at convenient points on each floor and chemical extinguishers and other emergency apparatus in hallways are installed.

Lighting Innovation.

Interesting among the innovations is the arrangement of the lights in case of fire. If defective wiring was suspected as being the cause of the blaze, firemen could turn off the lights, but the main switch would not turn off the "night lights" in the elevators, stairways or smoke tower. These are controlled separately, by a switch painted red.

The New York Edison Company supplies the current, which is divided into four services, three connected with the Edison underground "grid" and the fourth a special cable of 1,000,000 circular mills direct from the building to a power station in Duane street. This latter is an emergency break-down service for the Western Union Telegraph Company.

THE BUILDING CODE.

New Plumbing Regulations Will Be Introduced Next Week.

THE Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which has the assistance of the former Superintendent of Buildings in Manhattan, Mr. R. P. Miller, is proceeding steadily with the work of revising the Building Code. Several new ordinances have been enacted and made part of the code, and at least two more are in preparation at the present time and will presently be introduced.

The policy of consulting the public and interested parties at every step is bearing good fruit. When the hearing on the plumbing ordinance was held very little criticism and no opposition was manifested against the measure, so carefully had it been prepared. The only criticism of importance referred to paragraph three of section one.

This paragraph states that nothing contained in the ordinance shall require the alteration or reconstruction of any existing work that was lawfully executed, nor prevent repairs, or the addition of new fixtures to existing work in accordance with the practice followed in the original installations, provided, however, that when such repairs involve changes, to the extent of fifty per cent. of the existing work, or the addition includes any new soil, vertical waste or vent line, or new house drain, the rules and regulations in force at the time of such repairs or addition shall apply.

The committee was asked to amend the paragraph so as to make clear that the "fifty per cent." referred to value, if that was the case. The ordinance will come up for passage in the Board of Aldermen next Tuesday.

Suburban Districts.

An ordinance setting off certain districts in the suburbs within which frame construction will be permissible when buildings occupy only a certain portion of the lot, is also in course of preparation. (A synopsis of the bill was printed in the Record and Guide of Sept. 19.) An investigation has been conducted by the Building Committee in all the boroughs to learn what the public opinion is concerning the new limits (which are outside of the regular fire limits), and as a result very general approbation has been heard.

TWO NEW RIVER TUBES.

New Ideas in Tunneling Will Be Used —Sanitary and Medical Precautions.

The work of constructing two tunnels to connect Manhattan and Brooklyn in the dual subway system was started this week at Whitehall street and Old Slip. Under the terms of the contract, awarded in July to the Flinn-O'Rourke Company, contractors, the work must be completed in forty-two months. The tunnels will cost $12,444,725.

Each of the tunnels will consist of two tubes. The tunnel beginning at Whitehall street will run to Montague street, Brooklyn, while the other will extend from Old Slip to Court street, Brooklyn. They will have a combined length of 9,800 lineal feet of double track. They will be driven partly through sand as well as rock.

In the progress of the work the greatest care over the workmen will be exercised. They will have medical attendance and inspection, protected passenger elevator service, fire protection, and careful regulation of the purity of the air.

Most of the constructive features in the two tunnels correspond. At the Brooklyn end of the Whitehall street tunnel the shaft is planned to be of large dimensions, and is constructed with double steel walls filled with concrete and designed to be sunk by the pneumatic-caisson process. The plans include the unusual item of an underwater storage for the large amount of clay that may be required in the event of a blowout and which might not be procurable from a distance during the winter months when navigation on the Hudson River is closed or impeded by ice.

New Subway Contracts.

The Public Service Commission has signed a notable subway contract and opened bids for another within a few days. The contract awarded is for the construction of the diagonal station and connection in 42nd street between the existing subway and the new Lexington avenue subway. It went to the lowest bidder, the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company, for $3,097,312.50. This is the construction company of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the lessee of the existing subway. This connection will pass under the old Grand Union Hotel property and diagonally across and under 42nd street and a portion of the New York Central property on the northwest corner of Lexington avenue and 42nd street. Beneath 42nd street, and just in front of the Grand Central Terminal the diagonal station will be built. It will be one of the largest underground stations in the world, and will have connections with the Grand Central Station, the proposed extension of the Hudson and Manhattan tunnels, the existing subway, the new Lexington Avenue subway and the reconstructed Steinway tunnel. Considering its location and the number of lines which will reach it, this station will probably develop into the greatest traffic center in New York City. As the construction must be done without endangering or seriously interfering with traffic in the existing subway, the contractor is required to give a bond of $250,000 to the Interborough Company, the lessee of the subway, as well as a bond of $500,000 to the city for the faithful performance of the work.

The section for which bids were opened is that part of the Park place, William and Clark street subway which runs from the Seventh avenue subway in West Broadway through Park place, under the Post Office building and Beekman street to William street.

Triangular Block Improvement Denied.

The announcement this week of the improvement of the triangular block, bounded by Lenox and St. Nicholas avenues, 111th and 112th streets, with a twelve-story apartment house over the entire site, was denied on Tuesday. Jacob Ruppert sold the plot to the Gramont Holding Company, Thomas J. McLoughlin, president, in part payment for the Gramont and Gramont annex apartments at Broadway and 98th street. A representative of the Record and Guide was informed that no building of any kind is contemplated.

Contract for Country House Awarded.

Rufus H. Brown, Inc., 350 Fulton street, Brooklyn, has received the general contract to erect a terra cotta block and stucco residence at Morristown, N. J., for Frederick P. Humphreys. The plans and specifications for the building were prepared by Harrie T. Lindeberg, architect, 2 West 47th street, N. Y. C. The house will be 2½ stories in height, 40x150 feet and will cost about $150,000.

To Build at Port Washington.

The Port Washington Realty Company expects to start work at once on eighty 2½-story frame residences at Port Washington, Long Island. Bell & Mercer, of 35 South 16th street, Philadelphia, Pa., are the architects. The owner will handle all contracts and is now taking bids on all subs. A. B. Hollen, on premises, is in charge.

Building in 46th Street.

Lorenz F. J. Weiher, 271 West 125th street, is preparing plans for an eight-story store and loft building for the Ritz Realty Company, to be erected at 12 East 46th street. Robert M. Katz will be the lessee.

Nine-Story Loft For 25th Street.

Louis A. Sheinart, 194 Bowery, is preparing plans for a nine-story fireproof loft building, 80x100 feet, to be erected in West 26th street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. The owner's name is, for the present, withheld.

SENATOR THOMAS H. CULLEN of Brooklyn has been elected chairman of the New York State Housing Commission, which was organized at Albany this week. The commission will investigate housing and sanitary conditions in the State's cities of the second class, making recommendations based on the findings to the next Legislature. Following the repeal of the first housing law, generally believed too drastic, the present commission was created by legislative act, $6,000 being appropriated for its work.

SUBWAY WAGES.—The Public Service Commission for First District refused, by a vote of 4 to 1, to adopt resolution offered by Commissioner J. Sergeant Cram, declaring forfeited a contract between the City and the Dock Contractor Company for the construction of that section of the Broadway subway, Manhattan, lying between Bleecker st and Union sq. Representatives of organized labor had previously complained to the commission that the company had been violating the Labor Law, in failing to pay the prevailing rate of wages for stone masons. Hearings showed that the violation had been committed by a sub-contractor, but that the contractor had put a stop to it as soon as the complaint was made. The Labor Law provides that a violation shall work a forfeiture of the contract, but counsel to the commission held that such a forfeiture could not be declared unless it were shown that the contractor had actual or constructive notice of the violation, which was not the case in this proceeding.

GEORGE H. MORRIS, for many years a representative of the master steam and hot water fitters in the Building Trades Association, was recently presented with a silver service by the Master Steamfitters' Association in this city. President Jeffrey, on this occasion, said: "Mr. Morris, for a period extending over more than twenty-five years this association has wisely seen fit to entrust you with the adjustment of many of its difficulties, and, to a great extent, the regulation of its affairs. In the performance of these duties you have sacrificed many days from your business and given up many nights from your rest. Your work in this line has been at times difficult, your patience has been tested, but your ability has been proved as the results of your labors have shown. Your representation of this association in the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York City, of which body we are a component part, for a number of years in the various capacities in which you have served, has been highly commended by all concerned. You hold a unique record in the larger association, in that for five successive terms, by the unanimous vote of the representatives of thirty-three associations of employers and thirty trade unions, you were elected to the office of chairman of the General Arbitration Board of the New York Building Trades."

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

OPTIMISM TAKING PLACE OF PESSIMISM AS TALK IS RENEWED OF REOPENING STOCK EXCHANGES.

Brick Prices Slightly Firmer—
Linseed Oil Lower—Steel Dull.

FURTHER shrinkage in linseed oil prices and continued restiveness of steel fabricators for business and prevalence of fluctuations in quotations were the week's features of the building material, supply and equipment market. Common brick from the Hudson river district are still in moderate call, although stacking time is here and manufacturers are loading reserve covered barges for winter use in this market. Raritan common in Newark is in moderate demand, but in Brooklyn it has a good inquiry. Portland cement is less firm at $1.58 in large lots in this city, but lumber is holding remarkably steady on list both to yard and to consumers.

Building money is still held on premium and lenders are decidedly conservative even in making loans on factory and commercial buildings. Plan filings continue to do well, considering the entire district as a whole, indicating the presence of a demand for new buildings, especially those of a commercial character. One big factor of encouragement is the extreme low price of all building commodities and many standard equipments, like radiators, heating apparatus and pipe. Wire goods, like reinforcement and nails, are reported to be firm on list, but concessions have been given on desirable business where competitive materials have crowded the market too closely.

Wholesale reports of movement of materials to New Jersey, Queens and Brooklyn, show not much drop from last year's standards of shipments, but in Manhattan and the Bronx and in certain parts of Westchester, the subway is the biggest consumer, in lumber, steel, sand and concrete. The second-hand market reports a heavy call for used brick for bulkhead building, indicating that even with price of this material low, contractors are willing to buy even below current levels.

On the Building Material Exchange there is, however, a feeling of optimism. One officer said that while the first of September brought a state of business that could not have been worse, the orders moving around the middle of October gave evidence that business could be a great deal worse. Money is still hard to collect and business is being done on longer credits than usual, but material is moving easier than a month ago, and there are optimists who believe that the committee at work on the plan for reopening the New York Stock Exchange for domestic securities in hands of American owners in this country on July 30 is nearer solution than the public had been led to believe. At any rate, manufacturers are willing to take a chance on the continued easing of the money situation and are meeting the demand as it develops.

In the supply market, lubricants are holding about even, rope is stiffer on quotation, plate and window-glass is dull with discounts held tightly, however, and roofing materials, especially those having asphaltum properties, are stiffer. Slate is the only exception.

The ruling set forth by Acting Secretary Lanning of the State Department to the effect that American business can trade with belligerent countries is looked upon by the building material, supply and equipment market as the beginning of a change in export business. If it does nothing more, according to important interests in the trade, it will create a factory demand here that will make the demand for extension more apparent to conservative banking interests and financiers in general. Heretofore the feeling has been general that ultimately war-torn Europe would have to come into the American market for almost every kind of commodity, even including common brick, but this decision is believed to be the opening wedge for an early resumption of trade with England, France and Russia.

Building plans filed in all boroughs up to noon yesterday, compared with the filings of last week, follow. In the week ending, Oct. 18, 1913, there were 194 new building plans filed valued at $1,521,890.

THE SUBURBAN OUTLOOK.

What the Various Centers offer to Material Men.

PRACTICALLY every building contractor in the metropolitan district is complaining of the scarcity of work. If they have jobs in hand they are complaining about the price pressure that was applied to them if they wanted the business. Their only salvation, they say, is that good materials can be purchased for almost any price and under good terms.

Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken and Paterson are doing considerable building, but plan filings in all these cities show that there are a great many persons who would be willing to take advantage of the present opportunity to build cheap, but find it hard to place mortgages and to negotiate securities. Judging by plan filings nearby New York is on the eve of a big building movement which will be sure to come if the price of materials do not go up before money is freer. There is little likelihood of this occurring because the former is equally dependent upon the latter.

A prominent builder said in answer to the question of why New York's building plan filings were so heavy when actual operations were apparently so retardant, said that plans were being filed on estimates furnished as of current market list. As quick as money can be obtained each builder starts his operation. Should, however, the general money situation clear, and low stocks in the mills compel the material interests to advance their prices to jobbers and the jobbers make new lists to dealers, somebody is going to be caught short when the consumer demands delivery on prices quoted when the trade was willing to take almost anything to keep its organizations together.

These conditions apply primarily to suburban builders and dealers. In New York conditions are different. Financiers have a tight grasp on the situation and are trying to prevent over-production in apartments, loft and office buildings, in order to insure a quick recovery of the renting market when conditions are straightened out a little clearer.

In the principal lumber and supply yards in the outskirts of the city there is a decided disposition to buy only for immediate needs. Few yards are carrying a liberal supply of lumber, and in no case, so far as known, is there overloading. Reserve stocks are all low, the dealer holding to jobbers' promises to supply them when needed.

LINSEED OIL.

Drop to 49 and 50 Cents As Duluth Market Weakens.

PARTLY because paint manufacturers are having trouble in getting pigments from abroad and because gum is equally as scarce in the varnish manufacturing trade, the demand for linseed oil has fallen away here simultaneously with heavy arrivals of flaxseed at Duluth. The result was a drop of another cent a gallon in the price of this commodity here this week with few encouraging signs of strengthening.

The falling off in new building construction also had an effect upon the linseed oil market. Preservative paints of one kind or another carry linseed oil as a vehicle and when the demand fell away simultaneously with the drop in building operations dealers and jobbers were not inclined to buy, leaving the manufacturers with healthy stocks, but little prospect of the fall painting season being anything but sluggish.

Any special paint that contains asphaltum may be expected to advance in price, if it already has not done so, according to information obtained from the trade this week. This is because the available ships carrying asphaltum from South America are loaded to capacity with other products of more vital need and sailing ships are hard to get. The stress, however, is expected to be relieved shortly.

LIME.

Total Production in 1913 Over 3,000,000 Short Tons.

LIME manufactured in the United States in 1913 amounted to 3,595,390 short tons, valued at $14,648,362. This was an increase of 65,928 tons, or 1.87 per cent. in quantity, and of $678,248 or 4.85 per cent. in value, when compared with the output of 1912, which was 3,529,462 short tons, valued at $13,970,114. The production in 1913 was the largest in the history of the industry, both in the quantity manufactured and in the value of the output. The average price per ton in 1913 was $4.07, as compared with $3.96 in 1912, and with $4.03 in 1911. The increase in average price was general for the entire country, increased cost of labor and supplies and scarcity of labor being given as the reason by the majority of the producers. The value given represents the value of bulk lime F. O. B. at point of shipment and does not include any weight or cost of barrel or package.

The total number of plants reporting operations in 1913 was 1,023 as compared with 1,017 in 1912 and with 1,139 in 1911. Although a small increase is thus shown many of the States exhibit a decrease in plants, due in part to the tendency of the industry toward combination, which tendency appears to be established by the record for the last few years, notwithstanding the fact that the total number of kilns reporting operations increased from 2,203 in 1912 to 2,338 in 1913.

Many of the operators, however, did not report in 1912 or in 1913 the number of kilns composing their plants. Isolated lime manufacturers, operating on a small scale, reported their plants idle on account of cost production and cost and scarcity of labor, which prevented competition with lime shipped in from the outside. In 1914 forty-four states, including Hawaii and Porto Rico, reported a production of lime, Nevada also contributing a small output. In 1912 there were forty-three states. The five leading states in 1913 were, in order of production, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Virginia and West Virginia. In 1912 the order was Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Maine.

COMMON BRICK.

Slight Recession in Registered Unloading Not Significant.

ALTHOUGH there is reported by the Greater New York Brick Company a slight recession in unloading of barges this week as compared with last week's total, it was stated that it could not be held strictly to represent the current trend because prices have nominally stiffened so that the average price now ruling for good brick is $5.25 instead of being nearer $5 a thousand, wholesale. As a rule only run-of-kiln brick is bringing $5 or under.

Manufacturers apparently are seeking to clear their sheds of brick that has been in stack for a long time and when they brought in their last firings they loaded this brick on barges for New York to work them off in a sick market. Dealers and specifiers desiring really good brick will find current prices slightly firmer.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Oct. 15, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

A SETTLED PLAN FOR PORT DEVELOPMENT

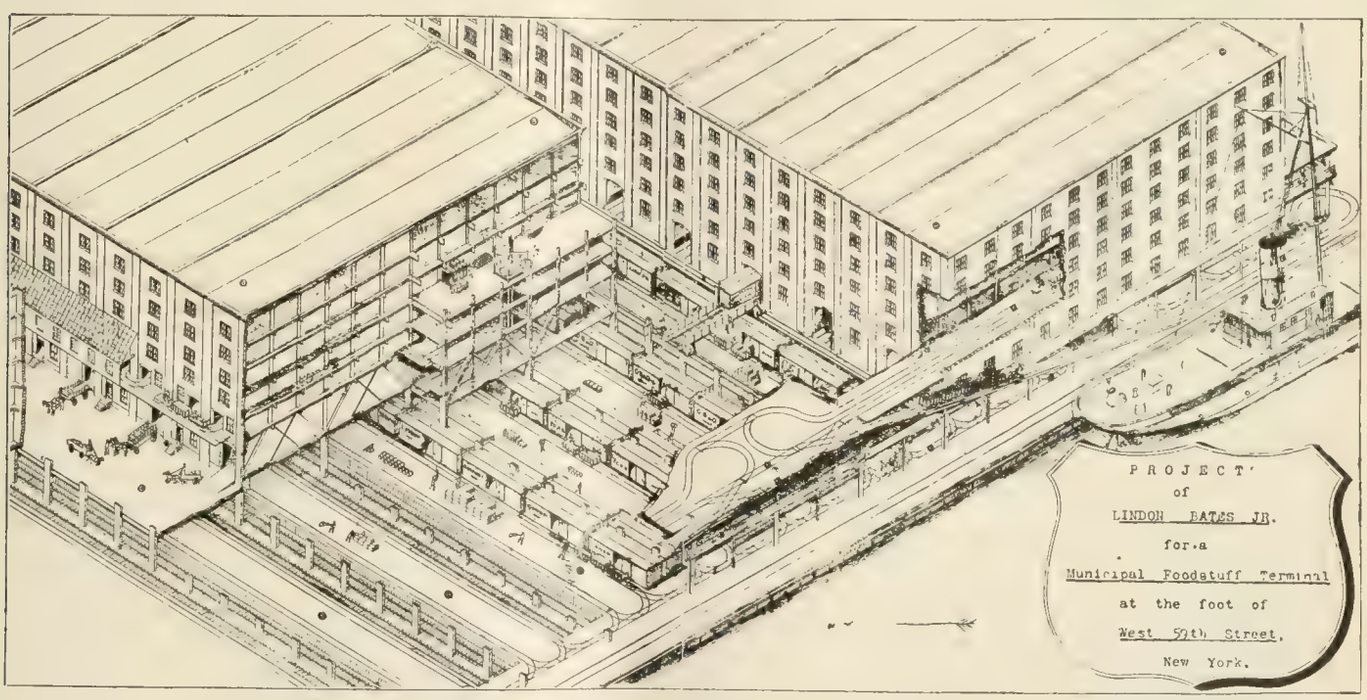
Why Local Freight Terminal Projects Have Failed—A Port Commission To Study the Transportation Needs of the Entire Harbor

IF the City of New York is ready to consider the subject of port development, if an arrangement is possible with the railroads by which the cost of reorganizing the facilities of the port will not fall upon the taxpayers, then the actual work should be entered upon only when a general plan for the entire port has been devised after a careful study of conditions. This seems to be the opinion which the city authorities are coming to, according to the latest report.

Various schemes and plans have been proposed from time to time. The city, the New York Central Railroad, citizens' associations and others have originated them. Not one has won support from those whose interests are directly affected thereby. It is essential, of course, that the plan should meet the needs of the transportation lines, if the transportation lines are to follow the new plan and pay, first or last, for the new facilities.

It has been the study lately of the Committee on Harbors, Docks and Terminals of the Merchants' Association, and particularly of a sub-committee thereof, to ascertain the reasons that have prompted the great transportation companies and others to disapprove of every plan. The committee found that the plans that proposed to change conditions in this port were applicable only to a unit, or a small area, of the port, and that they failed of accomplishment because of their impracticability, particularly in the details of operation.



The chairman of the sub-committee is F. A. Molitor, of 35 Nassau street, a transportation engineer of note, who is now in private practice. Solving engineering problems for railroads is his lifework. Speaking this week in his personal capacity and not for the association, Mr. Molitor said he was firmly of the opinion that a plan designed to take care of a small area or unit of the port may be prepared only after an intelligent review of the conditions concerning the entire port. As a result of the recommendation of the committee, the Merchants' Association had formally recommended to the Mayor the appointment of a Port of New York Commission, composed of three expert engineers. This commission would be charged only with the authority to prepare a comprehensive plan of the entire port of New York. This plan, when completed, would be submitted to the city authorities, and if approved, no work would be permitted within the area of the plan unless intended as a unit toward the whole.

"This commission would hold hearings at which all transportation and shipping interests would have an opportunity of expressing their views," said Mr. Molitor. "The facts deduced would be used by the commission in the preparation of its plan and report.

"Besides this the commissioners would prepare statistics of all freight traffic, showing commodities, destination and other details that would enable them to obtain a correct perspective of the large merchandise movement in and out of New York, and also make a study of the conditions affecting the food supplies of our great city. Such a commission of experts would secure information not heretofore accessible. From all these facts with their own experience the members of the commission would be enabled to draw a picture of the transportation conditions of the Port and City of New York which would result in a plan for reducing the unit cost of the handling of freight.

"Such a man as Colonel Goethals, for instance, would make an admirable chairman of such a commission. In a word, the commission should be such a commission as those which made possible the great terminal and transportation plants at Hamburg, Liverpool and London. I have in mind a precedent for our suggestion in the case of Chicago, which is now about to undertake the solution of its terminal problem through means similar to those we suggest."

The plan for the commission has not only been recommended to the Mayor by the Merchant's Association, but has been endorsed by the New York Chamber of Commerce as well. The Jersey City Chamber of Commerce has been asked to co-operate. About two years would be required for the preparation of the plan.

A STUDY FOR A MUNICIPAL FOODSTUFF MARKET AT 59TH STREET AND NORTH RIVER.

Latest Terminal Plan.

The latest terminal plan that has been suggested to the Board of Estimate comes from Lindon Bates, Jr., of 71 Broadway, an engineer. The plan, or rather project, is for a foodstuff terminal to be established by the City of New York on the West Side, at the foot of 59th street, immediately below the New York Central yards. A preliminary study is shown in the annexed drawing. Only the elements of the plan have been decided. The land is now occupied by the Union Stock Yards and Market Company and would have to be taken by condemnation proceedings. No estimate of the cost has been made.

WHERE SAVINGS COULD BE EFFECTED

Specific Instances of Extravagance in City Budget Pointed Out By the Real Estate Board—Estimates of Some Departments Not Available

THE Board of Estimate's Committee on Tax Budget began on Monday, the last week of hearings on departmental estimates, and the Real Estate Board of New York completed its suggestions for economy in city affairs by submitting memoranda on the departments examined. The estimates for the Board of Education were not made public and therefore no opportunity for criticism was given to taxpayers. The estimates of the Mayoralty Board and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment were passed without a hearing. Memoranda were submitted this week by the Real Estate Board in relation to the estimates for the Police Department, the Department of Docks and Ferries, the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, and the estimates of the Borough Presidents of Manhattan, Bronx, Queens and Richmond.

The Police Department asks for $15,331,835.35 for personal service, a net decrease over 1914 of $68,000. It is said that in the main this department is being well administered. Most of its expenditures are mandatory.

The increase demanded for administrative service seems unnecessary to the Real Estate Board, which says in a communication to the Budget Committee:

"There is no good reason why the fourth Deputy Commissioner should have a private secretary. A serious waste in the city service to-day is the salaries paid private secretaries. Where there is a secretary to a department and an abundance of stenographers and clerks there is no need for a private secretary. The very title presupposes that such an official does only private, or personal, work for his superior.

"Practical experience with city departments demonstrates that the private secretary's principal occupation is to act as a bar against those who have business with his superior. The title should be abolished. If the department head needs an assistant he should be furnished with one, but not with a private secretary.

"The item of $30,000, to increase the efficiency of the detective bureau and to employ expert and scientific service, is not clear. It is presumed that when patrolmen are promoted to higher pay and rank as detectives that it is because of their efficiency."

Department of Docks and Ferries.

This department asks for $2,392,640.35, a decrease from 1914 of $283,957.92. "We believe this department is being efficiently administered by an official who realizes the necessity for an economical and business administration," says the Real Estate Board.

"We regret, however, to find a request for a secretary to the first deputy. Any competent stenographer or clerk could be assigned to do the work required."

Department Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

"The estimate of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity is not available (Oct. 15) and the Real Estate Board is unable to make any suggestions regarding it based on this year's requests.

"Great saving is, however, possible in this department in the opinion of the Board, and believes that this is realized fully by the commissioner in charge. He has already proposed certain economies in street lighting that will, it is hoped, save the city $400,000 yearly. The same careful scrutiny should, however, be given this department by the Bureau of Standards and the examiners in order that no excessive salaries be paid or unnecessary employees kept.

Borough President, Manhattan.

"The Borough President of Manhattan is an experienced business man and as a member of the Board of Estimate is fully familiar with the city's financial condition. We would like to call his attention, however, to the salaries paid clerks and stenographers, and to the salary paid the Consulting Engineer, who also receives a salary from the Court House Board.

"The public works now carried on by the Borough of Manhattan surely do not require a Commissioner of Public Works at $7,200 per annum, an assistant at $6,000, a secretary to the Commissioner at $3,300, a Consulting Engineer at $7,200, an Engineer at $5,000, two assistants at $2,700 each, another Chief Engineer at $5,000, an Assistant Engineer at $4,000, another at $2,700, another Assistant Engineer at $2,000, and another at $2,700 and one at $2,100. In addition there is still another Assistant Engineer at $3,300, another at $5,000, another Consulting Engineer at $6,000 three assistants, one at $4,000, one at $3,000, and one at $2,500. There is, also, requested in another department of the Borough President's office an Assistant Engineer at $3,500 and another at $2,500.

"For the Municipal Building an assistant engineer at $3,750 is asked. This engineering force is in addition to the engineering force of the Topographical Bureau, where $207,540.00 is requested for salaries for engineers and assistants. The President asks, also, for 29 engineers and assistant engineers in the Department of Buildings. In addition, of course, there are a large number of mechanical and stationary engineers asked for.

"There is no doubt but that the city is as one newspaper properly said, 'Engineered to Death.'"

Borough President of The Bronx.

"The President of the Borough of The Bronx requests $1,620,320.83, an increase over 1914 of $2,853.93. This borough has been very economically managed for the past four years and it is probably true that but little decrease in expense could be had, except by a horizontal lowering of salaries in all grades. There is the same large engineering force that we find in the other boroughs. A great deal of engineering force in all the boroughs is employed at work such as is usually performed by contractors' foremen, who are paid from $18 to $25 a week.

"We cannot understand the necessity for an Assistant Superintendent of Buildings at $4,000 a year.

Borough President of Queens.

"There should be no increase allowed in the Borough of Queens unless for maintenance of streets. Under the policy recently adopted by the Board of Estimate there will be fewer improvements to supervise in that borough next year than before.

"If you consider the character of the work done, the hours of employment, and certainty of tenure, there are no underpaid men in the President's office of the Borough of Queens, except perhaps the President himself. The Budget Committee should compare these salaries with those paid men doing similar work in the industrial establishments of Queens."

WOULD LIMIT SOCIAL UPLIFT WORK

This Is the Request of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations—Budget Hearings Next Week

On Monday and Tuesday at City Hall, the Board of Estimate will grant public hearings upon the City Budget for the year 1915. All those having suggestions or objections to offer will be heard. It is understood that representations will be made in behalf of the real estate boards and property owners' associations of the city.

Resolutions were adopted at the last meeting of delegates of the various associations affiliated with the United Real Estate Owners' Associations which will be presented to the Board at Monday's meeting. These resolutions after reciting the fact that the city and country have passed through a long financial depression, requests from the Mayor and the members of the Board of Estimate the following:

(1). That only such budget allowances be granted as shall keep the 1915 tax rate within the tax rate of 1914.

(2). That not one dollar of salary increase be granted for the year 1915 to any city employee, whether the present salary be relatively big or little, or whether the proposed increase be reasonable or unreasonable. The city's employees are not a privileged class, and under the present business conditions should be thankful that their salaries are not reduced. It is no answer for any department executive to say in recommending any salary increase, that it is proposed to dismiss certain other employees and that the aggregate of such dismissed employees' salaries nearly equals, does equal, or exceeds the proposed increase; such argument being only proof that the department can and under existing conditions should do without such unnecessary men.

(3). That the hours of all city employees, excepting such as are fixed by statute, shall be from nine a. m. to five p. m. on week days and from nine a. m. to one p. m. on Saturdays, and during the months of July and August from nine a. m. to four p. m. on week days, and from nine a. m. to twelve noon on Saturdays. This is only the schedule of minimum hours obtaining in private business and will reduce the number of employees, thereby saving a large sum of money to the taxpayers.

(4). That in view of the abnormally increasing expenditures annually for supplies, all applications for increased appropriations shall not only be refused but the aggregate amount granted shall be less for 1915 than for 1914.

(5). That all applications for increased amounts or additional amounts for social uplift or altruistic propaganda, and for all new municipal experiments during the year 1915, be refused, no matter how worthy they may be, and all such activities be deferred until a more propitious time.

(6). That no expenditures of money shall be authorized by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment with a week's prior notice to the taxpayers.

(7). That no experts be employed unless first approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and after a public hearing.

(8). That no money be expended for public improvements already authorized, unless contracts have already been let.

CREATING SUBURBAN COMMUNITIES

Developers Have An Arduous Task, Requiring Capital, Good Judgment and Patience—Some Typical Examples in Westchester County

By WINNIFRED HARPER COOLEY

THE growth of legitimate real estate enterprises usually is slow and steady, but, on occasion, there are fortunate circumstances surrounding some special properties which bring about, with considerable celerity, a transformation of barren plains and unproductive farms into highly developed residential estates.

The operations of the seven or eight real estate concerns in Westchester County, all under the Robert E. Farley organization, have taken place actually within a decade. Each community has its geographical advantages, and each appeals in a different way to prospective home-builders.

In suburban developments, as in everything else, it is the first step that counts. The choice of location, the moderateness of the original prices, go far to determine the earnings of a company. The co-operation of good architects and builders, who realize one's primal ideas, and work harmoniously, also aids land developers.

Beginning in a simple way, the Westchester Land Exchange ten years ago, had desk room in a White Plains office. About ten million dollars' worth of property is now being handled by one organization. The Scarsdale Estates surround the picturesque station at Hartsdale. The Bronx River, scarcely more than a stream, winds its way through this section of the country, and its banks are heavily overgrown with flowers. The Italian Sunken Gardens were created out of a field of refuse and now stretch from the railroad station to the ancient pillared mansion of a past century, and have been taken over by the Bronx Parkway.

As various sections of the Estates have developed, they have been named respectively: Greenacres, Murray Hill and Scarsdale Hill. Greenacres has the greater populace. During the last three years more than 76 houses have been built there, and 10 others are now in the course of construction, while plans for 8 more are being worked out for the autumn. Owners of 12 other plots are contemplating building. The lowest possible price of a home on any lot is $8,000. From this price costs range.

The first problem in a suburban colony, before clients can be attracted, is to lay out some sort of a community with macadamized drives, proper sewerage, and grading. At Hartsdale the new station was erected and the grounds landscaped, and long macadamized drives created. An old building with saloon was modernized and transformed into small stores for the convenience of suburban dwellers, all objectionable features being eliminated. An important feature in developing suburban home colonies is to provide social life and recreation.

Clustered around the station of this typical community are the Scarsdale Golf and Country Club and the County Tennis Club. The former crowns a hill, overlooking a charming lake. Another important point is the attractive railroad station, and as soon as a railroad will co-operate with a real estate company by erecting one, great strides can be made.

Gedney Farm also had been neglected for a long time, when Mr. Farley and his associate, L. Ward Prince, started to resurrect it. The buildings were in a dilapidated condition. Gedney Farm Hotel was built, the stables of Howard Willets forming the nucleus, and in a short time was created a colony of about fifteen attractive homes. Others are about to be started. Mr. Willets and Mr. Farley decided to go ahead with this plan in the latter part of September, 1912. The work of developing the property and building the hotel was really not well under way until the Spring of 1913. The hotel was opened on October 7, 1913. That is, all this progress at Gedney Farm has really been made in a little over a year.

The same policy and general developing system has been used with other suburban properties along the Hudson and in Westchester County. Oakland Beach at Rye, N. Y., and Nepperhan Heights, a suburb of Yonkers, are handled by the brokerage department of the Farley organization. The latest acquisition of these interests is Philipse Manor, which has been taken over recently. Unlike the former properties, this already is developed. Twenty-three very large and modern homes are on the property, as well as a commodious clubhouse. Miles of roads macadamized, and excellent gradings and sidewalks, together with the necessary sewerage, electric lighting, etc., embellish the property and add to the comfort of the property owner.

OPTIMISM, SLOGAN OF REAL ESTATE MEN

Expressions of Opinion at Recent Convention Point to Return of Good Times, Increased Business and General Prosperity

ROBERT E. DOWLING, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, at the recent banquet of the State Real Estate Convention, gave a talk about the possible future of realty in the metropolis. He dwelt on the peculiar difficulties which confronted men in big business when they essayed to fill a State or Federal job. "You quickly learn," said Mr. Dowling, "that as soon as you are 'on the job' you haven't much to say, nor have you control of things like in your own business. When you seek for efficient men to help to run your office you are handed a list of names of persons from which you can choose and have no alternative but take the list and select the best you can.

"I am not afraid to say it that a civil service system is a very depressive one when it comes to helping get the men of the highest ability for public office. If the biggest men in the successful businesses had to rely on the civil service system, as it is today, for furthering the interest of their business they would find it of little benefit.

"In these times real estate has stood splendidly the severest test, and this alone undoubtedly will attract hundreds if not thousands of persons to become property owners, particularly those persons who had lost their faith in the stock markets.

New Commission.

"The Workmen's Compensation Commission went into office on March 30 and the law became effective on July 1. At the time I was appointed some paper characterized my appointment as a bad one, saying that I did not know anything about the law. Well, I did not know much. Now, I find that many who posed as experts on the measure display a remarkable depth of ignorance on that topic.

"Up to date we have issued 165,000 policies, and we have turned over to the State in premiums more than $600,000. We are doing the second largest insurance business in the State. I think the rates are too high, but succeeded in getting a reduction of 15 per cent.; then the proposition was reconsidered. I predict that the State fund will not pay out over 50 per cent if present rates are maintained. The correctness of my viewpoint can't be actually shown until next January. I am not an expert in figuring nor an actuary, but I feel positive the rates are too high."

Terminals and Realty Allied.

Cyrus C. Miller said the terminal market and real estate were closely allied because the more a family must pay for its food the less it has remaining to pay for rent and clothing. Consequently the less must be the value of the real estate on which it lives. "Any agency which brings food into the city so that it may be sold at a low price," continued Mr. Miller, "increases the amount of income which the tenant can pay for the use of the property, and hence its value is increased.

"A terminal market is merely the means whereby the third step in the trinity of a city's provisioning—collection, transportation and distribution—is effected. The United States Bureau of Labor Statistics shows a rapid increase in the retail prices of foods used in the average workingman's family between the years 1890 and 1912. The figures for recent years are as follows: 1905, $115; 1906, $119.1; 1907, $123.9; 1908, $126.5; 1909, $131.2; 1910, $135.2; 1911, $134.9; 1912, $143.7.

CYRUS C. MILLER.

"The average cost of twenty articles of food used by the workingman's family in 1890 was $1, while in 1914 it was $1.45. In the meantime wages have not increased in the same proportion, so that the increased price bears most heavily on the poor, who must spend so large a part of their income for food.

"Lack of proper terminal facilities results in increased cost by reason of delay, waste and extra charges for haulage and handling. It is estimated that the value of the foodstuffs handled annually in the City of New York amounts to $900,000,000 and that 10 per cent. of this, or $90,000,000, could be saved annually by adequate terminal facilities. Such a vast sum retained in the hands of our citizens could be used for better rents and better living.

"Thus, it may be seen that terminal markets and real estate are connected intimately, and that the presence or absence of adequate terminals may affect the price of real estate seriously throughout the city. But in our study of real estate and the influence which affect it, we must not confine ourselves to the City of New York or to the cities of the State.

"Everyone is familiar with the fact that farm values in many parts of the State have declined during the last twenty-five years. There are many causes for this, but the main cause is that farming has ceased to pay. It might be supposed that as our cities have grown greatly during this period there would be more demands for the products of the farm, and therefore the value of farm lands would rise. The fact is that lack of marketing facilities in the city has caused so much expense in the handling of foods in the city that the farmer has received a low price for his products, while the city dweller has paid a high price. We need not look for an increased value in our farm lands until our farmers can be given market facilities adequate for the sale of their goods at a profit.

'Back to the Farm.'

"The cry of 'back to the farm' is uttered by many well-meaning people who recognize the evils of overcrowding the cities, but this cry never will be answered satisfactorily until the farms can be made to pay. The energy of the American takes him everywhere over the civilized and uncivilized world, through every danger and privation, so long as he can make money, but he will not stay on the farm and not make money.

"It is estimated that the State of New York produces only about 10 per cent. of the food stuffs used in the City of New York. The greater part of the supply comes from world-wide sources. Hence, for the proper handling of these supplies, a terminal market must be built which will handle economically train and ship loads of produce in one place where both shippers and buyers can meet.

"The creation of a market system in the city will result in the drafting of rules for the uniform grading and packing of foods to be sold in the markets. This, in itself, will put a stop to the waste now caused by the necessity of sorting, grading and re-packing. The wholesale terminal market is the first step in our market reform. Its influence on real estate will be direct and powerful."

New Hope Sounded.

William H. Moffitt, who was president of the Real Estate Association during the last year and who was succeeded by M. Morgenthau, Jr., said: "This two-day convention has created the spirit of a new feature; of better times with millions of dollars in circulation to give new life, new hope and new courage to the people of this country. The report of the National City Bank of New York City says we have $1,000,000,000 in gold in the treasury of the United States; we have $500,000,000 in gold in the banks of this country; we have $200,000,000 in gold in circulation among the people, while the gold output during 1914 in the United States and Alaska was $100,000,000. This makes a total of approximately $1,800,000,000 in gold in this country.

"The Secretary of Agriculture says there is a product in the entire country, from the 7,000,000 farmers of over $9,000,000,000, which is $1,000,000,000 more than the farmers of this country had to spend last year.

"With this amount of gold on hand, which is greater than the combined gold deposit of England, France and Germany before the war, and with over $9,000,000,000 for the farmers to spend this year, and with every industry now working overtime, with every country in every part of the globe seeking and demanding our goods and products, there is nothing on top of earth that can stop us from having, at an early date, the greatest era of prosperity this country has ever known."

SIXTH AVENUE IN TRANSITION STATE

Big Building Movement in the Twenties During Recent Years Has Changed the Character of Tenancy of Stores on Thoroughfare

Increased traffic = increased crowds. Increased crowds = increased business. Increased business = increased demand for stores. Increased demand = increased competition. Increased competition = increased rentals. Increased rentals = increased income to owner. Increased income = greater value of property. Therefore, increased traffic = increased value of property.

THIS is a geometrical axiom which may be accepted among students of real estate valuations and developments in New York City. It is proven by the remarkable increases in land values in those sections of the city where there is congested pedestrian traffic. A dozen actual instances may be cited as proof of the desirability of large crowds of people constituting moving masses along particular streets.

The condition at present existing on Sixth avenue, between 23d and 32d streets, is unusually interesting in this connection, because it may cause a doubt to be raised as to the infallibility of the axiom above quoted. Along this thoroughfare between those two points the traffic is so congested during the noon hour and during the early morning and late afternoon hours that the street is almost impassable. Thousands of employees of the factories and light manufacturing buildings in the intersecting streets, between Fifth and Seventh avenues, pour into Sixth avenue. The result has been a practical duplication of the situation in lower Fifth avenue which has caused so much discussion.

The occupants of 182 buildings, ranging in height from five to twenty stories, have selected Sixth avenue for their noon-time promenade and for their favorite thoroughfare. Sixty-seven of these buildings are twelve stories in height and are of comparatively recent construction. The table on this page illustrates the principal cause of congestion.

One of the most interesting details in connection with this new development may be found at the corners of 25th, 26th and 27th streets, where street labor exchanges have become established. Here may be found labor contractors, furnishing workers to clothing manufacturers, and also operators and others looking for jobs as well as employers looking for help. Down on the lower East Side in Seward Park a similar labor exchange has long been characteristic of the Hester street side. In this district carpenters, painters, blacksmiths, glaziers and plumbers with tools in hand may be obtained ready for work.

Sixth avenue itself, in the minds of a great many real estate experts, was destined to become a part of the great retail shopping district. When large department stores began to do business in 23d street to the south and 34th street to the north, it was felt that the interior territory, particularly along Sixth avenue, would feel the effects and develop along the same lines.

SIXTH AVENUE, NORTH FROM 25TH STREET.

The advent of thousands of workers in what may be called the "needle trades" has caused a complete transformation of the character of businesses along Sixth avenue. A canvass was made this week of the stores along the thoroughfare and an analysis made of the kinds of retail concerns which have become within very recent times part of the business development. It was found that saloons, restaurants and pawn shops prefer the east side of the street, whereas men's furnishings, ladies' wear and jewelry firms prefer the west side of the avenue. There are twelve vacant stores, three on the east side and nine on the west side.

There are today twenty-six restaurants on Sixth avenue between 32d and 23d streets, ranging in quality from Mouquin and Shanley, to Max's Busy Bee. There are six of these lunch-rooms. There are nineteen saloons, eleven men's clothing, nine ladies' wear, nine men's furnishings, eight ice cream parlors and soda stands, seven cigar stores, six shoe, six jewelers, five pawn shops, five leather goods and bags, three electrical supplies and sewing machines, three men's hats, three novelties, three moving pictures, including Loew's Greeley Square theatre, which has vaudeville; three cutlery and hardware, two photo supplies, two shoe shining parlors, two cut rate theatre tickets, two stationers and two barbers. There are various single establishments, including among others a laundry and a dog fancier.

According to a leading real estate man in the section there is, however, a favorable turn to be noticed in the upper floors of the buildings. These were formerly occupied for dwelling purposes and where they have been changed over to small businesses the increase in income to the owner has almost offset the decrease of store rentals. There is not much likelihood in the near future of this part of Sixth avenue being improved with large structures, as the rentals obtainable from the old buildings keep the land values considerably in excess of those in the side streets, whereas, there is very little difference, if any, in the rentals obtained for lofts on the avenue as compared with those obtained in buildings in the side streets. There has been little building of modern mercantile structures on the avenue, although the side streets have undergone striking changes in the transformation of quiet residential blocks to busy manufacturing centers.

The tendency for loft construction has manifested itself on Sixth avenue between 24th and 31st streets only in one instance. At Nos. 510 to 512, Edward J. Appell recently completed a twelve-story store and loft structure from plans by Walter Williams. There is one building operation under way at the present time involving the northwest corner of Sixth avenue and 28th street where speculative builders are erecting a three-story store and office building from plans by Charles B. Meyers.

From this last operation, indicating as it does a demand for store properties rather than for loft buildings, it might be inferred that Sixth avenue is destined to continue to develop along the same lines at present noticeable. In the opinion of many men familiar with conditions past and present, it will remain the center of businesses catering to a class of trade of moderate means. Two-cent coffee houses and the "selling out" men's furnishing stores, offering bargains, will continue to flourish on the congested thoroughfare, where even the roar of the elevated road cannot drown the clamor of the thousands of pedestrians. From present indications Sixth avenue's future is assured for years.

War talk has been pretty thoroughly tabooed in business circles in this city, by general consent, and everybody has felt better for it.

The Real Estate Board does not believe in swapping leaders when crossing a stream. But there were many other good reasons for the re-election of so able a president as Laurence McGuire.

Business has been under fire now for a dozen years, ever since President Roosevelt began to fight "the interests." It is time the turn was called from Washington and it is time a policy of co-operation was introduced between the administration and the business people of the country. There is too much fighting going on in the world.

The Queens filings disclose a marked increase in mortgage loans for building purposes by the large lending institutions, especially for multifamily houses in Long Island City and Ridgewood. With the great manufacturing development going on and the construction of a rapid transit line, there is every reason why investors should step lively in Queens.

The two-family dwelling cannot render the financial service to the owner which it once did, but the three-family house would satisfy the need, if the law could be amended so that houses of that type would not need to comply with the constructional requirements of the Tenement House Law. It would seem that a reasonable compromise ought to be sought—for the benefit of certain parts of the city at least. The Building Districts Commission should look into this question. Something must be done to encourage real estate ownership among the young. Read the letter from Mr. Deeves in another column.

When the War Is Over.

Mr. Elias A. Cohen called attention last week in the columns of the Record and Guide to a very interesting and important development of the real estate situation in New York which will occur in the not remote future. As soon as the war is over, an enormous European immigration will begin. At the present time the number of immigrants is, of course, exceedingly small, and it will continue small as long as the war lasts. But no matter what the industrial condition of this country may be at the end of the war, the treaty of peace will be the signal for an unprecedented rush of new arrivals from Europe. An enormous mass of emigration is accumulating behind the dam erected by military necessity, and when the dam crumbles away the flood will be unloosed, no matter how unpropitious the conditions may be in other respects.

As a matter of fact the conditions will probably be such as would ordinarily discourage emigration. As soon as the war ceases there will be an enormous demand for labor in Europe, to be employed in repairing the destruction caused by the war and in replacing the work of those who have been killed or incapacitated as a result of the fighting. This demand may be so urgent that the great powers, like Great Britain, Germany, France, Austria-Hungary and Russia, may actually prohibit emigration for a certain number of years. But unless some such action is taken, the incoming tide of aliens will swell to an enormous volume. Hundreds of thousands who have wanted and intended to come, but who have been prevented by the war, will be all the more eager, because of the frustration of their intentions. Additional hundreds of thousands will come, particularly from Poland and Russia, because the war will leave them almost destitute and because they will wish to escape from a land in which they are liable to such awful calamities. How much this rush of immigration will amount to in actual numbers, one can only guess; but it may easily surpass by several hundred thousands the largest previous total in the history of the country.

Mr. Cohen points out with entire truth that a substantial proportion of this increase in population will settle in New York. He points out, furthermore, that they will arrive at a time when there is likely to be an actual under-supply of housing. The building of tenement houses in Manhattan has come almost to a standstill, and the newcomers will soon fill up existing vacancies and improve the standing of tenement house property as an investment. If a revival of business were to take place at the same time, as seems likely, the newcomers will soon find employment, and a large amount of additional space will be secured by manufacturers and jobbers in the wholesale district. It is possible that this demand for additional space will be sufficient to fill up the lofts in the old mercantile district, and consequently to improve also the investment position of this important class of property. Thus it is expected that real estate will become in much greater favor with people who have money to invest.

The expectations advanced by Mr. Cohen are not unwarranted. There is every reason to believe that the position of New York real estate will slowly improve and that when the new subway system gets into operation a period of general and lucrative activity will supervene. The improvement may not begin during the coming winter, because of the scarcity of loanable capital and because so many peculiarly metropolitan industrial and financial activities have been impaired by the war. It is not likely to begin as long as the war lasts, and the war seems likely to last throughout the summer of 1915. But as soon as the war is over the property-owners of New York will reap the advantage of their long period of deprivation and can expect higher rentals and an increasing demand for their holdings. There is only one threatening development which may condemn them to a further period of liquidation and loss—which is an increase of taxes.

As we have frequently pointed out, the new financial policy of the city will lead inevitably to an increase in the amount of money to be derived from taxation. If an attempt is made to get this additional income by the simple expedient of adding ten or fifteen points to the tax rate, the effect will be disastrous. Considerable liquidation will certainly follow, and real estate would receive a black eye, from which it might not recover for many years.

We do not mean for one moment to imply that the new financial policy of the city, which was so ably and persuasively presented to the Real Estate Convention by Mayor Mitchel, is not wise and necessary. The articles by the present City Chamberlain, Mr. Henry Bruère, which the Record and Guide published in 1913, proved conclusively that the fundamental difficulty connected with the city's finances was due to the disproportional growth of the interest on the city's debt. If the city is ever to be made financially sound this difficulty must be done away with; but it is equally true that the burden must not be imposed upon real estate. As we pointed out last week, other cities derive large revenues from classes of business which, like real estate, cannot run away from taxation, and which are fully capable of carrying a special burden in return for the special opportunities which they obtain from their location in the business and social metropolis of the country.

The Trend of Traffic.

The interesting aspect of the figures recording the passenger traffic on the elevated roads for the past year is the decrease of the number of tickets sold on the Sixth avenue line. All the other elevated roads show small increases, but the Sixth avenue shows a decrease of about 500,000. Moreover, this decrease would presumably have been larger, in case it had been possible really to separate the traffic on the Sixth avenue from the traffic on the Ninth avenue road. The figures for the Sixth avenue line include the tickets sold on all the stations between 59th and 155th streets on the West Side, the consequence being that its south-bound traffic consists approximately of 47,000,000 passengers, while its north-bound traffic consists only of 32,000,000. If the passengers who boarded trains north of 59th street with the intention of reaching a destination on the Sixth avenue line could have been separated from the passengers who boarded trains north of 59th street with the intention of reaching destinations on the Ninth avenue line, the former would have shown a larger proportionate decrease. The cause of it is, of course, obvious. It is the damage which has been done to the district on Sixth avenue between 14th and 23rd streets as a center of retail trade. Even in the period covered by these figures, the diminishing prosperity of this district was plainly visible; and since the Claflin failure last summer it has become increasingly evident. A very large amount of business has been diverted from the Sixth avenue shops and the Sixth avenue line since June 20 of the current year. Some of the business which has left the shops has not left the elevated roads, but is using the 34th and 42d street stations instead of stations farther south. But in all probability much of it follows other routes and will continue to do so. It looks as if lower Sixth avenue would necessarily be occupied by the wholesale trade and that the employes in the buildings would walk to homes on the lower East and West sides.

The Over-Inspection Issue.

The Brooklyn League has taken a stand for a co-ordination of building inspection in this city, and the Tenement House Committee of the Charities Organization has come out in opposition thereto. At the last monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Brooklyn League, the secretary of the Brooklyn Tenement House Committee rose in opposition to a resolution declaring for a merger of departments, saying that his committee was opposed to any measure intended to curtail the powers of the Tenement House Department. With only two votes in the negative the executive committee of the Brooklyn League passed the resolution notwithstanding, recording itself in favor of a "merger of the various departments under one head in each borough, to be known as the Building Bureau, the head thereof to be appointed by the Borough President." In other words, the Brooklyn League is in favor of a consolidation of building bureaus with borough autonomy, rather than a unification into one general city department, whose presiding officer will be appointed by the Mayor.

The action of the League no doubt reflects the opinion and wishes of Borough President Pounds, and it is reported that the Borough Presidents of the Bronx, Queens and Richmond are also of the same mind. The opposition of the Tenement House Committee was to be expected. The important and gratifying thing to the men and women who have invested their means in houses and lands within the boundaries of Greater New York is that the borough, city and State authorities alike recognize the sensibleness and justice in the public demand for a merging of departments to the end that there shall be a cessation of over-inspection and of unwarranted calls for expensive structural alterations. Every reflecting person must perceive that an owner is entitled to receive a clean bill of health for his premises some time or other. Under the present conditions that time can never come. With the government heads in concord on the main question the battle is nine-tenths won. To what extent there should be borough autonomy under the new system is a secondary question—a political question if you will—about which property owners are not going to dispute to the extent of losing the great foundational reform.

Legislating Real Estate Off the Map.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

A good start has been made in waking up the real estate owners of New York City to the realization of the impositions forced on them by mandatory legislation, municipal extravagances and social service agitators. Let us hope they will stay awake and active until there is a marked decrease in the bond and budget requirements.

This era of extravagance started at the time when the assessed valuations of New York real estate were raised from about 40 per cent. to full valuations. This gave the city a great borrowing allowance, and most of the earlier bond issues under this increased borrowing capacity were captured by social reformers for public parks, public baths, municipal lodging houses, etc. And when the city required money to build subways, docks, aqueducts and other permanent substantial improvements, it found the available funds had been used up on account of being bonded up to the permitted 10 per cent. limit.

Then means were devised to further borrowing. The city went to the Legislature and obtained consent to release from the constitutional amendment restriction all alleged or actual self-sustaining corporate improvements. This method has now been exhausted, extravagance still continuing, and further schemes are to be tried to satisfy the municipal maw. The very latest one is to add the cost of certain of the public improvements to the annual budget. This adds a further great burden on the present generation of property owners. I fail to see, with the momentum of municipal extravagance that obtains both in this city and the other cities in this country, how city officials can state that the bond issue of the city will be decreased.

The mischief has been done, and we have to foot the bills, and even under active agitation for decrease in municipal expenditures, it will take a number of years to bring about any result. Meanwhile, what are the property owners going to do who are staggering under this load? They will have to pay the taxes assessed against property which has become unavailable and unrentable under conflicting legislative enactments or be sold out.

The quickest way of relief is to have the obnoxious and confiscatory enactments repealed.

We have had an anti-trust agitation in this country for a number of years, yet the very Legislature itself insists on creation of trusts. They have almost legislated the 25x100 ft. lot off the map. Hardly a building today, on a 25 ft. lot, except in few instances, can be made to pay on the former single lot basis, and all the tendency of legislation has been to the advantage of the large sites and to the driving out of the small property owner.

A specific instance is the Tenement House legislation. Some good-intentioned people, most of whom never owned any real estate or hoped to own any, with the help of the Legislature decided that three-family occupancy constituted a tenement house. This deprived, in the older section of the city, a great many people of the privilege of renting out in floors the old three and four-story houses in which many thrifty owners lived in the first story and basement and rented out apartments on the other floors.

In the generation of our grandfathers this was a common practice in the old private houses, and it was a good substantial one, and healthy children used to play in the backyard instead of being driven into the streets. In the large tenements demanded by Legislature, there are no playgrounds, and it is strange that the associations that are looking for breathing and playground spaces cannot see what is right under their eyes.

The average private house is a drug on the market today and a nightmare to many people. They are dependent, in the changing neighborhoods, on uncertain rentals from boarding-houses and other doubtful sources of revenue; whereas, if they could be used for apartment renting and the Tenement House Department, had jurisdiction only over buildings containing five or more families, New York City's revenue could be greatly enhanced by the conversion of thousands of private houses into model apartments in which there would be plenty of light and air and playgrounds for the children of three or four families in the backyards.

Let us obtain corrective legislation that will make our properties available so that they can earn an income to help pay the burden of taxes and debt.

Registration Lists and Property Owners.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Police Force, the Honest Ballot Association and some citizens associations are now busy in verifying the registration list in Greater New York. It has about 660,000 names.

Of course, no real estate owner, agent and broker believes in false registration or illegal voting. For this reason owners should verify the registration list in the buildings that they own or represent.

Personally, I may say, that I have for twenty years owned a tenement house in the Seventh Ward, and I always get from my agent about a fortnight before election, a list of those legally entitled to vote and give it to the Republican district captain. If some persons do not wish to give the list to the election officers at the polling place, they should sent it to the Honest Ballot Association, for use on Election Day.

Some persons have already been arrested for false registration, and Magistrate Freschi has refused to recognize the unwise provision of Chapter 821, Laws of 1913, that a qualified voter may register from "any place of stay," from which he intends to vote. The Judge holds that the elector must vote from his actual residence or domicile.

Hoping that your many readers will help the cause of honest elections by doing a little work herein, I am,

ALFRED R. CONKLING.

THE NEW WAR TAX.

Real Estate Conveyances to be Taxed on Amount of Equity.

A most favorable recognition has been accorded the work of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests by the Senate Finance committee at Washington. On September 22 the Law and Legislation committee of the council requested that two changes be made in the War Tax bill, relative to those provisions which affected real estate. Comprehensive briefs were prepared upon the sections dealing with real estate conveyances and mortgages, and these briefs and arguments were personally submitted to members of the Senate Finance committee.

Rather than condemn the general proposition as to whether an emergency tax measure should be applied to real estate transactions and adopt sweeping resolutions against the passage of the bill as a whole, only two objections were raised which the Law and Legislation committee of the council felt were reasonable and which could be altered and might have some weight in an effort to relieve real estate from additional burdens at the present time. As a result of this work, the War Tax bill has been specifically amended in accordance with the request and briefs of the council.

Will Tax Only Equities.

The first change which was requested and which was made by the Senate Finance committee, was with reference to the tax on conveyances. As the bill had passed the House, and as under the law of 1898 the tax of one dollar per thousand was to be levied on the consideration or value of any property which would be conveyed. Under the 1898 law this provision was held to mean that the amount of stamps was required to represent the entire value of the property, including the amount represented by mortgages, and that it was not to be measured by the amount of equity or interest conveyed. This obviously was inequitable, for all that is ever conveyed or paid for is the equity over and above mortgage indebtedness.

The committee suggested that a change be made in the bill to meet this objection. In compliance with this suggestion, the consideration which will now be taxed will be consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or incumbrance thereon, with a proviso at the end of the section that nothing in the paragraph in question shall be so construed as to impose a tax upon any instruments or writing given to secure a debt.

Not to Tax Mortgages.

The second change which was recommended by the council, and which was adopted, was relative to the tax on mortgages. The objection was made to a tax on mortgages as well, as for every assignment or renewal of the mortgage. The council maintained that every tax upon credits necessarily falls upon the debtor, and to require every mortgage to pay the tax or, when it had once been paid, to pay again on each transfer or renewal, would increase the burden upon the needy members of the community. After a very thorough presentation of every phase of the mortgage market, as well as a thorough consideration of the many burdens which real estate is required to bear today, the Senate Finance committee eliminated this paragraph, thereby not taxing mortgages or pledges upon real estate. The omission of this tax from the bill itself is a marked victory for real estate interests of New York City, and a general recognition of the fact that real estate is now being overweighted with local and State taxation. By thus presenting its arguments in a fair and forcible manner, and upon points which might be changed within reason, the council felt that some definite results might be obtained, as they have been.

—Morgan J. O'Brien, late of the Appellate Division, has accepted the chairmanship of the board of counsel of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests.

THE INDUSTRIAL GROWTH OF QUEENS.

FROM the report made by A. L. Langdon, traffic manager of the Long Island Railroad, at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, it is evident that there is no industrial depression in Queens, and as each new plant adds hundreds of wage earners to the working population of the borough, it is evident that there will be great strides in the building development to provide the necessary housing facilities for this vast army of employees.

The number of factories in Queens Borough has increased from 395 in 1904 to 771 in 1909, according to the figures in the Bureau of the Census of the Department of Commerce, and it is now estimated that there are over 1,100 manufacturing establishments within the borough limits. The best evidence of this great industrial growth is the following report of Mr. Langdon of new industries locating in the Borough of Queens, in part as follows:

New Industries in Queens.

Rosenwasser Bros., manufacturers of boots, shows and leggins, moved their New York factory to the McClure Building, Long Island City, and began operations Oct. 1, employing 400 hands, which number they expect to increase to about 750 this winter.

The Horn-Holland Company, recently incorporated, has erected a three-story brick building on the south side of Hancock street, near Bodine street, Long Island City, and began manufacturing varnish Oct. 1, employing 30 hands. This is a subsidiary of the A. C. Horn Co., manufacturers of water-proofing materials, also located near Hancock and Bodine streets.

Ground has been broken for a new eight-story building, of concrete, steel and brick construction, for the Ford Motor Co., at Honeywell street and Jackson avenue, Long Island City, east of and adjoining the present building. The new building will have a frontage on Jackson avenue of 325 ft. and will cost about $650,000.

The Keshan Renovating Co., a subsidiary of the Kazan Carpet Co., now located in the American Druggists' Syndicate Building, acquired property on Webster avenue, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, Long Island City, on which to put up a two-story building. They expect to move into it the latter part of this year.

The Truoff & Carp Corporation has completed a new five-story loft building, 150 x 75 feet, of brick, concrete and steel construction, at the corner of Wilbur avenue and Sunswick street, Long Island City. The ground floor is occupied by the S. G. V. Auto Co. for a service plant; second, third and fourth floors, by the Walters Piano Co.; fifth floor, by Mendlin A. Roseman, manufacturer of yarn, silks, thread, etc.

The Truoff & Carp Corporation has begun the erection of another five-story and basement loft building, of concrete, brick and steel construction, 104 x 77 ft., on the north side of Sunswick street, between Wilbur and Payntar avenues, Long Island City. The basement, first and second floors, which it is expected will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1, 1915, have been leased to the Wahle Phillips Co., of New York, manufacturers of electrical goods. When completed the three upper floors will be leased to other industries.

L. Marcotte & Co., of 17 East 36th street, New York, decorators and furniture repairers, have leased one floor of the Palmer-Singer Building, Webster and Second avenues, Long Island City, where they began operations Aug. 1, employing sixty hands.

A five-story and basement factory building, to contain a total floor area of about 100,000 sq. ft., will be constructed for the Sterling Gum Co. on the south side of Harris avenue, between Ely avenue and William street, Long Island City. The Sterling Gum Co. is now located in the factory building at 10th street and Vernon avenue, Long Island City.

The Russell Foundry & Machine Works, Long Island City, are erecting a four-story brick factory building adjoining their plant at 51 Sixth street, the dimensions of which are 100x138 ft. A part of the first floor will be used as a machine shop by them. The remainder of the building will be leased.

Joseph Elias & Co., dealers in window and plate glass, of 541 West 22d street, New York, have leased the building of the American Locomotive Co., on Jackson avenue, near Sixth avenue, adjoining the tracks of the Long Island Railroad, Long Island City, to which they expect to move about Nov. 1. Arrangements are now being made to build a sidetrack to serve the property.

The American Ever Ready Co., of New York, manufacturers of electrical supplies, are erecting an eight-story building, 200x300 ft., on the block acquired in December, 1913, bounded by Thomson and Nott avenues, Orton and Manley streets, Long Island City, adjoining the plant of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.

Increased Valuation.

A good indication of the interest which is beink taken in the remarkable industrial and residential growth of the Borough of Queens, is the many requests which are being received by the Queens Borough Chamber of Commerce for copies of the monthly Bulletin published by them. During the past week requests were received from the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C., from the Director of the New York Public Library, and from several universities for copies of all issues. The Bulletin, which is published monthly by the Chamber, sets forth the latest facts and statistics regarding all improvements and developments in the borough.

The October number contains a statement of the increase in assessed valuation by wards for 1914, as follows:

Wall Street to Be Torn Up.

The Local Board of the Greenwich district has authorized the alteration and improvement of the brick sewer in Wall street, between Broadway and William. The work will be done at night and the trench bridged over in the daytime. The sewer is in bad condition, as the crown has fallen out in several places. It was built in 1846. The cost of the work is estimated at $17,250, but as the property to be benefitted is worth $50,000,000 or more, the owners won't grumble much.

The sewer in Liberty street, between Broadway and Nassau, is to be repaired in the same way. It was built in 1848.

TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION.

Interesting Exercises During the Coming Week—Services, Festivals and Pageants.

Commerce, of all the various branches of industry, has been the cardinal causation for the rapid growth of New York City. Local real estate and building activities, manufacturing, banking—all have been built upon the foundation of commerce with other lands and trade with the rest of the country that has been carried on here at New York for three hundred years. It is fitting that all the related real estate interests should, as they will, have a part in the celebration.

Commercial Tercentenary Week begins today. It marks the three hundredth anniversary of the beginning of trade and commerce in this city and Father Knickerbocker has appropriately decorated his principal thoroughfares for the occasion. Trade, Commerce and Peace will be the features of the celebration; war and its attributes will be temporarily forgotten. Two grand pageants will reproduce the remarkable industrial progress which has given New York City a leading position among world cities.

The program for Tercentenary Week as completed is as follows: Saturday, October 24, and Sunday, the 25th, religious services; Monday evening, the 26th, musical festival at City College; Tuesday evening, the 27th, musical festival at Washington Irving High School; Wednesday evening, the 28th, automobile pageant; Thursday evening, the 29th, theatre and moving picture night, and Saturday evening, the 31st, the industrial, educational, peace and patriotic pageant.

The celebration is under the direction of the New York Commercial Tercentenary Commission, General Howard Carroll, president, and Louis Annin Ames, chairman of the pageants committee. Albert De Gernea is director of the pageants.

Two Parades.

Interest will center on the two parades, the first on the evening of Wednesday, October 28, when there will be a procession of automobiles, illuminnated and decorated. Mayor John Purroy Mitchel and Governor Martin H. Glynn and Secretary of State Mitchell May have accepted invitations to ride at the head of the parade. At the conclusion of the pageant the Automobile Club of America will hold a reception at its club house, in their honor. In the parade which will wind up the celebration on Saturday evening the cities of Syracuse, Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Baltimore and Paterson will join, Baltimore sending commercial floats representing the leading industries of that city.

General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., and Commodore Robert Peary, U. S. N., have accepted invitations to ride at the head of the United States Division. Hon. James H. Preston, Mayor of Baltimore; Hon. Louis Will, Mayor of Syracuse; Hon. Hiram H. Edgerton, Mayor of Rochester, and Hon. James D. Smith, Mayor of Utica, will head delegations from those cities.

Harlem Carnival.

In Harlem a carnival will be held next week under the auspices of a committee of prominent citizens drawn from the Harlem Board of Commerce, the Harlem Property Owners' Association, the East Harlem Improvement Association and other civic bodies.

Tomorrow, to start the carnival, there will be appropriate services in the churches, with addresses on the growth and development of Harlem, and the importance of community spirit, Monday a prize baby parade and special theatre night, Tuesday Merchants' Day, and Wednesday evening automobile parade with prizes for decoration. The Thursday Bankers and Manufacturers' event will be marked by luncheon, with addresses by city officers and prominent financiers, and another special theatre night. Friday evening will present an industrial parade of business houses, with prizes for decorations, horses, automobiles, also an open house and old fireside night at churches and clubs. On Saturday will be a morning parade of 5,000 school children and boy scouts in costume, an afternoon children's festival in Mount Morris Park, and in the evening music, a grand pageant and floats in conjunction with the Commrcial Tercentenary Celebration.

Realty Board Elects Officers.

The Real Estate Board of New York held its annual meeting in its Board Rooms, 115 Broadway, last Tuesday, eighty-four members being present and voting. The following officers were elected: Laurence M. D. McGuire, president (re-elected); Edward C. Cammann, William L. DeBost and Charles F. Noyes, governors.

The re-election of the president was made by the Board of Governors after the adjournment of the members' meeting.

The following were elected on the Nominating Committee: Gerald R. Brown, Joel S. de Selding, Irving Ruland, Edward L. King and Frank D. Ames.

The following were elected on the Auditing Committee: Donald W. Brown, Eugene S. Willard and Walter C. Wyckoff.

The members before adjournment voted unanimously their appreciation of the retiring governors, Messrs. Warren Cruikshank, William J. Van Pelt and E. A. Tredwell.

The Board of Governors, besides re-electing Laurence M. D. McGuire president, elected for vice-president Albert B. Ashforth; secretary, Elisha Sniffin, and treasurer, Frederick D. Kalley.

A dinner will be tendered soon to the president and the retiring governors.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Thirty-fourth street's desirability as a location for high class retail stores was demonstrated this week by the report that a large firm for many years in 14th street had taken over a building in the Herald Square section which will be used as a branch establishment. The downtown business will not be discontinued and will still be maintained because "trade conditions in 14th street are altogether too satisfactory to even consider the abandonment of this store," as one of the attorneys representing the owner stated. The strength of the old shopping district in 14th street, as indicated by the intention of large department stores to remain there, in spite of its apparent isolation from what has become known as the new shopping center, may be considered another of New York City's unusual business developments. Some time ago, when rumor had it that an old established firm in 14th street had leased an uptown site, an inquiry from the Record and Guide elicited the following answer from a member of the firm: "We have so much confidence in this street that we are scheduled to remain here for at least ten years more."

From present indications this statement appears to be borne out by the fact that 14th street is retaining its shopping crowds while the district just north has been abandoned and is being changed into a manufacturing section.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 16 as against 13 last week and 14 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 4 as compared with 6 last week and 3 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 12 as compared with 7 last week and 11 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 122 as against 101 last week, 17 having stated considerations totaling $1,011,900. Mortgages recorded this week number 74, involving $2,205,937, as against 43 last week, totaling $1,715,121.

From the Bronx, 12 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 6 last week and 8 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was

* Indicates that the property last noted was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Outside bidders figured prominently as buyers at public auction sales held this week, and this branch of the market showed considerable strength. The passage of ownership of foreclosed properties to others rather than parties in interest indicated a good demand for well located holdings. Louis Schramm, who owns the nine-story Chelsea Storage Warehouse in West 26th street, became the owner of the plot of four lots, 100x111, in the south side of West 107th street, 225 feet west of Columbus avenue. He paid $40,050 for the plot, which will be improved with a warehouse. The sale was brought about by a foreclosure action against Walter F. Hopper to recover a judgment of $37,807 and taxes amounting to $1,492.

Light Your Halls

Twenty inspectors have recently been detailed by the Tenement House Department to see that hallways of apartment and tenement houses are lighted at night in accordance with the law.

The law reads that there shall be a light at night in the lower hall and one in the hall on the second floor. Many owners and occupants of tenement buildings unconsciously violate these provisions because of an inadequate method of controlling the light.

If you feel that the hallways of the buildings you own or occupy are inadequately lighted or the lighting improperly controlled we shall be pleased to render you any assistance in our power.

Write us and one of our lighting experts will show you how electric light will not only protect you against law-violation, but he will prove to you that it's the most economical form of lighting for hallways.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

NEW YORK'S WATERFRONT OPPORTUNITIES

By FLOYD S. CORBIN

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

PUBLIC interest in the needs of the Port and City of New York is awakened from time to time by efforts to obtain appropriations from the State and Federal Governments for building new canals, deepening and widening existing channels, etc. The opportunities already at hand for development are not availed of, and much energy and time is wasted upon chimerical and impracticable schemes. With the greatest natural facilities, New York should be the most economical port in which to handle merchandise. That it is not, is due to the lack of foresight in making the best possible use of our waterfronts.

Profitable Field.

A splendid opportunity for profitable development is to be found in the erection of warehouses and loft buildings on the waterfronts in close proximity to railroad terminals and piers. The plannings should be on ground not too expensive, and where the interchange of merchandise between vessel, car, warehouse and factory could be accomplished at a minimum of cost. In point of efficiency and economy of operation, we have here nothing along these lines that compare favorably with the best practices obtaining in modern European or South American ports.

The cost of these properties on the Manhattan and Brooklyn shores, plus the improvement, is in many instances too great for the individual manufacturer, who could best be served by such a location, and therefore a large number are forced to seek quarters outside of the city. Improvements of the character mentioned in suitable localities, would do away with a great deal of unnecessary handling and cartage, and reduce street congestion, which has long since reached an acute stage in some sections of the city.

Present Waste Enormous.

While it is impossible to even approximate correctly the amount wasted annually in handling and trucking around New York, the total sum is enormous, and it is a direct burden upon the consumer. There can be no question that a comprehensive development of some of the waterfronts in the harbor, having due regard for the proper co-ordination of rail and water shipping facilities, would prove most profitable. We have a comparatively small number of such buildings here, and with the revival of shipping and industry in this country, there is certain to be a good demand for this class of improvement. On account of the general European war, we have presented to us an unparalleled opportunity to increase our export trade. If New York does not profit greatly, it will be solely due to lack of initiative and failure to see what is obvious to the balance of this country.

Overlooking Opportunities.

We ask for increased appropriations for unnecessary improvements, while we have here lying fallow, properties with rail connections on deep-water channels that will accommodate at least 85 per cent. of the shipping that comes, or will come, for some time, to the port of New York. And it is now possible to obtain some of these properties at prices far less than is being procured for similar lands in the far-off port of Vancouver, which thirty years ago, was but a trading post; or in San Pedro, distant twenty-one miles from Los Angeles, Cal. This may seem an exaggeration, but nevertheless is true. A few years from now many will wonder how they could have overlooked such opportunities.

The tendency in both water and rail transportation is for larger vessels and cars. Increased size of vessels necessitate deeper water-ways. Recognition of this fact, and also of the enormous increase in tonnage over Staten Island Sound within recent years, has resulted in the completion by the Federal Government of a thirty-foot channel from a point 600 feet east of Shooter's Island in the Kill Von Kull to a point in Staten Island Sound north of Buckwheat Island. This channel is open at all seasons.

New Jersey's Development.

Development of the New Jersey shore of the Kill and the Sound within the past ten years has been remarkable, and the increase in the values of land very great. An even greater opportunity for profitable exploitation is now presented on the New York shores, where lands having deep water and rail facilities can be procured at extremely low prices, and in sufficient areas to permit of comprehensive and economical development. These locations would answer admirably for warehouses, storage and industrial purposes. The natural advantages found here would permit the improvements to be of such a character as would bring into close relation the different agencies of transportation, and provide as economical methods of handling and storage of merchandise as can be found in any modern port. No one familiar with the situation here can deny that we are greatly in need of such improvements, and that they would prove profitable to all concerned.

Panama Canal Trade.

While New York will benefit more directly than any other American sea-port from the operation of the Panama Canal, it is a surprising fact that we have done nothing to provide facilities which would attract business that is bound to use this water-way. The Pacific Coast ports with far less natural advantages than New York, are keen to profit by this great achievement of modern engineering skill, and are spending large sums of money to accommodate shipping and industry. And this is true of practically every important seaport in Europe and South America. Here, we are content to wait and have business thrust upon us.

Examples in Other Ports.

New York might well profit by the examples of civic spirit shown in the port developments of Montreal, Toronto and San Pedro harbor. None of these ports can in any essential compare in natural advantages with New York, yet the manner in which they have planned and are now carrying out important harbor improvements, challenges admiration. Although Montreal is closed to navigation for a portion of each year, with the additional disadvantage of being an inland port, yet it is attracting business that should come here. The interest and enthusiasm shown by Los Angeles in the upbuilding of San Pedro harbor—which is in effect an artificial port—is most inspiring.

The vast majority of New Yorkers fail utterly to comprehend the opportunities offered in water-front property development, as neither our lending institutions, speculators or investors have a proper appreciation of this class of real estate, and the possibilities offered in the intelligent handling and development of it. Yet the commercial supremacy of this great city is dependent upon its water-borne traffic. Our commerce has grown despite the handicap to which it has been subjected, but we should no longer adopt a passive attitude; we should be more aggressive in seeking and attracting new enterprises. The best method is to offer adequate facilities for doing business at a low cost. Being the greatest distributing and consuming market on the Western Hemisphere, as well as the financial center, a location in New York should be particularly attractive to manufacturers in every line.

Interesting Statistics.

As nearly as can be computed there are 3,686,935 people living in apartment houses and tenements, and 1,079,948 persons living in private dwellings in New York City. On the city records any structure housing three families or more is listed as a tenement house. The buildings in New York City number 366,010, as follows:

|---|---|
| One-family houses | 147,184 |
| Two-family houses | 73,184 |
| Tenements | 99,908 |
| Hotels and elevator apartments. | 2,611 |
| Warehouses, lofts and department stores | 9,549 |
| Office Buildings | 1,123 |
| Factories | 5,198 |
| Stables and garages | 13,131 |
| Theatres (not motion pictures) | 180 |
| Miscellaneous | 13,942 |

Unlike other great commercial cities, New York City is also the greatest manufacturing city in the Union. Within its limits are 27,283 factories and shops engaged in 297 lines of manufacture, representing an investment of about $1,529,946,487, a sum nearly one-half the total money in circulation in the United States.

Waterfront Ownership.

Waterfront property ownership in New York City varies as does every other kind of realty, although the city has extensive holdings in Manhattan and the State in the other boroughs. Many of the titles claimed by private individuals and corporations and the city is in dispute and in course of litigation.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Multiple Fire Door Latch.

ARCHITECTS seeking to find a locking device on the market that will comply with the new rulings of the Board of Fire Underwriters, requiring that swinging fire doors must be locked at three points to prevent, in case of fire, the warping away from the stops which would allow the flames to pass through, have available the latest product of the Dahlstrom Metallic Door Company, of 297 Broadway.

It is a latch designed to be entirely contained within the lock stile of a hollow-metal door and is operated by a counterbalancing weight, eliminating springs, which in a hot fire would lose their temper and make such a lock inoperative. All the principal working parts are of cast bronze, also the knobs and escutcheons, which can be of the same design as on adjoining doors in a building. The bolts are of steel, as required by the underwriters, and are heavily electroplated in polished bronze.

All parts are mounted upon an angle shaped steel stile plate, adjusted for use, examined and labeled under the direction of the Underwriters' Laboratories. The device is applied by sliding into the hollow stile from the bottom of the door and is fastened by four machine screws through each of the face plates of the latches and two large screws in the bottom of the door. It is not necessary to weaken the door by cutting away in the side of the stile for the insertion of the central lock.

On the ordinary door three bolts are generally used but more can be added for extra high doors; these bolts project seven-eighths of an inch beyond the edge of the door, as required by the Board of Fire Underwriters. A turn of the knob pulls them flush with the edge or opens the lock, and a ratchet arrangement holds them in this position so long as the door is open. Thus, there are no projections to catch in the clothing of anyone passing, which is an important point, especially in buildings where many women are employed. In closing the door, a pin or trigger, which projects on the stop side near the top of the door, is pushed in by the stop on the jamb, which causes the ratchet holding the lock bolts within the door to be released and to enter the latch strike plates or openings in the jambs, thus locking the door.

This device is made "fool proof" by the use of an automatic feature in the central latch bolt. If the ratchet pin is tampered with, so that the bolts are released and spring into position, projecting beyond the edge of the door when the door is open, the antifriction latch bolt will, when coming in contact with the lip of the strike plate, cause the bolts to retract into the door and allow it to close, when the bolts are again released and will securely lock the door.

When the Hoist Breaks.

MANY persons who have stood on the curb and watched the mid-air climb of hundreds of pounds of steel girders and columns rising to their permanent aerie in a New York skyscraper have wondered what would happen if the hoist should break. The Thompson-Starrett Company, holding the general contract on the First National Bank-Soo Line building in Minneapolis, had such an experience on August 19.

Careful examination of the hoisting apparatus about fifteen minutes after the accident showed the cables to be practically new and not responsible for the accident. The load being hoisted weighed 26,380 pounds, or approximately thirteen tons. The electric machine had a capacity of 20 tons, but it was absolutely wrecked. The load fell about ten stories.

On one of the drums the teeth or cogs in the main gear were entirely stripped off. The teeth of the secondary were badly broken, probably 25 per cent. being either broken off or entirely ground away. The heavy cast hoist frame was broken in several pieces, the dog standard and the dog drum were both torn out and a segment of about one-third of the diameter of the ratchet circle and teeth on one of the drums had been thrown off and the teeth scattered about the hoist. The motor was badly burned, the armature had spread and the brushes were burned off, and a 125 amp. fuse which had been jimmed up by the addition of a piece of No. 19 wire was blown. The load buried itself into the street pavement and reduced the girders to a tangled mass. Two men were killed.

The inquest developed that a cog broke while falling into mesh, causing stoppage of the machinery, which acted directly upon the motor and fuses as an overload. Before the automatic electric brake could take hold the terrific momentum attained by the 26,000 pounds descending transformed the motor into a dynamo and reversed its operation, blowing the fuse and burning the motor.

Novelty in Bushings.

ONE of the great demands in the electrical field has been for an insulated bushing for standard steel box knockouts and for that reason the new device being introduced by the Multi Refillable Fuse Company, 723 Fulton street, Chicago, is worthy of special note. The bushings consist of a threaded porcelain body made in sizes to fit the standard steel box knockouts, and are clamped securely in place by the threading on the helix spring coils of wire, which is made to engage the threads to the porcelain.

The manufacturer claims for these bushings that when they are locked up, securely in place, they will not work loose under continued vibration, because of the great resiliency in the spring.

Clock Controls Thermostat.

ONE of the latest novelties in thermostats is being introduced by the Honeywell Heating & Specialty Company, of Wabash, Ind. The only attention this device requires for the maintenance of even heat is the winding of a clock once a week. Ordinary thermostats are actuated by a clock having an alarm movement. Such instruments are set back every night when lower temperatures are desired, the alarm movement serving to set up the thermostat in the morning.

The Honeywell thermostat was designed by M. C. Honeywell. The illustration shows a three-quarter view of the new instrument. The dial is 2¼ inches in diameter, of white porcelain. The clock is wound from the front, the sash or crystal being easily removed. Projecting through the rear of the clock case is a shaft bearing a set of cams that revolve once in twenty-four hours. The revolving of these cams controls the blade of the thermostat. The cams can easily and quickly be adjusted to set back the thermostat each day at any desired hour between noon and midnight. It automatically sets it up at any hour thereafter until noon of the following day.

The thermostat can be used as a plain (see above) or clock pattern. In disconnecting from the clock, the knurled button below the scale is pulled out. Then the instrument can be set at any temperature between 55 and 85 degrees F., where it will remain as long as wanted. To reconnect the clock, the button is pushed in, after which the clock will have complete control of the instrument.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

The Tenement House Law Declared to Be a Barrier to a General Improvement of Brooklyn Dwellings in Need of Alteration.

THE evolution which is going on in real estate, as in other forms of activity, has reached a peculiar and even critical situation in Brooklyn, where miles upon miles of three-story and basement brick and stone houses stand in rows and solid blocks, on lots twenty feet wide. For the most part they represent the city development of the previous generation. They therefore antedate the suburban movement which, beginning at Prospect Park South, has now extended almost if not quite to Coney Island, and has developed a new Brooklyn of detached and commodious frame cottages of much architectural beauty set amid lawns, trees and hedges, and abounding with restful piazzas.

The brick and stone houses of the older Brooklyn at the time of their erection also represented the best known architectural forms for speculative city houses. Few were erected by their owners. Nearly all were purchased from speculative builders on favorable terms by typical people of the City of Churches. Pretty much all alike in their interior planning are these rich-looking "brownstone fronts." It is unnecessary to describe them or to say that they are "all up-and-down stairs." With their material and construction excellent, their floor plans are circumscribed. They are convenient to church, store and carlines, and once were inexpensive to maintain.

The time has come when these houses should be modernized. In Manhattan they would be torn down and something else built in their place, but in Brooklyn we cannot do this. Economic conditions do not warrant it. With the prevailing fancy of the day for the suburban house, the market for the city house of the three-story and basement brick type is not what it once was. Besides, the cost of maintaining a "whole house" has increased. Taxes have mounted, but private incomes have not kept pace with higher costs, and the servant problem can be solved better in a small apartment than in a big house.

A Preference for Flats.

An astonishing preference is being shown for apartments. Usually they are tenanted as soon as completed. The owners of many of the brownstone fronts would move into apartments if they could dispose of their houses to advantage. Whole houses are not so rentable as they were. It is difficult to derive from that source a profitable return. The problem is not only a serious one for the owners, but also for the community. So much so, the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers has directed its Tenement House Committee to consider the subject.

A Simple Expedient.

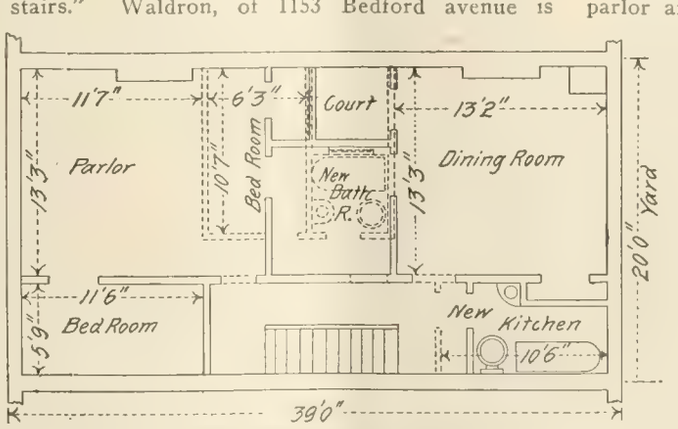
It has long been apparent to everybody that if the two upper floors of the larger type of houses could be made over into flats, the situation would be relieved. By a simple alteration of partitions the floors could be converted into five-room flats. But the Tenement House law stands in the way. Three-family houses come under the legal classification of tenements and are in consequence subject to the Tenement House law and to the supervision of the Tenement House Department. As the law's requirements cannot be met by any alteration which it is possible to make in houses of this kind, the Real Estate Board's committee (of which Mr. A. J. Waldron, of 1153 Bedford avenue is chairman), contemplates asking for legislative relief. This may take the form of a bill providing that dwellings such as those under consideration may be altered into three-family flats without being subject to the Tenement House law. Or, the bill may provide for the transposition of all present and future three-family houses out of the tenement classification.



It is apparent that if private dwellings such as those which constitute the Bedford section and Park Slope could be converted into flats that they would be quickly tenanted and their market value would be strengthened. The demand for small flats at a moderate price seems never to be satisfied. Being in excellent neighborhoods these brownstone dwellings would find great favor with small families. Mr. Waldron says every effort will be made to have the law modified by the Legislature. All the real estate and civic societies in Brooklyn, with the exception of two, favor relief of some kind.

The Real Estate Board's committee has had drawings made to illustrate the nature of the alterations which it is desired to make in old dwellings, and also the sort of new three-family house which it is desired to erect outside of the Tenement House law.

FLOOR PLAN FOR A NEW THREE-STORY HOUSE FOR WHICH LEGAL SANCTION WILL BE ASKED.

The plan for the new house has six rooms on a floor and is considered exceedingly good for the limited width of the lot. The dining-room and kitchen at the rear have windows on the yard. The parlor and one bedroom have an outlook upon the street. A large court gives air and light to the back parlor and bedroom.

Plan for altering existing dwelling into a three-family house for which legal sanction is desired.

The plan for the alteration of the existing dwellings into flats provides a suite containing a parlor, dining-room, kitchen, two bedrooms and a bathroom. The dotted lines indicate where the new partitions are to be placed, and the solid lines show the existing ones. It will be noted that the principal change consists in making space for a kitchenette where the bathroom now is, and getting space for a new bathroom, a small bedroom and a court from space occupied at present by the large, dark middle room, which in most houses is almost useless.

The bedrooms and the kitchen, in the new layout, have dimensions smaller than the minimum allowed by the tenement law, but there will be only three small families in the house, and there are many young couples, and old ones too, who would not consider the dimensions too small. Many old couples, whose children have grown up and moved away, would find these rooms, with their moderate rental rates, highly desirable.

ELEVATOR FATALITIES.

An Interlocking Device for Elevators May be Required by New Code.

Acting Superintendent of Buildings Frederick H. Dewey has recently made an analysis of the fatalities on or in connection with elevators in the Borough of Manhattan for the five years, 1907 to 1911 inclusive. The investigation was prompted by an inquiry from Rudolph P. Miller, who is considering the incorporation in the new Building Code of provisions requiring the interlocking of elevator cars and shaft doors to prevent the car from leaving a platform so long as the door is open. It is believed that such a requirement would avoid in the future such accidents as resulted in the death of Judge Bischoff.

In the five years' period covered by the investigation, it was found from the records of the coroner that there were in Manhattan 207 accidents in connection with elevators which resulted in the death of one or more persons. Of these 88 were on elevators which are classed by the Bureau as freight elevators and on which persons other than operators are not supposed to ride, or if they do, are warned by the prescribed notice that they do so at their own risk.

A careful study of the Coroner's records and reports on file in the Bureau of Buildings reveals that 95 of the 119 accidents resulting in fatalities on passenger elevators were shaftway accidents. In other words, 80 per cent. of the fatal accidents on passenger elevators would probably have been avoided if satisfactory interlocking safety devices had been used.

That these accidents are not confined to any particular class of buildings is shown by the following statement:

|---|---|
| Fatal accidents occurring in private houses | 3 |
| Fatal accidents occurring in apartment houses | 19 |
| Fatal accidents occurring in hotels, clubs, etc. | 12 |
| Fatal accidents occurring in office buildings | 30 |
| Fatal accidents occurring in department and other stores | 8 |
| Fatal accidents occurring in factories and lofts | 23 |
| Total | 95 |

Nor are the accidents confined to elevators of high rise, for 36 occurred in buildings six stories or less in height;

39 occurred in buildings seven to twelve stories in height;

20 occurred in buildings over twelve stories in height.

The range in stories varies in the analysis from 3 to 21.

It is found that nearly 10,000 elevators in Manhattan would be affected by any provision for interlocks on passenger elevators, in about 5,500 buildings, requiring about 100,000 openings to be equipped.

Unusual Fire Test.

What promises to be an interesting experiment will take place on October 30 at the Croker residence, Long Beach, L. I. The demonstration will be made with a view to show to those interested in fire prevention and fireproof construction that it is possible and feasible to build an absolute fireproof suburban residence, at not too great an expense.

One of the rooms in the residence will be set on fire and, with the doors shut the fire will be allowed to burn until the contents are destroyed. The demonstration is designed to show that if a fire should originate in such a constructed house, by shutting the door, the conflagration would be confined to that particular chamber.

Consider the Evidence

The Building Man of today has come to think before all else of the advantages secured to him by Edison Service

A new and notable example is seen in the great structure going up at 406-426 West 31st Street, the contract for which was signed back in July when ground was first broken

The men behind the project, realizing that their tenants would be large light and power consumers, lost no time in assuring them a supply known for perfect reliability and all-round economy

Such cases are worth considering. Write or phone us for data and estimates

Building Opportunities at Coney Island.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

PRICES DEPEND LARGELY UPON CUSTOMER—TIGHTNESS OF MONEY MAKES LONG CREDITS ALMOST GENERAL RULE

Plan Filings Last Week, This Week and Year Ago Compared

FURTHER weakening of building material prices has resulted from the keen competition now prevailing for new business throughout the district. In some cases, like linseed oil, conditions at manufacturing points are responsible for the slump. Many attribute the cause to slackness in building construction brought about to some extent by lenders failing to live up to their engagements, not through any deliberate intention to embarrass builders, but because the long-continued closing of the stock exchange has prevented profitable and safe negotiation of securities.

Applications for new building permits are holding their own when compared with those for the corresponding period last year, as far as volume is concerned, in all central points in the metropolitan district; but at best contractors are able barely to get their payrolls from lenders, thus putting an unusual burden upon supply men. The building money is known to be perfectly good in almost every instance, but there has been an uncertainty about when the actual payments would be made that has made the lot of the contractor anything but easy.

For a time, therefore, material interests were inclined to restrict trading except upon a close basis, but the necessity of doing business and helping old contracting customers to keep at least a working part of their organizations together made more extended credit advisable. Competition and price shading, plus long credits, soon upset the demeanor of the market, with the result that there is hardly a list price in the building material market to-day that is being strictly adhered to.

The notable exceptions are plate glass, common Hudson brick and those basic commodities that are large factors in subway construction like yellow pine timber, sand, gravel and crushed stone. In the first case plate glass from foreign sources is practically out of market and American manufacturers are carrying the world's burdens for this commodity. Common Hudson brick, while not in good demand, is approaching the covering season, and since manufacturers are going into the winter short of stock as compared with other years, and dealers are not yet covered on the winter supplies, prices are expected to stiffen slightly this autumn instead of sharply as usual at this time of the year. Yellow pine is about the only timber that can be called strong in the general lumber market, and the demand for sand, crushed stone and gravel is active. Prices in these commodities are steady to strengthening.

Hardware is feeling a stronger export inquiry South and East. This may be expected to keep prices in fancy lines strong, but building grades are weak on demand though steady in price. Lime and plaster reflect the general sluggishness in the building trades, although in the former department there is developing an unprecedented demand for lime for fertilizing farm lands. The last half of this year promises to be one of the biggest the trade has ever known in this class of business.

Plan filings in the five boroughs up to 3 o'clock yesterday, compared with the volume and value of plans filed last week, follow. In the corresponding week last year there were 211 plans filed valued at $1,672,530.

| | Week Ending Oct. 16 | | Oct. 23 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | No. | Value | No. | Value |
| Manhattan | 8 | $ 887,000 | 2 | $ 525,075 |

PLATE GLASS.

Further Advance in Prices Expected Before Long—War Conditions the Cause.

ACCORDING to advices supplied the trade the far reaching effects of the European war have already given blast glass interests serious concern. There seems to be ground for belief that there will soon be a large advance in the price of plate glass. If the war continues, the American manufacturers will be compelled to ship to countries that have heretofore obtained their stock elsewhere.

Belgium has been the principal source of supply throughout Europe. Its factories at several points are reported to have been destroyed. Many plants in France and England have been shut down because the employes have been called for military service. Canadian plate glass warehouses, which in the past have secured their stock from English factories, will have difficulty in obtaining supplies because of interrupted transportation routes. For the same reason Australia's supply will be cut off, and as these two countries have not yet been materially affected by the war, and as they may continue to use as much plate glass as heretofore, the product of American factories only will be available for their needs. This will create a demand that will naturally lead to much higher prices, if trade conditions in the United States remain normal.

IRON AND STEEL.

Prices Weak and Current Lists Are Being Shaded.

STRUCTURAL steel and steel-making iron are in such moderate demand that even the quotations of 26@31 now current are generally looked upon by specifiers as nominal. This is generally the time of the year when buyers begin to gauge their future requirements over the new year. So far there has been little interest shown in 1915 requirements. Local agents report that Pittsburgh has been receiving some desultory inquiries and in some cases prices have been suggested.

The average, however, is somewhat below the present basis of $3.60 per base box, and in some cases $3.50 has been quoted on futures, while small mills are willing to discuss the $3.40 Pittsburgh base up to their capacity. The significance of these prices lies in the apparent evidence that the producers cannot look for much change in business conditions next year, if they are willing to shade the market from $2 to $4 a ton from present values. At the present time tin plate remains steady and mills are operating approximately 75 per cent. of capacity.

For sheets, specifications have been on the decline since the opening of September, but mills ket level, and operations are down to about 60 per cent. There is every prospect of a further decline in buying and specifications over the winter months, as all large consumers are well covered and new business is extremely small. Wire products are the most active of all, and the mills are running fully 80 per cent. of capacity.

Semi-finished steel buying has continued very light. The leading producers are holding to $21 Pittsburgh for billets and $22 for sheet bars, but there are small sales for a dollar lower and good business might bring better quotations from the large steel works, who are getting pretty close to the time when they will need new tonnage or must curtail more sharply on production.

GYPSUM.

Lime and Plaster Markets Optimistic Despite Tight Competition.

WHILE finishing materials such as lime, gypsum, hair, etc., are reported by distributors here to be in a loose market they are practically in the same relative position that all other building materials find themselves in at present. There is a feeling of optimism in that the source of supplies are in good shape to take care of the restricted market and that as soon as even partial recovery in the building trades begins the lime and plaster markets will quickly feel the buoyancy. There is some talk of secret shading. Quotations are nominal.

A report just issued by the United States Geological Survey shows the gypsum production of Texas in 1913 to be 161,090 short tons, valued at $346,000. The production shows a slight increase over 1912, but the value has decreased about $10,000. Texas has a large undeveloped gypsum area. The only deposits exploited at present are those in northern Texas. Four plants, three at Acme and one at Hamlin, are engaged in the manufacture of gypsum into plaster.

COMMON BRICK.

Registered Unloading Figures Light Because of Rain.

COMMON BRICK is without feature in a dull market. Prices for good brick are practically in the same range as last week, that is, good brick is bringing a little above the bottom quoted range in this market.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Oct 22, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

LINSEED OIL.

Weaker Prices at Duluth Drop Quotations Here.

FOLLOWING a drop of from ¼ to 1¼ cents a bushel for flax seed at Duluth on Tuesday, prices for linseed oil in this market dropped another cent, making the current range 47 and 48 cents for city raw American seed and 48 and 49 cents for city boiled American seed. Out-of-town raw brings 46 and 47. Raw Calcutta seed is quoted on a bottom range of 70 cents flat.

The slump at Duluth was the cause of a weaker tone in the local market for oil. Heavy users are now able to buy linseed oil in carload lots at 45 and 46 cents a gallon. The total drop in linseed prices in the last two weeks according to card schedule is 2 cents.

LUMBER.

Quotations Shrink as Competition Becomes More Strenuous.

PRICES at wholesale on many grades of lumber show a decline. All lists are practically nominal, with the result that quotations are being made according to customer. One authority analyzes the current lumber situation as follows: "This fluctuation in prices is a natural sequence to the liquidation taking place in the wholesale and manufacturing branches of the business, but notwithstanding this condition in the wholesale and manufacturing branches, the retailer, who is enjoying sufficient business to move a fair amount of stock, is able under present conditions to replenish the same on a basis nearer to actual market conditions than would be otherwise possible.

NEW STEEL COMPANY.

Walter E. Buckingham, Formerly of National, Heads Buckingham Company.

WALTER E. BUCKINGHAM, formerly manager of sales for the National Bridge Works, has organized the Buckingham Steel Company, Inc., with offices at 50 Church street. The officers are: Walter E. Buckingham, president; Edward J. Kaufman, Jr., vice-president and treasurer; Dwight W. De Motte, secretary.

Mr. Buckingham has been in the iron and steel business for eighteen years, his previous connections being with Post & McCord, Milliken Brothers and the Lackawanna Steel Company. Mr. Kaufman was formerly in the operating department at the plant of the National Bridge Works. The company will make a specialty of supplying all the material for iron shops, carrying a full line, including structural steel and merchants' sizes. They are also prepared to turn out fabricated work for quick shipment from stock.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

THE CITY BUDGET IS LESS THAN EXPECTED

Recommendations of Taxpayer Organizations Received With Serious Attention at Public Hearings — A Tax Rate of $1.92 For Manhattan Indicated

WHILE a city budget, estimated now at $204,000,000, is not a pleasant prospect, it is such an improvement over the original departmental estimates of $210,000,000 that taxpayers feel considerably relieved.

Both the sub-committee on tax budget, to whom specific, written, recommendations were made by the Real Estate Board, and the Board of Estimate itself have given the closest scrutiny to the budget. The public hearings before the Board of Estimate on Monday and Tuesday last provided further opportunities for suggestions and recommendations.

In the main these recommendations made by the Real Estate Board and other taxpayer organizations received the serious attention of the Mayor and his colleagues; and while serious differences of opinion developed on some points, the Mayor more than once took occasion to commend the representatives of taxpayer organizations for the work done by them on the budget. But even with the reductions already in sight, a $204,000,000 budget means a tax rate of 1.92 in Manhattan, 1.91 in the Bronx, 1.98 in Brooklyn, 1.94 in Queens and 2.04 in Richmond; and in the latter borough assessments will add 30 points to this.

A Plan for Further Reduction.

In view of these facts the Real Estate Board has suggested to the Board of Estimate the following plan for further reducing the tentative budget to an amount not greatly in excess of the $193,000,000 appropriated for 1914.

"First: Inasmuch as the Comptroller is about to fund $13,000,000 of deficiencies in taxes by the issuance of Corporate Stock, would it not be advisable to place in the budget the average amount placed annually therein for deficiencies—about $2,500,000—and in this way reduce the budget by $5,700,000?

"Second: In regard to the borough assessments, amounting to nearly $1,000,000, would it not be advisable to divide them into five installments under the Gerhardt bill, thereby effecting a reduction in the budget of $7,000,000?

"Third: There would be no impropriety in withholding the appropriation of $26,000 from the Board of Inebriety; $6,225 from the Municipal Art Commission; and $19,000 from the Public Recreation Commission. The work of the latter commission can be done by the recreation bureau of the Park Department and the recreation bureau of the Board of Education.

"Fourth: The elimination of laboratory service would effect a large saving. This work is being done by the Rockefeller Laboratory and there could be a very large saving in the special work of the Department of Health.

"Fifth: It is highly probable that all supervision of buildings will very soon be placed under a proposed Department of Buildings, with enlarged powers. This plan has public and official support. No appropriation, therefore, need be made for more than six months for the Tenement House Department, Bureau of Fire Prevention and the inspection force in the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity and the Board of Health. The additional expense of the new building department when ascertained can be made by an issue of Special Revenue Bonds, and the same procedure for the second six months could be followed if the plan for a new Building Department were not carried through."

HON. WM. A. PRENDERGAST
Comptroller of the City of New York

If these changes are made, the budget will not greatly exceed that of last year and the difference could be partially made up by the taxes on the increased valuations.

The Real Estate Board, looking further into the future, and recognizing that in many important matters the hands of the Board of Estimate are tied by mandatory legislation and charter provisions which encourage waste and inefficiency, has also made the following specific recommendations for the consideration of the Board of Estimate:

Home Rule Very Necessary.

First: That absolute home rule for the City of New York be secured from the coming Legislature and Constitutional Convention.

Second: That an investigation be had to determine whether it would not be possible and practicable to make the following changes in the city government:

1: To transfer the duties of the Commissioners of Accounts to the newly-created Bureaus of the Board of Estimate and the Comptroller's office.

2: To make the Comptroller city treasurer and abolish the office of the City Chamberlain.

3: To have one central purchasing plant, preferably by enlarging the powers of the Commissioners of the City Record and a Central Auditing Bureau under the control of the Board of Estimate, possibly as part of the Bureau of Contract Supervision.

4: To create a Bureau in the Comptroller's office, or directly under the Sinking Fund Commissioners, to be known as the Bureau of City Income. This bureau to have jurisdiction over licenses, weights and measures and other related sources of city income.

5: To transfer the collection of water rates to the Comptroller's office, so that the property owner can pay his water taxes where he pays his other taxes. The reason for this suggestion is that the Comptroller's office, as far as the collection of taxes is concerned, has comparatively little to do except around the period when taxes fall due.

6: That one commissioner be substituted for the present number in the Park Department and that there be one Administration Department for all the parks.

7: That one commissioner be substituted for the present number in the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

8: That the Department of Health be charged only with the making of and enforcement of sanitary regulations.

9: That all social activities of the city be transferred to the Department of Charities and that most of the social work be done through the local district settlement and church organizations.

10: That there be but one administrative department for all the public libraries.

11: That the auditing bureau and supply department of the Board of Education be transferred to the City Record and the new Auditing Bureau.

12: That the head of the Correction Department be made merely Superintendent of City Prisons.

The Figures in Detail.

The Board of Estimate has until twelve o'clock to-night, Oct. 31, to decide upon the final figures, so far as lies within the board's power, and then the Board of Aldermen will have twenty days to consider the appropriations, but with no power to enlarge them. At the hearings held at City Hall on Monday and Tuesday, the Mayor, the Borough Presidents and all the other members of the Board of Estimate were present, and standing behind their chairs in a great semi-circle, ready with advice and information, were the heads of the various administrative departments.

The accompanying table shows the tentative increases and decreases:

| | Tentative budget for 1915. | Final appropriations for 1914 |
|---|---|---|
| City gov'ment... | $124,919,972.62 | $125,437,549.82 |
| Debt service..... | 62,162,381.04 | 52,611,517.65 |
| Deficiency. ..... | 8,200,000.00 | 2,500,000.00 |
| Rent and State taxes ..... | 858,471.00 | 5,296,303.43 |
| Borough assessments. ..... | 954,549.96 | 520,015.06 |
| New York County ..... | 3,813,666.41 | 3,906,164.34 |
| Bronx County.... | 701,904.46 | 273,941.68 |
| Kings County... | 1,907,122.52 | 1,860,550.31 |
| Queens County... | 465,046.74 | 449,797.00 |
| Richmond County | 146,326.69 | 139,712.33 |

If the total assessed valuation of the city remains in the neighborhood of $8,400,000,000 the tax rates for 1915 will be about 1.92 in Manhattan, 1.91 in The Bronx, 1.98 in Kings, 1.94 in Queens and 2.04 in Richmond.

The following summary of the debt service appropriation for 1914 and the estimate for 1915 have been prepared in the Finance Department:

*Decrease.

Mayor Explains Increase in the Budget.

Mayor Mitchel made this comment on the tentative 1915 budget:

"I think," he said, "that attention should be drawn to the fact that the increase in the budget is due principally to three items—increase in the education budget, the debt service and the deficiency in the collection of taxes.

"The administrative cost of the government was largely cut, the net decrease in the twenty-nine departments under the Mayor amounting to $2,011,000, as I remember it. Attention should be drawn to the fact that there is a decrease of some $900,000 in the Department of Docks and Ferries, due to careful analysis by the Bureau of Standards and the Bureau of Contracts. The decrease in this instance involves a large layoff of a great number of supernumerary men, there being about 750 low-paid employees who are down for dismissal."

The School Fund.

The tentative increase which has been allowed the Board of Education in the 1915 budget aggregates $1,864,109. The total appropriation tentatively agreed upon for the educational department for next year is $39,970,349, compared to the total appropriation of $38,306,240, which was allowed for 1914.

As prepared, the tentative estimate of the Educational Board for 1915 represents a reduction of $2,187,645 from the original estimate submitted by the Board of Education. Apparently, the budget committee, in agreeing upon the tentative budget, refused to allow any of the salary increases, which the Board of Education allowed the forces in the administration bureaus, outside of the teaching force.

Under the law three mills on every dollar of taxable property goes into the general school fund. This brings in $25,170,466, and in addition a special allowance of $7,765,195 is made to make up the $32,936,195 for the general fund, as itemized in the tentative budget.

For the special fund for 1915 $7,034,155 is allowed, compared to $6,773,265, which was allowed for 1914. This represents an increase of $260,888, but is $388,947 less than the Board of Education asked for.

The Real Estate Board's Appeal.

President McGuire of the Real Estate Board, when remarks were invited by the Mayor, made an impressive address, which received the closest attention from the members of the board:

"You must either effect radical and far-reaching economies in the expense of managing the borough, county and city governments of Greater New York, or you must put a burden on that form of wealth from which the city derives its greatest revenue, that will be intolerable.

"The Comptroller will tell you that the present sources of city income from taxation can stand no greater burden. This is shown by the constantly increasing difficulty in collecting taxes. You are in a position where the larger part of what you need for the support of the government, must, until you obtain new sources of revenue, be secured by direct taxation. You can not borrow for current expenses except in anticipation of the collection of taxes. If, therefore, you impose too great a burden upon real estate and personal property, you will defeat your own object, for such intolerable imposition will fail of collection and you will be confronted with a situation where you will be without the full amount of money needed for the support of the government."

THE EVIL OF MANDATORY LEGISLATION

How the Hands of the City Government Are Tied by State Enactments, Leaving Little Discretion Over Municipal Expenditures

By HON. CYRUS C. MILLER

Chairman Executive Committee, Advisory Counsel of Real Estate Interests

THE public hearings before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on the budget of 1915 brought out numerous objections from taxpayers, in specific items, and also made plain the fact that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which in the popular mind has control over the expenditures of the city, is helpless to alter a great many of the items, because such charges are made imperative upon the board by mandatory legislation. Persons who are acquainted with the facts know that it is no new experience for the board to see bills passed at Albany over its protest for one city purpose or another, adding to the cost of governing the city.

The present financial situation of the city which makes economy imperative will direct public attention to the fact that economical government of city is impossible unless the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is given control over its finances. In no other way is it possible to hold the Board of Estimate responsible for such expenditures. The budget for 1915 will approximate $204,000,000, an excess over the budget of 1914 of $11,133,889.82. The expenses of twenty-nine departments have been cut out in the tentative budget by $2,011,000, while the cost for the entire city is cut from $125,457,549 to $124,919,972. The increase is due to an enlarged item for debt services (interest on outstanding bonds) because of subway building and other expenses, and the item of $8,200,000 for uncollectible taxes. As the obligations of the city have been issued against these taxes, failure to pay them will add $328,000 in interest every year, and good business judgment requires that they be paid off.

A large item amounting to $654,588 is for the staff and various committees of the Board of Estimate itself. For the most part this shows a cost of the new policy of the board in taking up the solution of various city problems through committees and their paid staffs.

While the two items in the total budget for debt services and uncollectible taxes, amounting to $62,162,381.04 and $8,200,000 respectively, are not directly mandatory, it is evident that the expenses of the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Board of Education, and other departments are for the most part mandatory. Even when such expenses are not directly mandatory, they are so in effect, because of such laws as the Equal Pay Law, the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law, the Veteran Law and the Civil Service regulations. The salaries in different grades of employment are fixed by the Board of Estimate and the employe becomes entitled to such salary through civil service examinations. The only control the board has thereafter might be to reduce the salary which the employe is getting to the maximum salary of the grade below. The mandatory items of the budget are fixed by the charter and many special laws.

It is evident that no steps can be taken to remedy these conditions until it is known definitely what items of the budget are mandatory and what are not. This is a work of great magnitude. At the request of the writer, the Comptroller kindly directed his staff to prepare as much of the list as possible in a short time, to be published with the budget, so as to notify citizens on this subject. An idea of the work involved to give such information on the whole budget may be had from the fact that the search for mandatory items in the comparatively small budgets of the county administrations brought out that there are in existence over two hundred laws affecting them. It is impossible for the Board of Estimate to equalize salaries while they are mandatory. The accompanying list shows the nature of the budgets of the county administrations:

The Greater Part Mandatory.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment would welcome efforts to change these conditions. It would be futile to introduce into the Legislature separate bills to nullify all the mandatory laws on the statute books, but the needed reform could be affected in one sweep by amending Chapter 247 of the Laws of 1913 known as the Home Rule, Bill, amending Chapter 26 of the Laws of 1909, giving to the Board of Estimate control of all expenditures, with few exceptions, made by the city of New York whether they are for city or county uses.

Many well-meaning people fear that New York will be misgoverned if responsibility for its government is given to the city itself. Such fear perhaps was not unjustifiable in the past, but times have changed, and surely the citizens of New York will be able to conduct their own affairs.

Such a change will make it necessary for business men of the city to take more interest in public affairs. The root of many of our public evils lies in the fact that the average business man has no interest in politics. Whatever action he takes is not preventative but punitive. When he is lashed to action by the newspapers, because of some evils already committed, he looks about for some one to punish, and it is not always the right one he selects.

Never before in the history of the city has so much interest been taken in its affairs and the enactment of a real Home Rule Bill would clear the way for the banishment of many of the ills from which we suffer.

THREE-FAMILY DWELLINGS URGED

Bronx and Brooklyn Interests Favor Modifying the Tenement House Law—Would Help to Revive the Market for Private Houses

AMONG operators and builders it seems to be agreed that the cardinal sin of the city real estate market is its failure to appeal to the small investor. The charge is made that under the operation of the tenement law there is real danger of real estate ownership becoming the exclusive privilege of the rich, and that young men desirous of investing in real estate will be obliged to look elsewhere than in the city for their chance.

Again, it is charged that the owners of brick and stone dwellings in choice residential sections are debarred from making alterations clearly demanded by the times. They are debarred from arranging their two upper floors for two small families. They cannot get the required number of cubic feet in all the bedrooms; they cannot comply with numerous structural features primarily intended for large tenement houses.

It is proposed that the tenement law shall be amended so as to make some allowances for the obvious needs of the real estate market; so that there will be something to offer the young man with only a few thousand dollars in quest of a house of his own with an income from a portion of it that will reward thrift. In the Bronx they would consent to a restriction that only detached (three-family) houses should be erected. In Brooklyn they ask that the law be amended so that the old dwellings may be altered into flats.

DWELLINGS OF THIS TYPE COULD BE CHANGED INTO 3-FAMILY HOUSES IF THE LAW PERMITTED.

The Tenement House Committee of the Charities Organization has "very serious objection to the proposal to convert hundreds of thousands of old dwelling houses into tenement houses without complying with the basic principles of the Tenement House law." The Tenement House Department is also opposed, claiming that the amendment would mean the "bringing back of old conditions of interior rooms without windows to the outer air, and the bringing back of the old opportunities for the spread of disease."

High Class Occupants.

Vice-President Frank Bailey, of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., said:

"There is no question in my mind about the advisability of allowing the construction of three-family dwellings on a single lot on an economic basis that will produce a return.

"Under the present building law that has been impossible. My experience as owner and mortgagee has been that the three-family house, in probably eighty per cent. of the cases, was under the old law occupied in part by the owner, with the result that the best kind of care was taken of the property, and the tenants were usually selected from friends.

"Since the passage of the new tenement house law, this class of building has not been constructed, and it cannot be constructed and make any return upon the rent which the people who occupy these premises can afford to pay. The whole tendency of the tenement house law has been to increase the nucleus of construction, to-wit, the forcing of the 50-foot buildings, four families on the floor, from four to six stories in height. I believe this to be uneconomic and not to the best moral interests of the city, and have strongly advocated a change of laws to that effect, but the tenement house law seems to have been considered as possessing a certain halo which the wicked, like myself, should not attack.

"I have no particular property to favor, and no particular advantage to gain from this advocacy, but anything which will protect the city from growing into a four-family-on-a-floor tenement house is something which should be done right away."

Would Make Ideal Apartments.

Clarence B. Smith, of 1424 Fulton street, Brooklyn, said: "We have hundreds of three-story and basement dwellings in this section of the borough vacant at the present time. There is very little demand for these houses as one-family propositions. If it were possible to convert them into three apartments at a reasonable expense, we would not only have ideal apartments, with plenty of light and air, but would also make houses of this character paying propositions. It is my opinion that if some of the gentlemen who are opposing the necessary legislation to bring this about would look buildings of this character over it would change their views."

A Chance to Recuperate Needed.

"I am heartily in favor of amending the law so as to permit three-family dwellings outside the Tenement House Law," remarked J. Clarence Davies. "I regarded the prohibition as a mistake when it was first passed and have not altered my opinion.

"It has obstructed the building of this class of houses throughout the Bronx. They were at one time regarded as good investments by people of small means who desired to live in the house and rent out the other two floors.

"Before the passage of this law these three-family houses made a good investment for people of this kind and would be the same to-day if their building and control were not so restricted by the Tenement House Department.

"This law as well as many others that have been passed hampering the real estate interests is what has injured real estate investing and realty in general for many years past.

"It is time now that the public has commenced to suffer from the floor of legislation adversely affecting real estate and other forms of investment, that business and business men should be allowed the opportunity to recuperate from the losses suffered by reason of the many unjust and undesirable bills passed during the past six or eight years."

Investors Should Be Encouraged.

C. Whitley Mullin, formerly secretary of New York Chapter of Architects, said he had long been of the opinion that an amendment of het law embodying such a change is not only permissible but from more than one point of view desirable.

"The main purpose of the tenement house act was," Mr. Mullin said, "to remedy congestion of population with its attendant evils. To encourage the erection of three-family dwellings and the alteration of existing three-story single or two-family houses, without making them subject to the exacting requirements of the Tenement House Law, instead of tending towards congestion would, I believe, operate just the other way—by inducing would-be investors of limited means to build rather than add to the already too numerous class of abnormally large tenements. Even four-family houses might, perhaps. e included in the same category, if only adequate means of exit in case of fire be provided, which might well be done.

"The fact that many investors are being driven out of the State of New York into the adjoining States of New Jersey and Connecticut, thus contributing materially to the stagnation of business, from which so many of us are suffering, might be supposed to furnish a compelling motive for urging some such modification of the law as is here advocated."

Impossible Requirements.

Walter E. Brown, of W. E. & W. I. Brown, of 3428 Third avenue, said:

"Ever since the Tenement House Department has been in existence the three-family houses in all sections of the Bronx have been a drug in the market, for the simple reason that it is impossible to comply with the departmental orders. If we did, the expense would be so great that it would be impossible to sell the houses to any advantage.

"On account of the Tenement House Department's orders, there are more vacancies to-day in three-family houses than we have ever experienced before, as the department does not make any difference between the attached three-family house and the detached."

CITY FREIGHT DISTRIBUTING PLANT

Municipal Terminal Advocated Having Both Rail and Water Connections—Districts in Every Borough Available for Improvement

By JAMES P. KOHLER

FEW disinterested persons will deny the statement that all large cities should own and control their terminals for handling freight and passengers. Whether such terminals should be municipally operated presents a question upon which honest differences of opinion may rest. But just as a city allows vehicles of all sorts to come and go in its streets, so it should be able to provide for freight and passenger cars, access and exit on equal terms. Eminent railroad managers continue to repeat that the most difficult problem in railroad management is the getting in and out of cities, such problem resulting from inadequate terminals. Later on our cities will undertake a solution of this problem which will greatly reduce the cost and waste of handling inward and outward freight.

Water-Front Railroads.

The City of New York, as the Record and Guide shows, is trying to stop the waste hereabouts by suggesting water-front freight railroads, central distributing depots and other changes. The map of Messrs. Miller and Bolton, in the Record and Guide, presents a feasible plan, but it must, for a long time, be a paper proposition only. The immediate inquiry is: What can we do with what we have now, and with what we soon shall have? We can do a great deal with our present possessions and possibilities to distribute incoming freight economically, which would both reduce the cost of living and increase the value of real estate.

Many Trunk Lines.

Among the trunk line railroads that supply New York with produce and fuel, the New Jersey Central, the Reading, the Lehigh Valley, the Pennsylvania, the Lackawanna, the Erie, the West Shore, the Ontario and Western and the Baltimore and Ohio approach the city through the State of New Jersey. The New York Central, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford, with their many connections, come in from the north and east. These railroads, and the Long Island railroad, bring to our doors most of the foodstuffs consumed.

On the New Jersey side of the North River the railroads coming through that State have for many years had a connecting railroad by which cars are transferred freely from one railroad to another. There is no lack of land on the Jersey meadows to accommodate the freight cars of all these various lines. Indeed, these meadows afford yard room for ten times the track mileage now used for yard. The New York Central freight trains are already brought into the city along the North River front, and the New York Connecting Railroad, now in construction, will help the New York, New Haven and Hartford to handle its freight with greater facility.

Long Island's Advantages.

The tracks of the Long Island Railroad cross and recross, at many points, the territory in the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, and it is to have direct connection with the New York Connecting Railroad, as it now has with the Pennsylvania system. A glance at the maps of Brooklyn and Queens will show that the Long Island Railroad can provide distributing points from Astoria to Bay Ridge, from Coney Island to Jamaica and Flushing and practically through the centers and the borders of these two boroughs.

The Bronx is in a position to get distributing depots from the two large roads already passing through that borough. So Manhattan alone remains to be considered.

JAMES P. KOHLER.

Already the New York Central hauls freight as far south as St. Johns Park, and as the island is not so very wide, it may be unnecessary to run spurs from the central tracks towards the East River.

Now, with all of this magnificent plant, what remains to be done to immediately solve to great extent the pressing problem of freight distribution throughout our city? But one thing: Allow the Pennsylvania tunnel, under the North and East Rivers and Manhattan Island, to be used for freight as it is for passenger traffic.

Use Tunnels for Freight.

A colossal error was committed, a mistake of monumental proportions was made, an almost unpardonable remissness in looking after the city's interests was perpetrated when the request of the Pennsylvania railroad to use its tunnel for freight, as well as passengers, was refused by the old Board of Rapid Transit Commissioners. The labor unions of that day prevailed upon the politicians on that board to adopt a short-sighted policy, from which our city has suffered ever since. But a contract made may be modified by the contracting parties, and the terms of the franchise, under which the tunnel was built, should be changed instanter. Such change would soon solve the city's freight distributing problem.

Sorting Commodities.

The freight coming in on the Jersey roads could be sorted and assembled on the Jersey meadows, where there is ample room for such sorting. The cars could be made into trains and brought through the tunnel into Manhattan. A connection between the Pennsylvania tracks and the New York Central tracks at or about 33d street and Ninth avenue —a question of detail only—would permit an interchange of New York Central and Pennsylvania cars at that point. The present yard of the Pennsylvania, west of its passenger terminal, would serve for a distributing point on a very large scale.

Another distributing point could be made at Second avenue on the East Side. It would be mere detail to erect warehouses along this tunnel on the West and East sides of Manhattan by which freight cars could be lifted bodily ten stories above ground if necessary, but plenty of room could be found under ground to handle the cars.

The cars, sorted out in New Jersey, for Brooklyn and Queens would continue through the tunnel to Long Island City, and thence be distributed to the numerous distributing depots in those two boroughs. The cars for the Bronx would run directly from the tunnel tracks to those of the New York connecting railroad; and along such connecting railroad distributing depots could be located both in Queens and Manhattan. Other cars for the Bronx could go north from the tunnel on the New York Central tracks along the North River.

Tracks Could be Electrified.

All of this system of tracks could be electrified, as the tunnel tracks now are, and the cars could be distributed throughout the city at night without noise or dirt. The railroads could be depended upon to deliver milk, meat and vegetables, wherever originating, to any portion of the city except Richmond.

But Staten Island needs but a short connecting tunnel to put it on the map. The Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn will, before many years, connect with the Staten Island Rapid Transit road, and a connection at Bay Ridge, between such tunnel and the Long Island railroad tracks, is a very simple matter, so that Staten Island would get all the benefits of the system now proposed.

Would Not Interfere.

The Pennsylvania passenger trains are not so numerous that the tunnel could not be used for handling freight, at least half of the entire day, and that company must have had in mind a freight distributing plan for this great city when it asked in vain for a franchise that would permit it to haul freight trains in the tunnel. This tunnel, the connecting railroad, and a tunnel under the Narrows are the keys that will open the doors so that freight in car load lots can pass into and through all parts of the metropolis.

It is not too late for the real estate interests to urge a reopening and modification of the franchise. If additions to the present tracks are needed they can be built, but at the present time, right before us, we have a nucleus for an interborough freight handling system that is comprehensive and well nigh complete. So little need be done to put it into operation that one stands aghast at our stupidity.

The New Seventh Avenue.

A resolution designing the new thoroughfare formed by cutting through Seventh avenue as "Seventh Avenue South," on the recommendation of the Board of Estimate, has been introduced in the Board of Aldermen and referred to a committee. The resolution is favored by the Greenwich taxpayers because they consider "Seventh Avenue South" the next best name to "Seventh Avenue," which, if selected would require that the avenue be renumbered from end to end.

—Today, Saturday, October 31, the last one-half of the real estate tax becomes a lien. The State Corporation Report should be filed with the Comptroller on or before November 15.

—Laws are effective only when they respond to the will of the majority of the people. Excessive law-making inspires contempt for law.

STABILITY OF HANOVER SQUARE SECTION

Towering Skyscrapers, Grim Warehouses and Modernized Structures Hold Varied Business Interests Around Historic Square

HANOVER SQUARE, at the junction of Hanover, Pearl and William streets, tucked in on the north by towering skyscrapers and on the south by lines of grim warehouses, presents an interesting study. The tiny square has long been the center of the cotton exchanges; latterly it has also become the headquarters of the tea and coffee trades. Facing the square are the big buildings of the New York Cotton Exchange and the Coffee Exchange extending through the block to Beaver street. Within a stone's throw are the tall structures of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, the Corn Exchange Bank, the Post Building, and at the junction of Beaver, William and South streets, Delmonico's, a familiar landmark.

South of Hanover Square towards the river front in Water and Front streets are to be found innumerable tea, coffee and liquor importers. In Front street particularly are located the tea and coffee merchants and here and there importers of olive oil and spices. In Water street are the wine, whiskey and brandy dealers and a great number of bonded and miscellaneous warehouses and trucking concerns.

So we find Hanover Square a definite line of demarcation between two distinct lines of development—financial and commercial—in direct contrast to each other not only from the point of view of class of business, but also from the point of view of the kinds of buildings erected. On one side of the square may be found structures of all sizes, ranging in height from seven to twenty stories, and on the other side, block after block of the uniform five-story warehouse type.

Hanover Square is rich in historic interest. In this locality years ago lived many of New York's wealthy merchants and after the French Revolution many well-known French refugees. In those days it was a pretty park space and residence there meant quiet and peaceful surroundings. Today the rumble of the trains on the Second avenue elevated line rounding the curve and the whistling of boats in the harbor are characteristic of the new development. Hanover Square's residential days are since over and the quiet grandeur of its small residences has been replaced by the noisy bustle of New York's downtown business activity.

Charles F. Noyes, discussing the section from the real estate point of view this week, said: "Real estate conditions in the vicinity of Hanover Square are going to improve just as soon as general business conditions are better. There have been a number of notable transactions in the district during the last few years, the foremost being the construction by W. R. Grace & Co. of the six-story office building, occupying the block front in Old Slip between Pearl and Water streets. With the exception of the new Morgan banking house, the Grace Building is probably the finest building in lower New York occupied almost exclusively by the owners, and many architects of prominence have pronounced the main banking room to be one of the finest in the world.

"Just opposite this beautiful structure our company leased the old 'Cotton Exchange,' occupying the block front on Hanover Square, from Pearl to Stone street, with adjoining buildings, to 'India House' for a long term of years. The 'India House' is organized along co-operative club lines to foster trade between our country and the East, and its officers include James A. Farrell, president United States Steel Corporation; J. P. Grace, president of W. R. Grace & Co.; Willard Straight, of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Alba B. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Edward N. Hurley, president of the Machine Company of Chicago, and James R. Morse, president of the American Trading Company. The fact of its selection of this district shows the desirability of Hanover Square as a central meeting place for representatives of Eastern countries and is certain to have a big influence on the neighborhood.

"While, of course, in the Hanover Square section the coffee and cotton trades predominate, yet throughout this entire section will be found many importing concerns, tea and coffee merchants and brokers and a miscellaneous line of business having to do with the water-front shipping, etc. Prominent firms, such as Arbuckle & Brother, and E. & H. Peck, have their own buildings nearby, and there has never been an intimation of the removal of any of these lines of business from this district. For this reason stability of values is stronger around Hanover Square and to the east as far as the water-front than in almost any other section of the city.

Water and Front streets, between Wall and Old Slip, are in a particularly healthy condition, few vacancies existing and property paying well. It is in this part of New York that one can purchase real estate with a fair degree of certainty, as far as the investment return is concerned, year in and year out."

Hanover Square's location with respect to the financial district and to the waterfront, makes its future assured, because there is little likelihood of a shift of the present classes of business established there, to other sections of the city.

Co-operation with the municipal administration, when the administration is actuated by pure motives, should be the policy of property owners. Mere destructive criticism accomplishes nothing, and reacts severely when not well founded.

There was a time in the history of New York City and State when the merits of a demonstration by taxpayers was estimated by the number of votes they could swing. Fortunately that feeling is dying out, though there are still a few statesmen in high places who prefer to coddle the people of the slums rather than give due consideration to the city's business interests.

New York City should have the power to regulate its expenditures with a view to economy and efficiency. The city budget hearings made this truth very prominent. The greatest service that the coming Constitutional Convention will be able to render the cause of good government in this State will be to accord to each municipality as large a measure of home rule as may be consistent with State sovereignty. The time has passed when New York City was not morally able to take care of itself.

Prosperity ought to get around to Broadway before long. They have it in the West, in the South they have never lost it, and in New England industries are working overtime. In parts of Brooklyn, Queens and New Jersey real estate and building are active, and only Broadway and Wall street, so to speak, are inactive. With exports mounting to record figures, with wealthy American travelers compelled to spend their money at home, and with the balance of credit against us in Europe rapidly being reduced, we ought to be getting busy in real estate and financial affairs; and if we do not it will, indeed, be owing to something wrong in ourselves.

The City's Financial Plight.

THE real estate owner of New York will undoubtedly receive the figures announced for the tentative Budget with severe disappointment and grave disapproval. A net increase of $11,000,000 in the tax levy at a time when real estate throughout the city is diminishing rather than increasing in value, and when only a slight expansion is recorded in assessed valuations—such an increase brings with it a substantial addition to the tax rate. This is the one result which the taxpayers wanted to avoid, and which they have depended on the administration to devise some adequate method of avoiding. Its failure to do so cannot in their opinion be excused or condoned.

Property owners recognize of course in the detailed figures for the budget an evidence on the part of the administration of good intentions. The specific appropriations which have been largely increased were increased because of excellent and sufficient reasons. The debt service calls for an enormous additional appropriation, but this appropriation was forced on the financial authorities of the city. The policy of New York in dealing with its debt has been radically unsound in the past, and has resulted in an accumulated obligation which must be paid out of funds derived from taxation. A continuation of the old methods would have meant eventual bankruptcy; and the administration deserves credit for resolutely facing the situation and meeting the obligation. The taxpayers have no right to complain in respect to this item of increase. They have consented in the past to a borrowing policy which was wholly unsound, and which was bound in the end to bring with it a day of retribution. Their representatives never paid sufficient attention to the methods whereby economies were immediately effected and never insisted on a policy of paying out of taxation only those expenditures which were properly chargeable to taxation.

The other large increases were equally unavoidable. The city has long been carrying as assets on its books uncollected and uncollectible personal taxes and the appropriation of a large sum to meet this liability in part was necessary and desirable. The additional millions which had to be devoted to education, also constituted an expenditure that was imposed upon the administration. No property owner who understands the conditions, which the financial authorities were obliged to meet in constructing the budget can offer any valid objection to the increased appropriations.

What they can object to is the fact that the large increases in the appropriations for debt service, schools and the like have not been sufficiently paid for by economies in those items over which the Mayor and his subordinates could exercise effectual control. Certain savings, amounting in the aggregate to something over $2,000,000 a year have indeed been made in the administrative departments subject to the Mayor's control; and this saving should certainly be taken as an evidence of good intentions. No other city administration has ever been capable of any such achievement. But the taxpayers are justified in declaring that the economies effected by the administration are not sufficient. They are justified in claiming that the administration has not taken a sufficiently serious view of the situation and that its economies have not been sufficiently drastic.

The aspect of the matter which the Board of Estimate does not seem to have sufficiently considered is the fact that the taxation of real estate has reached its wholesome limit. It has reached a level which, in so far as it is increased, will involve a dimunition of the taxable capital of the city. Real estate values are no longer expanding, largely because the city by means of its increases in taxation has appropriated the larger values created by the growth in population and wealth. In some parts of the city they are actually diminishing because the larger taxes have been levied upon property that is not affected by increasing population and business. The result of another increase in real estate taxation will be a considerable amount of enforced liquidation and an ultimate diminution in the value of the property assessed for purposes of future taxation. Formerly a steady increase in assessed valuation was supposed to be sufficient to provide funds for the increasing expenditures of the city. Recently the expenditures have expanded so much more rapidly than the increase in property values that they have become a barrier to any further increase, and the question, which is pressing for solution, is: How are the growing expenditures of the city to be provided for in the future? The complaint of the taxpayers of New York against the administration is based upon the fact that it has not appreciated the critical nature of the problem and has not successfully sought for any adequate solution.

An adequate solution can only be found by working along two lines. In the first place, economies must be brought about wherever economies are possible, and the process of economizing must be carried farther than it has yet been carried. The saving which the administration has already achieved must be regarded not as a completed job but as a sample. The good work must be continued. If it is to be continued it will demand a practical reorganization of the city departments, and a complete regrading of the city employees. Such a reorganization cannot be effected without the assistance of legislation which will free the hands of the city authorities from many mandatory provisions. The administration should ask for this legislation during the coming winter, and its request should be backed up by the property owners of New York.

At best, however, a sufficient amount of money cannot be saved by economies, no matter how drastic, to meet the necessary increase in expenditures. During the next few years the debt service will require the appropriation of many additional millions. The provision made for uncollectible taxes will continue to be expensive for a long time to come. The only practicable way of meeting this increasing expenditure is, as the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, to discover and to tap additional sources of taxation. The success of the Mitchel administration will depend very largely on the ability with which it handles this critical problem. If it continues as it has done during the present year, merely to charge up the necessary increases in expenditure against real estate, it will be doing as much harm to the city as if it had continued the policy of indiscriminate borrowing. It will also be incurring the justifiable resentment of the most influential and determined class in the community. It will doubtless incur some unpopularity as a consequence of an attempt to tax other clases of property, but such a step must be taken—in case the city is to be preserved from the grave danger of future financial embarrassment.

A Practical Demonstration.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Fire Department of New York through its Fire Prevention Bureau has presented with unusual force through a moving picture exhibition a demonstration of the good and bad factory, showing the danger of the clippings lying around the floor, from overcrowded conditions, rubbish being left unprotected and of smoking by employes. The good factory showed how work can be done systematically and profitably with good aisles, with fire prevention apparatus, fire drills, etc., and the pictures give a most unusual and convincing demonstration of the efficiency of sprinkler equipments.

I had the pleasure of seeing these films exhibited in a factory kept by a conspicuously progressive and conscientious manufacturer, who was exhibiting them to his employees as a good lesson in fire prevention and the danger of carelessness, and the excellent results of careful management, and it certainly would seem that when these films become publicly released, it would be almost worth a manufacturer's while to pay the admission of his employees to the theatres where they are exhibited, or show the films in his factory.

This exhibition had, however, another great advantage. It showed that the real estate owners have been very much in the right in claiming that it was not necessary in every instance to reconstruct a building, simply because a factory occupied it or part of it. That the great danger is in what is now generally known as "bad housekeeping"; that the tenant is largely and most importantly responsible for danger, and that a well-kept factory with the proper fire drill and with suitable fire extinguishing apparatus is safe in practically any kind of building.

The Labor Laws have paid little attention to the installation of sprinkler equipment compared with the drastic regulations of the construction and alteration of the building itself, nor does the law, up to this time, allow you to omit structural changes where sprinkler equipments are installed.

The exhibition given by the Fire Department, through these films, also showed how valuable fire escapes can be even though "fire proof windows" do not open upon the course of the fire escape, and it showed that except for the panic amongst the employees and the actual fighting on the balconies of the fire escapes that they could have easily escaped from the burning premises without even using the staircase.

I think that all real estate owners and decent manufacturers should thank the Fire Commissioner and the Fire Prevention Bureau for the most effective and excellent illustrations, first, in favor of "good housekeeping," and second, for exposing the absurdity of the excessive demands of the present Labor Law for the reconstruction of existing buildings. ALFRED R. KIRKUS.

Untaxing Improvements.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The untaxing of improvements on land is a wornout, cast-off and exploded theory, revolutionary in character, and unstable in essence, consequently, it merits but scant notice at this late date. The common intelligence of the people, as well as the wisdom and practical experience of successive legislatures, have carefully considered and emphatically repudiated it as decisively as they did the free silver heresy of 16 to 1. A time when the city, state and nation are in urgent need of additional revenues is not a propitious occasion to waste in the further discussion, or even consideration, of a discarded and impractical revolutionary theory, which, if put into operation, would immediately take out of the public treasury large amounts of existing revenues, on which the government is maintained.

The theory and reasoning upon which it is attempted to support the untaxing of improvements on private property are that these improvements increase the value of vacant land, and that all of the tax should be thrown on this increase in the value of the land, and none of it on the improvements to the land.

If it is fair and just to throw all of the burden of taxation on land which increases in value, by reason of improvements being made on it, or in its immediate vicinity, then it is unjust not to take the tax from land which decreases in value in other localities.

If an owner of land is fortunate enough to have it increase in value on account of improvements made to adjoining lands, and on account of an increase in population in the immediate vicinity, or for other reasons which may be due to the actions of others, and is to be penalized on account of his good fortune by the public taking away this increase in value, by taxing his property to that extent, then the public should reimburse an owner who is unfortunate enough to own property which depreciates in value, on account of a change in the community, a change of conditions surrounding his property, a decrease in the population surrounding his property, or for other reasons over which he has no control.

A good rule should work both ways.

A simple illustration will afford a fairly good idea of the working of the proposed law to untax improvements. Let us assume that one buys three vacant lots in the uptown section of the city. Let us assume that these three lots have a market value of $60,000. The owner erects an apartment house on these lots, at a cost of $100,000. If the improvement is a suitable one, the land and the improvement together will probably be worth more than $160,000, because the land will, to a certain extent, have increased in value, by reason of the improvement made upon it.

Let us also assume that this increase in value is $10,000 and that the entire property is worth $170,000. Now, apply the law of untaxing improvements. If no tax whatever is made on the improvement, which cost $100,000, the only thing remaining will be the value of the land. How can one say that the vacant land has increased in value to the extent of $10,000

It might be just as well to say that the improvement increased in value from $100,000 to $110,000. All that we know is that the whole property, land and improvement taken together, is, after the completion of the improvement, worth $170,000. It is impossible to separate the value of the land from that of the improvement upon it, and from time immemorial, the experience of mankind has recognized this fact, and permanent improvements have been uniformly regarded by the law of all civilized countries as real estate, inseparable from the land upon which they are made.

If the scheme of the proposed law is to put a tax on $170,000, and then assess that whole tax on the land alone, the improvement will not be untaxed, because the same person owns both the land and the improvement; and if he has to pay a tax on $170,000, it will be immaterial to him on what theory the tax is adjusted.

The scheme, therefore, must be to tax only the value of the land, and to figure an increase in the value of the land alone, by reason of the improvement. Since it is impossible, in actual practice, to figure any increase in the vacant land alone, exclusive of the improvement, the scheme is chimerical and impracticable.

The Death Rate.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

We hear a great deal from uplifters about the decreasing death rate, coupled with the remark that it is worth all it costs in social service at city expense. If people don't die in New York any more, it must be because they move away before it's time. For we certainly all die sometime and somewhere, now as ever.

The simple fact in the case is that the death rate is not a true barometer of the state of health or the longevity of the people in a rapidly growing and overflowing city like New York. As every real estate man knows, a great many persons when they acquire age and means retire more or less from the activities of city life. Either they go back to their old home, or they settle in the surrounding country. Thousands of them, and they are never numbered among the city's dead.

Never before have so many people moved from city to country as during the last decade. And never has New York absorbed so many young immigrants. It follows that in a great metropolis where the population is constantly shifting, flowing in and flowing out, that vital statistics have not the same normal meaning as in a smaller and more stable community. A city from whence the old people like to move away, and which receives a large immigration of young people annually, is bound to have a low death rate under normal sanitary conditions.—T. P. W.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD.

The Advisory Council's Policy of Co-operation Bearing Fruit.

Since every reasonable objection was raised to extravagant expenses of the city by real estate associations at the recent hearings on the budget, the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests considers it absolutely necessary that, during the coming year, every effort be made either to pass a home rule bill, by which these expenditures will be absolutely under the supervision of the city, or that these mandatory requirements in the city budget will be amended by corrective legislation. The council feels that no more important work could be undertaken by property owners than the passage of such amelioratory laws. The criticism of a city budget is a difficult matter, and every objection must be absolutely grounded upon substantial fact. Too often real estate bodies have overlooked the importance of a thorough investigation of a question which they hoped to raise. It is the plan of the council within the next year to amalgamate and fuse these associations which are now interested in reducing the city's expenditures so that a permanent committee will be formed to take up the city budget and devote many months to analytical examination of the figures and facts presented by each city department. By such a method a strong case in behalf of the property owner might be presented at the next hearing on the budget in 1915. In the meantime every effort will be made to relieve the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the mandatory restrictions now imposed upon it.

The council has decided to appoint a sub-committee to co-operate with the Mayor's committee on taxation in ascertaining new sources of revenue for the city. There is no doubt that real estate is now overweighted with taxation and it is required to bear more than its fair share of supplying the necessary funds for financing the city. This committee will make its report direct to the Mayor's committee on taxation. The advisory staff of experts of the council will assist this committee in its investigations, and it is hoped that some definite and constructive suggestions for proper taxation from new sources will thereby be recommended.

The council has requested the Mayor to take some action with reference to the consolidation of building inspection departments in the city. The State Factory Investigating Commission has already proposed a tentative plan, but inasmuch as all but one of the departments involved are directly under the jurisdiction of the city, it is considered essential that the local administration arrive at some plan by which these various departments may be united under one head. It has been recommended that a commission be appointed by the city, to take some definite action in this respect, for unless the city and State officials work consistently towards a common goal, little will be accomplished. To merely have the State investigate this question of the inspection evil, and recommend remedies, will not be nearly so effective as with both the city and the State working out their respective plans, and then ultimately endeavoring to amalgamate them.

The Overinspection Evil.

(From the Brooklyn Eagle.)

We want and have a right to demand one, and only one, inspection department to see that buildings are constructed, altered and operated in accordance with law. One certificate from this department should cover everything. Any attempt to save jobs for swarms of inspectors in multifarious departments is begging the real question. It is political in animus and pernicious in possible effect. The Factory Commission may as well understand the public feeling at once. If it does not understand that feeling, we are sure the next Legislature will be made to comprehend the range of the evil and the range of the needed relief legislation.

A YEAR'S WORK.

Annual Report of the Real Estate Board a Record of Devotion to Public Welfare.

The annual report of the board of governors of the Real Estate Board has this year unusual interest. In its printed form it makes a pamphlet of forty pages or more and details the varied and notably efficient activities of the official board and the numerous committees. It was a year of great usefulness to the public, and one long to be remembered in the annals of the board.

The report tells first about the growth of membership and the expansion of secretarial work, and then it takes up for consideration the work of the standing and special committees. In an appendix is a financial statement and a long list of new members. It will be noted that the Committee on Legislation and Taxation was alert to defeat a number of bills in the Legislature inimical to property holders. Especially important and fruitful were the unremitting labors of the Industrial and Building Code Committee, the Committee on Simplifying the Inspection of Buildings, the Committee on Labor Law Work, and the committees on Fire Limits, Billboard Ordinance, Safety First, Income Tax, Federal War Tax, Harlem Property, Mortgage Loans, Real Estate Laws, Public Sites and Improvements, Telephone Charges, Torrens Titles, and Workmen's Compensation Law—all of which committees accomplished definite results.

Other committees were also all at work all the year on board matters, and there was scarcely an important question affecting real estate that was not watched or considered by some committee. In regard to the city budget the painstaking work that is being carried forward is within the knowledge of all our readers. Never have taxpayers of New York had so much done on their account as during the past year. To give credit where it is due would necessitate the naming of a large number of self-sacrificing and influential members. It can be inferred that a very large part of the work was done under the direct leadership of President Laurence McGuire himself, and that much devolved upon the able executive secretary, Richard O. Chittick. On the whole, the annual report of 1914 is one that can be handed down to the next generation with justifiable pride.

A New Book on Queens.

A new 128-page book entitled "Queens Borough" will be issued early in January, 1915, by the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, which will set forth the great industrial development which has taken place in the past two years, the progress in the construction of rapid transit lines into the various sections of the borough, and the thousands of new homes of every description that have been erected.

The book will be published under the direction of a manufacturing and industrial committee of the chamber, of which Burton Thompson is chairman, and 4,000 copies will be distributed. It will contain interesting articles on every phase of the growth of the borough, and also contain many attractive illustrations. As a supplement to the book there will be inserted a new rapid transit map showing in three colors the dual subway system and the extensions into Queens. This map will also show the relative distances and time of travel from all boroughs to the center of Manhattan.

Walter I. Willis, secretary of the chamber, who is now at work compiling the data for the publication, stated today:

"We propose to show the tremendous development that has taken place throughout the borough in the past two years since the first book of this character was published by us in 1913. The book will be of the greatest value to all business interests of the borough, as it will set forth the industrial, commercial, financial, residential and general progress that has been made. Copies of the book 'Queens Borough' published in 1913 have been sent to all parts of the United States and the world."

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Final Authorization for Street Improvements.

The Board of Estimate has authorized the following improvements to be made:

Paving with granite block (preliminary pavement) Park avenue, from East 144th street to Morris avenue, near East 155th street, Bronx. Estimated cost, $23,000. The entire cost of the improvement is to be assessed upon the property benefited.

Paving with bituminous concrete (preliminary pavement) and curbing where necessary East 178th street, from Park avenue to Third avenue, Bronx. Estimated cost, $5,300. The entire cost of the improvement is to be assessed upon the property benefited.

Regulating and grading Melville street, from West Farms road to Morris Park avenue, Bronx. Estimated cost, $10,400. The entire cost of the improvement is to be assessed upon the property benefited. The city takes title on November 2, 1914, to Melville street, from Morris Park avenue to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, Bronx.

Regulating and grading Fillmore street, from Morris Park avenue to Van Nest avenue, Bronx. Estimated cost, $8,800.

Regulating and grading Overing street, from Westchester avenue to Waller avenue, Bronx. Estimated cost, $7,500. The entire cost of the improvement is to be assessed upon the property benefited.

Washington Heights District.

The following resolutions have been approved by the Local Board:

For the construction of receiving basins adjacent to the northeast corner of West 191st street and Wadsworth avenue, and the southeast corner of West 192d street and Wadsworth avenue. Recommendation of the engineer in charge of sewers. Estimated cost, $850. Assessed valuation of property benefited, $405,000.

Construction of receiving basins on the south side of West 191st street at about the west house line of Audubon avenue, and on the east side of St. Nicholas avenue at about the south house line of West 191st street. Recommendation of the engineer in charge of sewers. Estimated cost, $700. Assessed valuation of property benefited, $383,500.

Greenwich District.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in Liberty street, between Nassau street and Broadway. Recommendation of the engineer in charge of sewers, who states that the brickwork of the sewer in question is in very bad condition, and that the inside course of brickwork at the crown is missing in various places. He further states that the joints at the sides and below the spring line are soft and that the bricks are loose. The sewer is a very old one, having been built in 1846. Estimated cost, $8,950. Estimated cost if work is done at night and the trench bridged over during the day time, $10,200. Assessed valuation of property within probable area of assessment, $11,125,000.

Alteration and improvement to sewer in Wall street, between Broadway and William street. Recommendation of the engineer in charge of sewers, who states that the brickwork in this sewer is in a very bad condition and that the crown has fallen out at frequent intervals. This sewer was built in 1848. Estimated cost, $15,000. Estimated cost if work is done at night and the trench bridged over during the day time, $17,250. Assessed valuation of property within probable area of assessment, $50,875,000.

Morrisania District.

Text of the U. S. War Tax Law.

That section of the War Tax Bill which levied a stamp tax upon mortgages or pledges upon land, and which was eliminated after argument upon the mortgage question by the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, before the Senate Finance committee, is as follows:

"Mortgage or pledge, of lands, estate, or property, real or personal, heritable, or movable, whatsoever, where the same shall be made as a security for payment of any definite and certain sum of money, lent at the time or previously due and owing or foreborne to be paid, being payable; also any conveyance of any lands, estate, or property whatsoever, in trust to be sold or otherwise converted into money, which shall be intended only as security, either by express stipulation or otherwise; on any of the foregoing exceeding $1,000 and not exceeding $1,500, 25 cents; and on each $500 or fractional part thereof in excess of $1,500, 25 cents; Provided, That upon each and every assignment or transfer of a mortgage, or policy of insurance, or the renewal or continuance of any agreement, or contract, a stamp duty shall be required and paid at the same rate as that imposed on the original instrument."

Auditing the State's Business.

This year has seen in operation for the first time under the present constitution a working plan for making a real and effective audit of the State's business. Controller Sohmer, enforcing statutes enacted at his request, passes upon every contract exceeding $1,000 before it can be made an obligation against the State. He must receive notice of every liability, no matter what its amount, and finally he passes upon the claims themselves when presented for payment. During the last year many thousands of dollars have been saved by the pruning of accounts in the Controller's office, but hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved by the new policy which permits the Controller to stop the creation of unnecessary and illegal obligations against the State. The value of the reforms is found in the fact that the cash surplus in the treasury October 1, 1914, is $12,303,000, instead of $5,563,000, which was estimated at the beginning of the year.

The fiscal year before Mr. Sohmer assumed office, the revenues from the transfer inheritance tax amounted to $8,212,735. This year they are $11,162,478.40. The revenues from the corporation tax in 1910 were $9,123,738. This year they are $11,634,000.84. What Controller Sohmer has done for the State's business he has done to a large degree for the several municipalities of the State. He instituted in the several second class cities of the State a uniform system of accounting which has been adopted in many cities throughout the country.

The Controller attempted to secure legislation which would make impossible conditions which arose in the case of the Siegel failure, and this year he succeeded in having the Legislature adopt his recommendations and place in the Banking Law provisions which will, in the future, give security for all the deposits of the hundreds of thousands of small depositors who have been doing business in private banks.

Trend to the Suburbs.

In the present financial situation real estate men agree that both city real estate and suburban real estate show a greater average increase in value, as demonstrated by assessments, and therefore produce a better dividend, than railroads or industrials. The increase of value in the more desirable suburban districts is a healthy one. The population of the city will double during the next twenty years, according to estimates compiled, and this means that the suburban area as well as the city itself must help in providing homes for five million additional persons.

The opening of the subway to the Bronx, in 1904, caused the upbuilding of that borough until now Bronx Park is surrounded by apartment houses, whereas before it was a wilderness. Now that the new subway routes are planned for Brooklyn and Queens the growth of the city must necessarily be compelled eastward as well as northward; for rapid transit is now locating population, whereas heretofore population determined transit. The growth of New York is now such a hugh problem that with the growth that is manifesting itself in Queens has come an overflow into Nassau County, and the latter influx of population is showing itself the more strongly at the easiest points of traffic loading and unloading, such as along the main line of the Long Island Railroad, the Long Beach and the Montauk divisions.

Doing Good Service.

The Real Estate Association of the State of New York, M. Morgenthau, Jr., president, has appointed a committee on the State Constitutional Convention, to see that real estate interests are guarded.

The Allied Real Estate Interests will be active this winter as usual, especially in opposition to single tax measures, should any appear before the Legislature.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Outside of the fact that the real estate market is generally quiet, pre-election week is rarely one of activity, and the present one is not an exception. There is a feeling among many brokers that as soon as the money market becomes easy that there will be some increased buying, though real activity is not looked for until business conditions improve throughout the country. From a monetary standpoint there are several things which are favorable; the banks have been steadily increasing their surpluses during the last few weeks until now the total compares favorably with corresponding weeks for the last two years. Though the savings banks, which have tremendous sums out on real estate mortgages, are still operating under the sixty-day clause, still the amount released weekly has been considerably increased in several of the institutions. The large withdrawals, during the latter part of August and September, were, in most cases, entirely justifiable, inasmuch as the money was needed to supply those in actual want. There was no panic resulting from any fears based upon the unsoundness of any of the banks.

Conspicuous among the deals closed during the week was the leasing of the Cosmopolitan Hotel property, at Chambers street and West Broadway, to an unnamed lessee for twenty-one years, at a graduated rental. The property is a landmark in the section but has been vacant for some time. Another important transaction concerns a large addition to the extensive holdings of Columbia University, which has completed assembling of an entire block, near the college grounds.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 18 as against 16 last week and 18 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 8 as compared with 4 last week and 11 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 10 as compared with 12 last week and 7 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 124 as against 122 last week, 14 having stated considerations totaling $485,100. Mortgages recorded this week number 50, involving $2,324,940, as against 74 last week, totaling $2,205,937.

From the Bronx, 9 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 12 last week and 3 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $706,058, compared with $671,123 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $34,811,049. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $1,056,669 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Oct. 25, 1913, was $44,134,275.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

On a single bid of $200,000, Leon Malraison, acting for interested parties, became the owner of the eleven-story loft building at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 14th street, on plot 100x103.3, leasehold. The property was sold to satisfy a judgment of about $385,000 obtained by the Van Beuren estate against Henry Corn. It was one of the first of a number of loft structures erected by Mr. Corn some years ago on Fifth avenue.

The Continental Hotel at the southeast corner of Broadway and 41st street is to be sold at auction, on November 19, by Joseph P. Day, as the result of an action brought by Florence L. Mabie against the Forty-first Street Realty Company and others, to foreclose a mortgage. The Continental is nine and ten stories in height and occupies a plot which is part leasehold. The fee portion is the immediate corner, 31.2x93.4; the adjoining leasehold being 22.11 on Broadway by 80 in the street. The structure which was built about twenty-five years ago, was recently extensively renovated. It was originally known as the Vendome and was later called the Albany.

WARNING TO ARCHITECTS.

Robert J. Moorehead, Superintendent of Buildings of the Bronx, has advised all architects and builders that no plans will be approved hereafter unless reinforced concrete braces are shown connecting the pile clusters and walls together where practical in order to insure all possible rigidity to the footings. This advice was issued owing to the fact that cracks have developed in several buildings where same have been erected on pile foundations. An investigation has shown that one of the causes was a lateral movement of the piles owing to lack of resistance of the ground through which they were driven.

KEEPING UNDESIRABLE TENANTS OUT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

SUCCESSFUL building management may be measured in two ways: full tenancy without regard to character of occupants or by character of tenancy without regard to immediate cash income. The former takes no account of reputation for the building. The latter makes a good name a tangible asset in the years when the other building will have been overshadowed by taller structures and more favorable rating as a business address by business houses in general. One makes for quick turnover of money invested, but the other insures permanency of income. Three hypothetical instances may be cited to illustrate the difference.

An Example.

Let us say that "A" is a building in the heart of the retail shopping center of Manhattan. It is new, modern and well located with respect to transportation lines, both urban and suburban. It was filled completely six months after completion and has remained so. It has a waiting list made up of indiscriminate firms, some sound and some shady as to business policy. The rule is "first come, first served, but be sure the firm has money enough to pay its rent promptly." Scrutiny of tenants is perfunctory. References are demanded, of course, but this is done primarily to avoid delinquencies.

The other case is "B," a prominent downtown office building, not always 100 per cent. filled. This is because the Board of Directors insists upon protecting its street number. None but the best rated firms can rent office space there, no matter what premium they offer. New firms seeking offices must undergo rigid investigation. Six months after this building was erected the management could have filled it, providing all applications were admitted. If dollars in the till had been the policy of the Board instead of determination to make for the building a spotless reputation for integrity of firms using its address, a temporary financial success would doubtless have resulted, but a great name would have by this time been dragged in the dust of commercial disrepute.

Well Defined Policy.

Another case is that of "C," a modern fireproof loft building in the new uptown jobbing and retail district. Here the policy of "B" has been carried out on an even larger scale. Instead of renting merely suites of offices, whole floors of something like 14,000 square feet were for lease under long terms. All about were giant new buildings also bidding for tenants, some offering liberal inducements and others making remarkable terms. But "C" never had a "To Let" sign or placard on door, sidewalk or window since it was built two years ago and yet to-day it is 90 per cent. filled with the biggest and best firms in their respective lines in the country, practically all occupying full floor space. In this case a well defined policy, rigid investigation of applicants and association with firms of undoubted repute in the business world has not only practically filled the building in a remarkably short time, but has insured to its owners the best and most profitable sort of investment return that realty can afford.

The Value of a Good Address.

Three brokers were concentrating upon a big firm that was obliged to move. The firm required large space. It wanted to get either uptown or in the financial district. If it could get uptown it would bring its distributing force here. If it could not find what it wanted it would retain its executive offices here and operate distribution from the West. The three brokers represented the three hypothetical buildings cited, and the character of their replies to the question: "Is it a good address?" revealed the type of building each represented. One answered:

"Yes. It is near the principal transportation lines, in the new shopping district and has good natural lighting facilities." The answers of the other two brokers were identical. They merely said: "Yes, we keep the crooks out."

Method of Investigation.

An officer of a great Wall street institution said the other day that when a proposition came to him from firms in buildings typified by "A" he invariably turns on all the investigating machinery at his command to ascertain the character, not only of the firm, but of the personnel behind it. Firms whose letterheads bear the address of reputable buildings, like "B" and "C," are immediately accredited with a good rating because of the common knowledge that none but first class, thoroughly investigated firms ever could have found accommodation therein.

So are the buildings in any great city known to business men, possibly future prospective tenants. One may mention any number of dubious addresses even on such streets as Broad, Wall, Fifth avenue and Broadway, but here and there throughout the city loom up stalwart commercial citadels that are bulwarks of business integrity. These are they that may not be 100 per cent. full, but they have a prestige that full coffers cannot buy. That is why they are constantly besieged by concerns of doubtful business reputation that would gladly pay premiums to have even office space within their walls. Good addresses are jealously guarded against surreptitious use and the methods employed to accomplish this result are ingenious.

Watching Advertisements.

The object of those engaged in questionable pursuits in seeking good addresses is to use the good repute of others to establish confidence. Advertisements give the best leads to the presence of the fly in the ointment of business integrity.

Obviously it is impossible for the building manager to watch all the myriads of papers and magazines, but the managers of buildings of the types "B" and "C" believe it to be part of the service they are in duty bound to render their tenants and Boards of Directors to watch these advertisements as closely as possible.

The well known building manager explained last week how he handles this problem:

"Out West there was a great company manufacturing one of the principal commodities for the table. Apparently it was a going concern. Suddenly the papers came out with an unsavory article, illustrated, concerning an officer in the company. There was police court action. The officer subsequently started business anew. He failed in the legitimate line he followed, then he took up a line of business endeavor considered shady. He came East and wanted to open an office in this building. Disguised under a euphoneous business name, duly incorporated, the point for signing the lease was reached. To all appearance it was a legitimate newly incorporated firm, organized to handle a well-known automobile accessory.

"Our board scanned the names of the officers carefully. They seemed to be good, excepting one. Further investigation was ordered. There was a day's delay asked before signing the lease and the firm and the name was subjected to further investigation. The deal did not go through.

Newspaper Notoriety.

"If every person who contemplated putting over a crooked deal knew before hand that newspaper notoriety resulting from being found out is recorded and tabulated for ready reference for just such occasions as might arise when he attempted to get back into respectable surroundings, there would be less crookedness in business. The doubtful incorporator's name, when deciphered from the twisting its bearer had given it, worked out to be identical with that of the man whose business escapades of a dozen years previously in the obscure corner of the West had been heralded far and wide.

"Of course, the incorporators wanted to know, in all righteous indignation, why space in the building was refused it. We declined to give an answer as well as the space desired, though the incorporators doubtless were innocent of the identity of their associate.

"But to show how persistent such people are; I might state that that fellow actually did get in. He did not stay very long, however, after we learned of his intrigue. A year later a young lawyer wanted space. We looked him up and found him to be all right. He took a small office. Later he found that practice was not as quick in developing as he had hoped and asked for the privilege of renting desk room. It was granted. He advertised and soon got a tenant who volunteered to share his office expenses.

Undesirable Found Out.

"Shortly afterward our attention was called to some doubtful advertising bearing our address. The advertiser proved to be the objectionable incorporator who had found accommodation for his concern elsewhere, but who had put a representative into the office of the young lawyer so as to have the advantage of our address in his mail-order business.

"If the crooks realize the value of a good address, how much more valuable is it to good, reliable business houses? A reputation for a building has to be acquired and generally its acquisition is accomplished only at the expense of heartrending carrying charges that extend over a period seemingly interminable. The temptation of the average board of directors is to fill the coffers and take a chance on the reputation and it is not always put aside."

Undesirable Methods.

In a letter sent out by a Boston builders' association, methods adopted by certain contractors to obtain competitors' figures are deplored, and the following case is cited as an example: "A general contractor's office is called on the telephone and the statement is made that an estimate had been given by the person talking, but that the latter's estimator had gone out of town carrying his estimate book with him. The general contractor is asked if he would give the amount of the estimate so that the speaker might furnish other general contractors with a bid." In an appeal to owners the letter asks them to readjust their conceptions of competition and to consider other factors outside of low bidding.

Four Degrees of Electric Light.

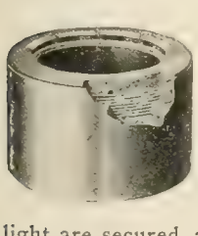
SOMETHING new in the way of a four-way electric light bulb is being put upon the market, by the Wirt Company, of Philadelphia. It is a combination of a fixture, socket, a Dim-a-lite and a shade holder. It is made to be fastened permanently to the fixture stem with threaded set screw, and wired to the chandelier or fixture in the same manner as any ordinary socket.

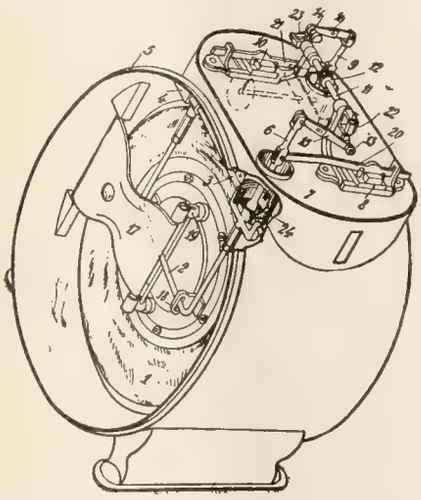


The Dim-a-lite as a portable attachment that can be easily unscrewed from the fixture socket and removed is well known. This new type was designed to meet a demand from institutions, hotels and other public places for a Dim-a-lite that could not be removed or stolen.

The symmetrical bell shape makes this Dim-a-lite an attractive socket for high class chandeliers and fixtures for residences.

The dimming features are the same as in the standard pull chain Dim-a-lite, but the operation is entirely different. Instead of pulling a chain to obtain the different degrees of light, a slight turn of the shade is all that is needed to get the five changes of light, viz.: full on, dim, low, night light, out. By giving the lamp shade one-fifth of a turn, a bright glaring light can be instantly softened to a light more restful and pleasing to the eye. The next one-fifth turn lowers the light to a dim light, suitable for a bedroom, sickroom, or nursery, etc. There is a saving of 65 per cent. in current consumption. The fourth turn gives a very low night light, such as is needed in a bathroom, or hallway, or any other place where an all-night light is needed. At this stage, there is a saving in current of 80 per cent. The fifth turn puts the light entirely out.

The dimming is effected by means of a series of helically wound resistance coils, properly insulated and connected to contact bars. The resistor drum (see below) is but 1½ inches in diameter and 1 inch long. The coils are all zero temperature resistance coefficient wire moulded under pressure in a stonelike insulating composition, known as Dielite. The wires are well protected from oxidation or mechanical injury, as the wire and Dielite form a solid body. By turning the shade, this resistor drum is rotated, and the various degrees of light are secured, as the point of contact shifts from one commutator bar to the next.



One of the most interesting features of this Dim-a-lite is that the light can be turned on and off without the use of a key or pull chain. The absence of a chain makes it a particularly neat and attractive socket for high grade brackets and chandeliers in residences, where appearance is an important consideration.

A New Type of Gas Meter.

FRENCH patents have been issued on a gas meter described by the American Gas Light Journal as a novelty in design and mechanism. The reciprocating movement of each diaphragm in this meter is transmitted to the recording mechanism by means of a stirrup, 2, which alternately swings from front to back and turns about its horizontal arm, 3. The stirrup transmits an opposite reciprocating motion to the upper extension of the rod, 6, which operates one of the slide valves, 8, and the recording mechanism of the meter. The driving gear of the two bellows is symmetrically arranged in such a way that the second rod, 9, drives the second slide valve, 10, and simultaneously acts on the recording mechanism through the intermediary of the common spindle, 11, and screw, 12, on the spindle. The spindle is rotated in one direction by means of crank pins, 13, 14, and rods, 15, 16, which connect the crank pins with the outer pivots of the rods 6 and 9.

The inner arm of the stirrup, 2, is connected to the bellows by lugs, 18, provided with slots and arranged on either end of the stirrup, 2, and perpendicularly to the pivots, 19, of the guide, 17. The stirrup, 2, thus serves, together with the guide, 17, to retain the diaphraghm so as to move always parallel to itself. It is therefore obvious that under these conditions it suffices to fasten the bar, 20 or 21, of each slide valve at a convenient point of the driving rod, 6 or 9, in order to obtain the desired displacement of the slide valve on its seat.

One of the essential features of the invention is that on each side of the driving rods, 6, 9, there is, at the centre of oscillation, where the rod traverses the wall between the slide valves and the bellows, a diaphragm, 24, of leather or other air-tight and flexible material, and fixed air-tight on the rods and on the wall, 7. Thus the metal cut out for the passage of the rod is replaced by a diaphragm so no gas can pass. Because of the moderate amplitude of oscillation the diaphragm, 24, need be only slightly bent in order to follow the movements of the rod.

Hydraulic Ash Hoist.

THREE devices that seem to have especial appeal to managers of commercial and residential buildings of New York City are manufactured by the General Elevator Company, of 29 Broadway. The illustrations show these devices. On the left is a fixed mast ash hoist and on the right is a hydraulic auxiliary dumb waiter. The center picture shows a disappearing ash hoist of novel design and great serviceability. The first can be located at any convenient point, either under the sidewalk, in the air or inside of the building, while the other must be located under the sidewalk or in the air. These hoists are especially applicable to school houses, office buildings and apartment houses, or wherever it is necessary to remove ashes and rubbish from basements. They are labor saving, quick and require practically no repairs. They are cheaper than platform type of ash shift and do not require lifting covers, often used with that type of lift. Connections can readily be made to any water supply.

The third device is especially available for private houses, hospitals and apartments. The type shown is frequently installed in connection with the existing dumb waiter car, the plunger being attached directly to the bottom of the car. This can be installed at an expense only little in excess of that required for hand power dumb waiter. They are said to be practically noiseless, quick in operation and inexpensive to maintain.

In operation the downward movement of the dumb waiter being governed by the flow of water, prevents the car from descending at too great a speed for safety. The car is automatically brought to rest at either terminal so gradually by the action of the valve that there is no danger of breaking glass, crockery or spilling liquids. It is controlled by a flexible operating rope conveniently located. A slight pull opens the valve and the water does the rest.

Taking Paraffine Out of Wood.

PARAFFINE oil can be taken out of any wood by making a very strong solution of oxalic acid in hot water. The solution must be applied hot and the floor well scrubbed with a good floor scrubbing brush, then mopped up with clean water. Of course, all old paint must be first removed from the floor before the oxalic acid will draw out the paraffine oil. If this plan seems expensive try the following: Slake four parts, by measure, of fresh lime with hot water; add eight parts soft soap and of clean, fine sand twelve parts. Mix and add enough water to make a fairly thick batter, put on floor and scour with scrubbing brush, protecting hands with gloves. Rinse well with clean water and let the floor dry.

Cleaning Terra Cotta.

SEVERAL ways of accomplishing this purpose are known, but according to the Painters Magazine the simplest method is to mix two pounds of powdered pumice and one pint of liquid ammonia with one gallon of soft coal, applying the mixture to the surface to be cleaned with a fibre wall brush, allowing it to remain about thirty minutes. Then rub briskly with a good scrubbing brush. When, after application, it shows that the compound has done its work, clean it off with lukewarm water.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Queens Continues to Attract Manufacturers and Promises to Become One of the Largest Industrial Centers in This Section

SEVERAL millions of dollars are now being expended in the construction of new factory buildings on Long Island, and from present indications the borough of Queens will ultimately become one of the largest manufacturing centers in this part of the country. All of these factories are of attractive modern design, built of reinforced concrete and with every improvement for the best working conditions among the employes. For some weeks past on an average one new factory is planned each week for Queens, and it is now estimated that there are more than 1,150 manufacturing concerns within the limits of the borough.

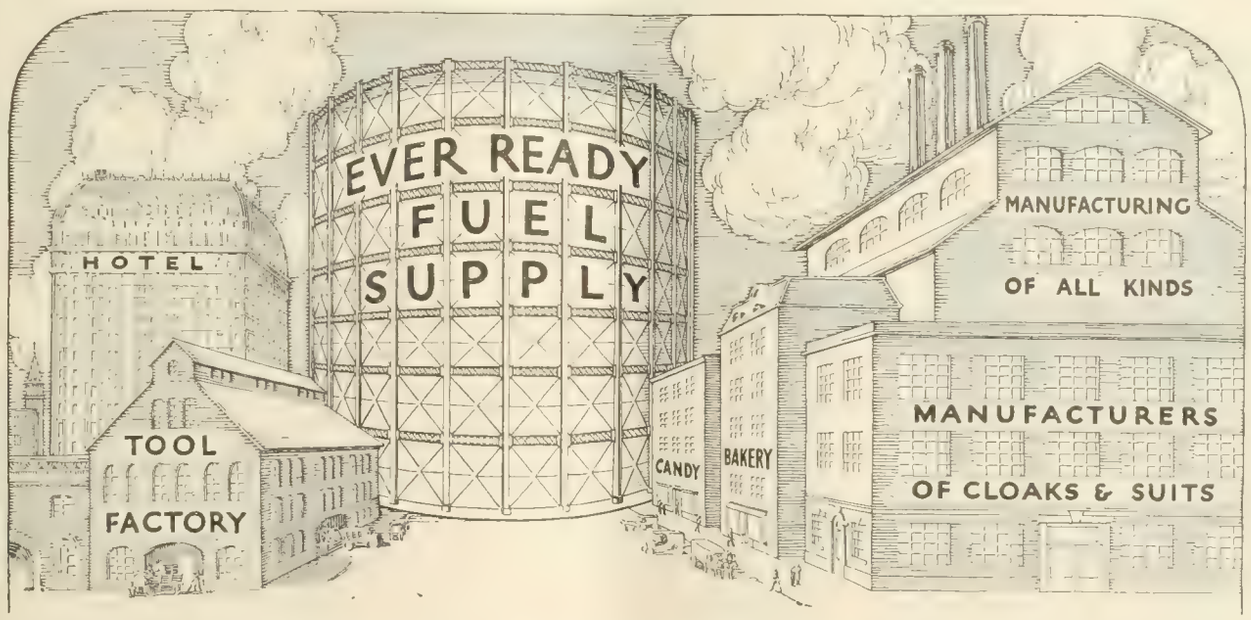
INDUSTRIAL CENTER AT LONG ISLAND CITY SHOWING SITE AND PROPOSED STRUCTURE FOR THE NATIONAL CASKET COMPANY ON JACKSON AND SECOND AVENUES.

There is no doubt that manufacturers who contemplate the erection of plants are greatly attracted to this district on account of the steady progress and possibilities afforded in the construction of the Dual Subway lines in Queens, and the inauguration of service through the Steinway Tunnel, connecting Long Island City with 42d street, Manhattan. Each plant erected adds hundreds of people to the working population, all with families to be housed within easy walking distance.

The factory for the National Casket Company, Ballinger & Perrot, architects, now nearing completion on Jackson avenue, near the Bridge Plaza, will contain about 180,000 square feet of floor area and employ nearly 600 hands. The building is five stories and basement, containing three stair towers, three large freight elevators, power plant, railroad siding, stable, garage, dry kiln, a complete system of transfer tracks and a large lumber storage yard. The New York Consolidated Card Company factory just completed, at Webster and Fourth avenues, where playing cards are manufactured, has about 200,000 square feet of floor space, the plot measuring 457 by 70 feet in size. The concern will employ about 700 people. The addition to the Ford Company's service building now under way on Jackson avenue and Honeywell street, which when completed will contain more than 1,000,000 square feet of floor space, will employ 1,200 men.

The American Ever Ready Works has 420,000 square feet of floor space and will employ 1,500 hands. The Standard Oil Company has just placed a contract with H. D. Best & Company for the erection of a reinforced concrete factory, 145 by 300 feet, at the Devoe Works, Long Island City, to cost $200,000. J. Odell Whitenack has recently taken the contract to erect a five-story factory, 90 by 161 feet, at Williams street and Harris avenue, for Frederick Ayer, of Boston, which has been leased to the Sterling Gum Company, of Manhattan. The cost is placed at $150,000.

This week plans were completed by T. J. Reidy, Long Island City, for a brick storage building to be erected on Hamilton street, 100 feet south of Pierce avenue, for A. Sbano; also a five-story loft on Sunswick street, south of Payntar avenue, for Touroff & Karp, Inc., and a three-story storage building 376 by 90 feet on Duryea street, on the Newtown creek, for the Standard Oil Company.



George W. Braunsdorf, of Manhattan, has plans prepared by E. L. McCracken, College Point, for a five-story factory at the southeast corner of Webster and Sixth avenues; Anna S. Anabel, of Morristown, New Jersey, a brick carpet factory, 200 by 138 feet, at the northeast corner of Webster and Seventh avenues, from plans by Henry J. Horwitz, Manhattan. The cost is specified at $80,000.

The factory for the American Bar Lock Company, makers of skylights at Borden avenue near Heyward street, was recently completed. Construction is of slow burning type, 75 by 180 feet in size and is set upon wood-pile foundations, designed so as to permit the erection of several additional stories in the future.

Other new plants recently constructed or now under way in this vicinity are the factories of the Loose-Wiles Company, Pierce-Arrow Company, General Vehicle Company, Columbia Paper Bag Company, New York Telephone Company, Neptune Meter Company, Goodyear Rubber Company and the Packard Motor Company.

The most important factor to be considered by a manufacturing establishment in locating its plant is the question of labor supply. New York is undoubtedly the best labor market in the country, for in it are gathered together the greatest number of skilled mechanics and cheap labor, which number is constantly being added to by immigration. In addition to the quantity and quality of the labor supply, however, there must be considered the question of large available plots for building sites with land values low enough and accommodations for the best shipping facilities.

The completion of the work according to the Public Service Commission, on the Steinway Tunnel, is 34 per cent.; extension of Steinway Tunnel to Bridge Plaza 21 per cent.; Bridge Plaza Transfer Station 33 per cent.; Astoria extension 100 per cent.; extension to Woodside and Corona 79 per cent.; Liberty avenue elevated 37 per cent.; Myrtle avenue extension to Ridgewood 100 per cent. Seven contracts have been awarded to date, aggregating in cost $5,601,000.

The Modern Business Building Is the Building Piped for Gas

While erecting a new or remodeling an old building, you cannot afford to omit gas pipes.

You are building for the future as well as for the present.

There are hundreds of buildings in New York City that are hives of industry, but were originally built as private residences.

The tenantry of your building—as to the character of its business—may go through kaleidoscopic changes within a comparatively few months. You have seen such changes !

With gas pipes provided, your building is ready for occupancy for any number of tenants in their various industrial pursuits. You are prepared to take care of a Luncheon Club or a Restaurant on an upper floor. Gas fuel—unlike other fuels—needs no storage room. It banishes Rubbish.

Put the gas-pipes in now and not later on when the expense is far greater and the inconvenience is considerable. The cost for gas-piping is a small item.

Have one of our Engineers consult with you, Mr. Architect or Mr. Owner.

THE NEW PLUMBING ORDINANCE.

A substitute ordinance has been prepared to meet, so far as possible, the criticisms that were brought out at the public hearing held October 8 by the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen upon the new Plumbing Regulations, in pursuance of the duty of revising the local building code.

In addition to changes made to meet these criticisms, changes were made all through the ordinance in the language after consultation with the Corporation Counsel's office. These verbal changes do not change the substance of the ordinance, but are intended to make the provisions a little clearer and to eliminate unnecessary verbiage. (See Record and Guide, Sept. 26, page 507.)

In Section 1, the last paragraph was altered to meet the criticism that, as previously written, it would not be clear what was intended by "fifty per cent. of the existing work."

Section 4 (referring to separate toilets) of the ordinance as previously presented is entirely omitted, as its provisions are found to be sufficiently well covered in the Tenement House and Labor Laws.

Sections 7 and 8 (enacting classes) of the previous draft were combined into one, and now forms Section 6 of the substitute ordinance. These provisions were very thoroughly discussed with Assistant Corporation Counsel O'Brien who has had very extensive practice in handling violation cases for the Bureau of Buildings.

Extension of Time.

The Public Service Commission has granted an extension of time for three months for the completion of Section No. 1 of Route No. 11-B, that part of the Fourth Avenue subway extension in Brooklyn lying between 43rd and 61st streets; and for nine months on Section No. 2 of the same route, lying between 61st and 86th streets. The extension for Section No. 1 is to January 4, 1915, and for Section No. 2 to July 4, 1915. The Degnon Contracting Company is the contractor for both sections. This does not mean that there will be any delay in the operation of the Fourth Avenue subway early next year, as planned. That subway is already completed to 43rd street, and the extension of time on the first section, namely, between 43rd and 61st streets, is only to January 4, 1915. The Sea Beach line, now being reconstructed, joins the Fourth Avenue subway at about 65th street, and the contractors intend to push the work on the upper part of Section No. 2 so as to complete that section by the same time.

Impervite Waterproofing.

An interesting case of waterproofing at the Hibernia Magnetite mine, in New Jersey, was described in the August Bulletin of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, in the Engineering Record, by S. L. Wise and W. Strache. The tunnel was formerly closed by a mass of rock which leaked about six gallons a minute. It was decided to replace this by reinforced concrete, which was waterproofed as follows:

The pressure face of the bulkhead was covered with three inches of Impervite waterproofing compound deposited behind steel plates built up with the concrete. The work was not continuous and whenever it was interrupted sharp stones weighing about one hundred pounds each were set six inches apart in the upper surface of the concrete mass projecting from it and plastered with 1:1 mortar when work was resumed. When the roof was reached false forms were placed and the work was finished with tightly bonded dovetailed blocks. Seven two-inch grout pipes, four on the pressure side and three on the opposite side, were placed in the concrete as the work neared completion. Thirty-six hours after the concrete was finished grout made with 1½ parts of sand and 1 part of cement mixed with water-dissolved Impervite was forced through the pipe under a pressure of 85 pounds per square inch. Two weeks after the completion of the bulkhead it was subjected to a pressure of 160 pounds per square inch. The result was a seepage of only one-half gallon at first, and this afterward almost entirely ceased.

Those Ridgewood Fire-Escapes.

The last word from the Tenement House Department in respect to requiring fire-escapes to be attached to two-story dwellings when occupied by four families is that the law plainly provides for such exits and cannot be evaded. The cost is estimated at $40 per house when there must be a fire-escape both front and rear. Reports from Ridgewood and Coney Island, where houses of that type abound, are to the effect that the department inspectors are not overpressing in the matter, for the time being at least, perhaps in expectation of some reasonable amendment by the next Legislature. There are cases, however, as where houses are built on a declivity, and the second-story windows in the rear are so far above ground, that jumping from the window in an emergency would be perilous for women and little children.

Universal Film Co. Building Factory.

Universal Film Co., Carl Laemmle, president, 1600 Broadway, New York City, have begun the erection of a studio building and manufacturing plant at Leonia Heights, N. J. The buildings will be of brick and hollow tile, and will be strictly fireproof. The studio will be 60 feet in height and will occupy a plot 150x200 feet. The manufacturing building will be one story with basement, 66x145 feet. The plans were prepared privately under the direction of the owners and the work is being done by Edward B. Kinsella, 228 West 42d street, general contractor. The operation represents an expenditure of approximately $200,000.

Municipal Building for West New York.

George T. Martin (Inc.), of 110 West 40th street, New York City, has been awarded the general contract to erect the municipal building for West New York, N. J., at a cost approximating $75,000. The building will be located at the corner of 16th street and Taylor place. It will be of brick and terra cotta, three stories in height, and will cover a plot 75x180 feet. The plans and specifications were prepared by Wm. Mayer, Jr., architect, 693 Bergenline avenue, West New York.

The structure will be located at 6 East 3d street and will cost about $400,000. Jackson, Rosencrans & Waterbury, architects, 1328 Broadway, prepared the plans and specifications and R. D. Kimball Co., 15 West 38th street, is the steam and electric engineer.

Edison Service Improves the Home

The apartment house owner's light and power problem is ever a serious one, especially so to those owners who are striving to increase profits by general economies

But Edison Service has proved a wonderful "first aid to economy." Take the case of 525 Park Avenue, where they have just started erecting a magnificent 13-story apartment house. The owner signed a contract for Edison Service before ground was even broken. And his faith in the Central Station will never be broken

Were you to request an Edison Estimate to cover your individual case, it might agreeably surprise you. Why not ask for one today?

Brevity.

How many persons use 3,000 words where 300 would suffice? If they have a question to ask they take five minutes to come to the point. If they have something to explain it's worse.—Real Estate Bulletin.

Turning Brick Pavements.

Brick pavements which had worn to an undesirable extent in Savannah, Ga., have been reconstructed by turning the brick upside down, with very successful results. Last year one stretch of 10,400 square yards was turned in this way at a cost of $3,490.39, or 33.5 cents per square yard, of which 25 cents was for labor and 8½ cents for material.

Cost of Driving Piles with a Gasoline Hoist.

The cost of driving 1,300 piles with a 6½ H.P. gasoline engine operating a 1,650-lb. drop hammer is reported in the Engineering Record to be 18.2 cents per lineal foot of pile in place, including the cost of the pile. The costs are itemized as follows: Cost of piles delivered, $1,432.80; labor, $1,653.93; engine and hoisting outfit, $340; scow, $154.45. The piles were driven from a scow on which the engine was mounted, and were driven to an average depth of 13.15 ft. The cost of the piles alone was 7.5 cents per linear foot.

Increase in Freight Rates.

A five per cent. advance in freight rates which went into effect this week in the central territory, and which affects about one-third of the whole volume of freight traffic, is some reason why the railroads should cheer up and get busy with betterment plans. Coal, cement and plaster are not affected by the new schedule, which was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission on Aug. 1. The commission at the present time is deliberating over a request from the railroads for permission to raise the rates on the remaining two-thirds of freight traffic, but the permission will come with less grace now than if it had been granted long ago.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

RELEASE OF $500,000,000 BY GOVERNMENT THROUGH RESERVE BANKS EXPECTED TO STIMULATE BUILDING LOANS HERE

Prices of Materials Low and Loose—
Sentiment Better—Steel Inquiry Keener

SENTIMENT in the building material, construction and supply trades is more favorable. November will open with another step gained in the direction of unrestricted trade with the belligerent nations through the British easement allowed in placing cotton outside of the contrabands of war. There is more trading in securities on the "gentlemen's agreement" plan, pending the attempt to re-open the Stock Exchange, and the promise of the early release of half a million dollars through the establishment of the Federal Reserve system, certainly ought to inject confidence into business in general, and especially into those who supply capital for building construction.

New insurance policies written on completed buildings, or upon buildings in actual course of erection, reveal a slump in value compared with last year's figures, indicating to builders and building material people that construction is still decidedly hampered because of conditions in the money market.

Wholesale interests report a feeble buying movement. There are cases cited in some sections where dealers have withdrawn previous quotations and are taking business on the flat basis of current demand. This is not so much because of fear of advance in price, as because of a desire to meet shading where shading is done.

There is a strenuous eagerness for new business. Credits are liberal and collections are slow. This has a disturbing influence in wholesale buying because manufacturers are up against the problem of either sustaining their customers at the expense of their output or closing. Manufacturers have found that their banks have not been free in honoring notes or making loans on contracts.

The promise of Secretary McAdoo that the Federal Reserve system would become operative on November 16 instead of November 30 injects new hope into business and material men. The unpleasant outlook incidental from the previous announcement from Washington that the reserve act would not become operative until the first of December seemed to be about the last straw on the backs of an already harrassed trade.

Now the situation seems brighter. The new act will enable the Secretary of the Treasury to deposit a large part of the money held in the general fund of the Treasury and, in his discretion, the revenue of the government in the reserve banks. The establishment of the system probably will have more to do with disposing of the financial problems confronting the United States at this time than any other plans that have been discussed. Under the present system of scattered reserves held in individual banks in reserve centres the stored financial resources of the country have been held largely in a fixed state, and have not been available in times of stress because of their lack of the character of mobility.

Assurances were given the Record and Guide that as soon as the Reserve Banks are in operation the Secretary of the Treasury will transfer to them as large an amount of government funds as possible. It may amount to half a billion. This will in turn enable them to extend large credits to national banks and state banks which may become members of the Federal Reserve system, which they may in turn extend to their customers. By this means and through the agency of the Federal Reserve banks it is hoped to give additional assistance to that already given by the Treasury Department to the cotton producers, the cotton industry and to all commodity industries as well.

This strengthening of the reserve banks will permit banks to recover some of the funds they have had to use to cover securities held in reserve banks while they have been unable to negotiate other securities owing to the fact that there was no official price for same. If $500,000,000 are made available either directly or indirectly to banks they will be enabled to tide over the present pressure until the Stock Exchange opens or at least permit business to proceed to an extent sufficient to make up for the slump in savings deposits and the tendency to hoard.

It is confidently believed by big New York building lenders that just as soon as securities can be turned over building construction will proceed at a satisfactory rate.

Plan filings for the week in all five boroughs were reported by the various bureaus of buildings as follows: In the corresponding week last year there were 160 new building plans filed valued at $1,655,455.

STEEL.

Prices Drop on Eve of New Financial System's Introduction as Stimulant

FABRICATED steel business felt a slight improvement in inquiry late this week, following a drop in prices to 1.21 to 1.26c, tidewater. Whether this activity will develop into something permanent at the lower prices cannot be foretold, but it was taken as an indication that operations that have been held up owing to tightness of money could be encouraged to go ahead after the establishment of the Federal reserve system becomes operative.

The eyes of every building material man in the district are focused upon the steel market, for in this department will appear the first definite sign of returning prosperity to the trade. The cutting of the steel dividend has no direct bearing upon the market, the action being prompted by past performances, not upon the volume of current business. Construction tonnages have been low, too low, in fact, they warrant the directors in maintaining the dividend level fixed when orders were free and construction work was on the increase.

The mills have been reduced to between 40 and 50 per cent. of capacity. In the opinion of steel experts consulted this week, this is almost as low as it is possible for the mills to operate at anything like a profit. Unfilled tonnage has been reduced to what is considered a negligible quantity and, pending the relinquishment of building funds leashed by reason of inability to negotiate securities, there was nothing to do but bring the dividends down to the level of actual earnings.

Current demand is what counts most, and this is what the week just closing developed: The Hinkle Iron Works have a contract for supplying 400 tons for public school No. 55, in the Bronx, and 250 tons for the Talmed-Torah school, on 57th street. The Middleton Construction Company has taken the order for 1,100 tons of shapes for the Evander Childs high school in the Bronx, and Norcross Brothers are taking bids as general contractors for 1,000 tons for the Colony Club building. The Eastern Steel Company closed for 2,500 tons for the mercantile building that is to be erected at 35th street and Broadway. The Stewart Arcade building on lower Broadway will require 600 tons and a hospital in Brooklyn, the addition to the Hotel McAlpin and other minor operations will take about 2,500 tons more.

LUMBER.

England's Demand for 600 Portable Houses May Stimulate France.

ENGLAND is already reaching out to America for building materials. A Bay City, Michigan, lumber manufacturer, who has an agent in this city for the distribution of being the first American manufacturer to receive a building material order from abroad since the war began. This manufacturer is trying to get together about 2,000,000 feet of building grade hemlock, spruce and pine to fill the specifications of the English Government for 600 portable houses to be shipped to the British Isles to house Belgium refugees.

The Record and Guide has authority for the statement that England will be in the American market for flashing, composition roofing material, prepared plaster, steel partition block, clay flues and window glass. Brick specifications are being prepared, it was stated.

There are 18,000 persons to be housed. There are no able-bodied builders available in England. There are no mills operating to supply the material. All the railroads have been taken over for the transfer of war munitions and food stuffs. There is not a brick plant, a cement plant, a lumber yard or a quarry that is operating in all of England today. All the available brick has been requisitioned, together with the cement in store, for army fortifications and other military structures. Hence the call for this sort of supply from abroad.

Similar orders may be expected from France and possibly Germany. There have been single days when 1,400 houses have been destroyed. In the town of Termonde, one of the razed cities of Belgium, out of 1,500 houses not 100 remain standing. Louvain had 3,900 houses. There are 600 remaining after the battle. So the list could be amplified, through France, Belgium, Prussia, Poland and Austria and, if the Allies succeed in driving the Germans back into their own country, hundreds more cities and towns will be in similar plights.

GLASS.

Manufacturing Operations Will Be Resumed Monday.

MANUFACTURE of window glass will be resumed on Monday, following the settlement of the wage scale at the long-continued conference of window glass manufacturers and workers just closed. This conference has granted an advance in wages amounting to 5 per cent. and upward, according to the extent of the contemplated uplift in prices.

PAINTS.

Ingredients Are Hard to Get, but Slight Demand Keeps Prices Low.

PAINT ingredients are hard to get in this country at present, and the result is a rather complex condition in the paint market. Manufacturing interests are said to be paying fancy sums for some raw materials, but the slump in the price of linseed oil has helped to equalize quotations in the finished product.

BRICK.

Registered Unloading Heavier Than Last Week.

ASIDE from the fact that registered unloading was more active this week than last the common brick market was without feature. Buying is close to arrivals and is mostly for current needs. High grade brick brings its price while ordinary grades are being shaded. Brick movements reflect fully the present trend of the entire building material market.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Oct. 29, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

UPSTATE COUNTIES THRIVING OFF THE CITY

Unjust Taxes Imposed Upon the City of New York by the Assessors of the Taxing Districts in the Catskill Watershed

By IRA J. ETTINGER
Executive Secretary, United Real Estate Owners' Associations

ONE of the most important subjects which is now engaging the attention of the Taxation Committee of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations is the grave and serious injustice done to the City of New York by the local assessors in about twenty towns in which the aqueduct property recently acquired by the City of New York is situate, in placing assessments against the City of New York in utter disregard of the value of the property and including in such valuations dams and aqueducts above or below the ground including in many cases tunnels far beneath the surface and taking the cost of the construction as the basis for the assessment.

This unjust imposition affects every taxpayer in the city. For the year 1913 increases in assessed valuation amounted to twenty-two and a half millions of dollars upon the holdings which the city acquired for the Catskill water supply purposes alone; and this increase represents solely the value of construction work and reflects no increased worth in the land.

In the whole United States there are only two commonwealths, namely, Massachusetts and New York, where such a species of taxation exists. In the State of New Jersey it has always been the law, as it has been in all of the other commonwealths, that a water supply is a public necessity and must be provided by the State for the people of its separate municipalities, in order to enable them to exist. Under the old common law no property used for water supply in the State of New York was taxed, no matter where it was located in the State, but this was changed by Chapter 502 of the Laws of 1866, which was incorporated in the Consolidated Laws of 1882, and was subsequently re-enacted in the Greater New York Charter as Section 480.

Where the Trouble Began.

The protecting clause in Section 480 of the Greater New York Charter was stricken out in the year 1901, and this has been the origin of all our present difficulties. When the General Tax Law of 1909 was passed it was claimed that it repealed all previous laws including the Charter provision with the result that each of these separate towns has imposed upon the City of New York a different rule of assessment. And as was stated in the brief of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York in connection with the amendment proposed in the Legislature in the year 1913: "We have the unusual spectacle of municipal corporations, creatures of the State, governed and controlled by the Legislature, engaged in bitter and costly litigation at the expense of the taxpayers of each community, all of whom are citizens and residents of this State, and each of whom are entitled to exact and equal justice at the hands of the Legislature."

In the State of Massachusetts it was not until 1903 that a law was passed which made the land, but exclusive of constructions, assessable for purposes of such taxation; and this law was adopted because the City of Boston extended its municipal water supply system and reached out to bring in streams and impound them for the purpose of supplying its population; and land taken for the water system was placed upon the tax list.

IRA J. ETTINGER.

Failure of Relief Measures.

During the session of the New York Legislature in the year 1913 a bill was introduced amending the Tax Law providing that all lands heretofore or hereafter acquired for the purpose of a water supply by any municipal corporation within the limits of another municipal corporation shall hereafter be assessed and taxed at the value of said lands exclusive of all dams, aqueducts and other structures necessary for the purpose of a water supply and it was therein provided that in the valuation of said lands the assessors shall treat all lands flooded by the construction of dams, or used for the purpose of storing or impounding waters thereon, as land not under water, but despite all of the efforts put forth by the City of New York and its representatives and notwithstanding the argument presented by President Charles Strauss, of the Board of Water Supply, before the joint Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment, the bill failed of passage and the old confused and unjust system has continued to this very day.

The brief of the Corporation Counsel recites that there are pending in the courts in the counties of Westchester and Putnam one hundred and twenty certiorari proceedings to review the inequalities and over-valuations of the assessment of the lands of the City of New York in fifteen different tax districts. These over-valuations occur on property of the City of New York that contains no structures because of the idea in the minds of the various assessors that the City of New York is a rich municipality because it is deemed just and proper to extract as much money from the City of New York as a taxpayer as is possible and to make the tax burden upon the City of New York as heavy as the ingenuity of the local assessor might devise.

Because of the uncertainty of the law and the decisions of the courts upon the subject the assessors also claim the right to assess the aqueduct structures, although Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, sitting in Orange County, decided that the aqueduct structures were not assessable, which decision has since been affirmed by the Appellate Division, an appeal having been taken to the Court of Appeals which has not yet rendered its opinion in the matter.

Specific Cases of Injustice.

To show the real injustice that has been practiced upon the City of New York by the different communities a few glaring instances, taken from the memorandum of the Board of Water Supply will now be cited:

In the Town of Mt. Pleasant, Westchester County, parcel 803, consisting of 43 acres, was assessed in 1910 at $21,945, an average of $500 an acre. The assessment against the former owner who parted with the property the year before the city acquired it, was at the rate of $100 an acre.

Parcel 805 was assessed in 1905 at $500 an acre. The former owner, the year before, was assessed at only $92 an acre.

In the Town of Cortlandt, Westchester County, the average assessment per acre against the citizens is $716, while the assessment against the City of New York is $4,348. The City of New York owns 5 per cent. of the area and pays 23 per cent. of the taxes.

In the Town of Gardiner, Ulster County, parcel 221 is known as the Deyo Farm. It consists of 160 acres; the city took 8½ acres, and while the assessment of $4,300 was placed against the former owner upon the entire 160 acres in 1907, the city, on taking title, was assessed $3,225. In this town in 1908 the assessment was $18.74 per acre; when the City of New York came in there the assessment was increased to $375 per acre upon all the land to which the City of New York took title.

In the Town of Philipstown, Putnam County, the assessment on the identical lands was increased from $68,803 in 1912 to $3,030,203 in 1913. This assessment was protested by the city on Grievance Day, and a bill was later rendered to the Board of Water Supply for the 1913 taxes for $490,321; the payment of these taxes has been withheld by the city pending the result of certiorari proceedings.

What Yonkers Has Done.

In the City of Yonkers the assessment was increased from $750,550 in 1913 to $19,280,150 for 1914; and payment of these taxes is now the subject of litigation.

These are not exceptional instances; they simply indicate the general spirit of the assessors throughout these counties, resulting in gross injustice to the

Just a few more instances of glaring injustice:

In the Town of Kent, Putnam County, the city owns 5 per cent. of the land and pays 50 per cent. of the taxes; in the Town of Patterson, Putnam County, the city owns three-tenths of 1 per cent. of the land and pays 4 per cent. of the taxes; in the Town of North Salem, Westchester County, the city owns 10 per cent. of the land and pays 55 per cent. of the taxes.

In the Town of Kent, Putnam County, the assessment per acre for the private individual is $18 and the city is assessed $363 per acre; in the Town of Patterson, Putnam County, the assessment for private individuals is $68 per acre and the city is assessed $730 per acre; in the Town of North Salem, Westchester County, the private individual is assessed at $116 per acre and the city is assessed at $842 per acre; in the Town of Cortlandt, Westchester County, the private individual is assessed at $716 per acre, and the city is assessed at $4,348 per acre.

In the Town of Olive, Ulster County, the former owner of parcel 31 was assessed in 1907 for $1,500 and in 1908 the City of New York was assessed for the same parcel the sum of $17,700; in the same town the former owner of parcel 35 was assessed in 1907 for $500 and in the year 1908 the City of New York was assessed for the same parcel the sum of $3,650.

One of the most serious consequences of this unjust taxation is the withholding of the money by the City of New York which these local communities require for their maintenance. The City of New York refuses to pay any tax which it claims to be illegal, and holds the money whilst litigation is pending in the courts. In the meantime these communities suffer for the lack of the money that the City of New York is compelled to withhold. In his argument before the Legislature the President of the Board of Water Supply said: "Only two or three days ago a representative of one of the Westchester school districts came and asked me to make an exception in that case in order that the schools might be maintained, and stated that unless the payment is made, whether right or wrong, the schools must close."

Until a just and proper rule of assessment is established, which will promote harmony in the relations of the City of New York and these communities, this deplorable condition must continue to exist.

MILLIONS SAVED FROM THE CITY BUDGET

In Large Part Due to the Recommendations of the Taxpayer Organizations, Which For the First Time Made a Study of the Estimates

NOW that the Board of Estimate has completed its deliberations on the 1915 Budget, it is interesting to note the changes made in the original estimates and the way these reductions were arrived at. In considering these, two important facts stand out. First—The original requests were about $17,000,000 above the 1914 budget. Second—For the first time in the history of the city, taxpayer organizations made a serious study of the budget and suggested specific, practical changes.

The original departmental estimates showed what it was intended to do in the way of liberal spending. They footed up $210,000,000. This threatened a tax rate from a little below to a little above $2.00 in the various boroughs.

In its daily memoranda to the subcommittee of the Board of Estimate the Real Estate Board presented objections on the broad ground of inability of the taxpayer to stand this unprecedented increase in the amount of city expenditure in abnormally hard times. But of even greater importance were the specific recommendations made by the Real Estate Board for reductions in various departments.

The board's recommendations were followed, immediately preceeding the Board of Estimate hearings, by distribution of a pamphlet directed to the Board of Estimate and the public, setting forth the city's financial condition and giving the reasons why this was a particularly inopportune time to indulge in anything that savored of extravagance or injudicious spending. This position was again emphasized at the public hearings before the Board of Estimate on October 26 and 27. As the result the figures work out this way, in round numbers:

|---|---|
| Original Estimates Sept 1 (including Board of Education) | $210,000,000 |
| Sub-Committee to Board of Estimate Oct. 26 | 204,000,000 |
| Reduction (including Board of Education) | $6,000,000 |
| Amount referred to Board of Estimate | $204,000,000 |
| Passed by Board of Estimate | 199,200,000 |
| Second Reduction | $4,800,000 |
| Original Reduction | 6,000,000 |
| Total Reduction | $10,800,000 |

These changes represent (1) a reduction of $1,600,000 in tax levy deficiency; (2) a reduction of $700,000 in borough assessments; (3) about $7,300,000 reduction in various departments, and (4) $1,100,000 in the debt service.

To the Board of Estimate and its painstaking corps of investigators credit is, of course, due for these reductions. But the Real Estate Board believes that its suggestions and recommendations had much weight in determining the final result.

The board has therefore compiled the following figures, showing the more important reductions from amounts requested by departments and offices where reductions were asked for in its published recommendations to the Board of Estimate:

|---|---|
| Law Department | $37,040 |
| Commissioner of Accounts | 5,800 |
| Bureau of Weights & Measures | 8,557 |
| Bureau of Licenses | 6,642 |
| Borough Presidents | 780,835 |
| Department of Education (approximately) | 4,000,000 |
| College of City of New York | 75,991 |
| Hunters College | 24,020 |
| New York Public Library Bldg. | 13,400 |
| Public Recreation Commission. | 6,397 |
| Fire Department | 82,718 |
| Department of Health | 178,236 |
| Public Charities | 23,570 |
| Tenement House Department | 13,150 |
| Dept. of Water Supply, Gas & Electricity | 571,970 |
| Department of Street Cleaning. | 165,297 |
| Department of Corrections | 93,388 |
| Board of Inebriety | 24,949 |
| Department of Bridges | 31,614 |
| Department of Docks | 446,124 |
| Department of Parks | 83,726 |
| Inferior Courts | 79,441 |
| New York County | 53,957 |
| Supreme Court, First Dept. | 124,582 |
| Supreme Court, Second Dept., Jurors' Fees | 40,000 |
| Supreme Court, Maintenance | 4,717 |
| Surrogates Court, Richmond | 2,300 |
| County Clerk, Richmond | 11,286 |
| Bronx County, Total | 150,000 |
| King's County, Total | 7,641 |
| Surrogate, Queens | 15,830 |
| District Attorney, Queens | 15,698 |
| County Clerk, Queens | 50,000 |
| Sheriff, Queens | 6,716 |
| Total | $7,235,894 |

These items, with other miscellaneous small amounts, make the $7,300,000 reduction above referred to.

The importance of these reductions cannot be over-estimated. But the fact must not be lost sight of that even with a Budget of nearly $200,000,000, the tax rate will be so high as to embarrass many property owners.

This fact will be brought to the attention of the Board of Aldermen, who have yet to go over the budget and have substantial powers for reducing it.

A statement given out by the Real Estate Board explains one cause of the city debt as follows:

Spending Money on Immigrants.

"One great cause of our financial difficulties lies in the fact that New York is the most important seaport in the United States, and the open door through which immigration enters. The character of this immigration in the last twenty years has greatly changed. As President Wilson has conclusively shown, the strong, sturdy, self-respecting races of the North of Europe have ceased to send us their people. Such immigrants were an asset the moment they touched the shores of America and seldom, if ever, except through mental or physical misfortune, did they become a burden on the community. There was also in them a strong self-respect that, even though suffering and in poverty, kept them from asking or taking aid from the public authorities.

"These immigrants have been replaced by others of a different character. During the past twenty years the Southern countries of Europe and Poland and Russia have furnished the bulk of our immigration. These were a different class of people, the majority of them extremely poor, accustomed to an absolute and paternal government. Instead of passing through New York to develop the farming lands of the West and build up great and flourishing communities, a large part of them remained in New York, their children to be educated, their sick and feeble to be taken care of, and their poor to become a charge on the community. To them the idea of getting city or private aid was not repugnant, and where the other and sturdier immigrants repulsed the social workers they welcomed them. As the result of this, and very largely through the activities of these social workers and those who sympathize with them, has come the great increase in the expense of the Department of Charities, from $1,976,000 in 1905, to $3,772,000 in 1914.

"To this class of people, and to their friends and sympathizers, is also due the largely increased activities of the Department of Health, whose expenditures have increased from $1,260,000 in 1905, to $3,621,738.58 in 1914. The same influences have largely affected the Department of Education. This department spent in 1905, $23,662,731.06, and asks this year $43,000,000, although the great extension of the religious school system should have greatly relieved the city's public schools.

Natural Extensions.

"Another important cause that has added to the increase of the budget has been the growth of the city and the natural extension of its governmental functions over additional areas of territory.

"With this extension there must necessarily be new school houses, new police stations and new fire houses, together with the employment of those necessary to operate and maintain them.

"The Real Estate Board realizes all this, but the board submits that in these necessary extensions and improvements too little care has been taken of the public funds.

UPLIFT AT MOTT HAVEN EXPECTED

Opening of New Subway System Will Have Beneficial Effect on Section—Many Industrial Concerns Located in District

MOTT HAVEN, which occupies the southerly section of the Bronx, assumes a new importance as the work on the subway through East 138th street, its main thoroughfare, nears completion. The section of the borough for many years has been an industrial center, but when the new line is in operation it is expected that the district will become one of the important commercial and manufacturing districts in the city.

At the present time there are many different kinds of product manufactured in this section of the Bronx, the magnet which drew the concerns from other sections being the splendid transportation facilities, both by rail and water. The opening of the new subway, however, will create another means of access, as will the New York Connecting Railroad line, when completed. Mott Haven boasts of more piano factories and a greater output of pianos than any other place in the United States; but, in addition, there are many large coal and lumber yards, also concerns which manufacture refrigerating machinery, shirtwaists, handkerchiefs, chemicals, paper boxes, plumbing supplies, all kinds of woodworking materials, electrical apparatus, automobiles and supplies, wagons and hardware.

Mott Haven is the focal point of all the Union Railway lines of the Bronx; in addition, there are stations on the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad at 138th street and Park avenue, and on the New Haven, Westchester and Boston lines at Willis avenue and 132d street, which are utilized by the local manufacturers for the shipping and receiving of freight.

While the Harlem River marks the dividing line between Manhattan and the Bronx, still as a barrier to traffic it has been eliminated. Bridges connect the two boroughs, and most of the principal thoroughfares, so that vehicular traffic is cared for; and, in addition, the value of the waterway as a means of transportation remains untouched. The Madison avenue bridge connects that artery with East 138th street, Bronx; the Fourth avenue railroad bridge carries passengers and freight traffic of the New York Central Railroad and affiliated lines; the Second avenue bridge serves the Second and Third avenue elevated systems; the Third avenue bridge, surface lines and vehicular traffic, and the Willis avenue structure performs like service.

The New York Connecting Railroad bridge, now in course of construction, will also form an important link, connecting, as it will, the Bronx with Astoria. The structure consists of a series of spans from Port Morris over Randall's and Ward's Islands and will care for freight as well as passengers. Direct connection from New England to the South and West will be had by means of the Pennsylvania system at Sunnyside yard. Provisions have been made also for the handling of freight to South Brooklyn, and from that point it can be lightered to New Jersey, where other railroad terminals are located. All these improvements, which involve the expenditure of millions of dollars, rebound to the advantage of the Mott Haven section and should cause an increased influx of industries.

The Canal Board at a recent meeting approved of 136th street as a location for a new terminal, as nominated in the Barge Canal Terminal Law, and has instructed its secretary to commence negotiations with the Board of Estimate for the acquisition of the necessary lands. The Mott Haven canal, of importance to the wholesale coal dealers, lies between Third and Park avenues and permits the passing of canal barges from the Harlem River as far north as 138th street. The south portion of the canal was laid out in 1850 by Jordan L. Mott.

Albert E. Davis, one-time president of the North Side Board of Trade, and who has been a practising architect at 138th street for twenty-seven years, said this week: "The growth of Mott Haven has not kept pace with other sections of the Bronx, chiefly because of the double fare necessary to reach lower Manhattan. Compare, for instance, the section of 138th street east of Alexander avenue with that west of it. The former is more solidly built up than any section, and why? Because there is a station of the Third avenue "L" between Alexander and Willis avenues. I said 'more solidly built up'; I mean by that more populous. Records of the elevated traffic during the year ending June 30, 1914, recently published by the Public Service Commission, show that the total number of passengers carried at the 138th street station was 4,781,222, as against only 3,238,859 at 149th street and Third avenue, the average daily traffic at 138th street being 14,062, while at 149th street it was only 9,526, or about two-thirds. The 138th street 'L' station carries more passengers than any other station in the Bronx and more than any other in Manhattan except City Hall, Grand, 59th, 106th and 116th streets.

"If that has been the result of one 'L' station, what will be the effect of four stations on the 138th street crosstown subway now being finished and extending almost from the Harlem to the East River? Two of these 138th street stations will serve what is usually termed 'Mott Haven,' the Mott avenue and the Third avenue, the latter an express station. Mott Haven will then be brought into close connection for a single fare with the entire length of Manhattan and Brooklyn and with the West Bronx almost to Yonkers and the East Bronx almost to New Rochelle, because the Jerome avenue and the Pelham Park branches of the Lexington avenue subway will both have stations here.

"Let it be assumed that this line will be in operation within two years and it can easily be conjectured what the next few years have in store for this section. I predict that this development will begin next year. The cry is heard that business is bad, money is tight, and real estate is a drug on the market; but the dawn of an era of prosperity is close at hand. The opening of the Panama Canal, the growth of South American trade and the war in Europe all mean ultimate business gains to us. Soon money will again flow towards real estate. And there is no section of the Bronx which will better be prepared for it or prove a more inviting field for investment and development than Mott Haven."

Harry C. Bryan, of Williamson & Bryan, in discussing the district, said: "Mott Haven is a most desirable location for manufacturing purposes, not only because building sites are cheap but also on account of the excellent shipping facilities both by water and rail close at hand. The unusual depth of water off Port Morris can enable the largest steamers to dock easily, thereby avoiding a trip down through Hell Gate; and it is only a question of time when dockings will be made at that point."

DEVELOPMENTS IN FACTORY INSPECTION

Fire Resisting Partitions For Stairways Are Now Being Ordered—Superfluous Fire Escapes—Public Hearing on Elevator Rules Called

RECENT developments in the enforcement of the Labor Law deal with fire-drill alarms, stairway enclosures, superfluous exits and fire-escapes. The fire-drill alarms required in buildings by the Labor Law are now being ordered by the Bureau of Fire Prevention of the Fire Department which is directing owners to install an alarm system which will operate the fire-drills required to be held once a month by employers. These orders affect buildings which are more than two stories in height and in which there are more than twenty-five persons employed above the ground floor. The fire-drill alarm is an instance of dual jurisdiction, wherein the Industrial Board of the Labor Department makes the regulations, while the Bureau of Fire Prevention of the city Fire Department issues the orders and enforces the requirements according to section 83-a of the Labor Law.

The fire-drill alarm system includes considerable electrical signaling apparatus, it should be laid out with regard to the permanent exit facilities, it should assist the carrying out of the fire-drill and it should be designed to meet the emergency conditions created by an actual fire. As the fire-drill alarm system is only one item of the complete fire prevention system for a building, it should not be handled independently or without regard to the other parts of the system.

Enclosed Stairways.

The enclosure of stairways in fireproof or fire-resisting partitions is now being ordered by the Department of Labor in accordance with the definition of these technical terms by the Industrial Board. The stairways are the principal means of escape in nearly all buildings, while the number of work people who may be employed on each floor largely depends upon their capacity. This makes it advisable to have any improvement of stairways properly designed so that the building will receive the fullest credit according to the requirements of the law.

Outside fire-escapes which are not part of the regular exit facilities of a building are subject to the fire-escape provisions of the law. As these fire-escapes may be superfluous means of exit, the owner has the option of removing them. But this step is undesirable, because the Fire Department needs these fire-escapes as an assistance in its extinguishing operations. As a result of objections presented in behalf of owners fully a year ago, the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor has adopted a rule which makes it unnecessary to either remove the fire-escapes or spend money for unnecessary improvements, such as wire-glass windows, new balcony stairs or counter-balanced stairs.

When a Fire-Escape Is Superfluous.

If a building has other satisfactory means of escape, the fire-escapes are considered superfluous exits, and the Commissioner of Labor withdraws orders affecting such fire-escapes, provided they are structurally safe and provided also, that at the windows leading to such fire-escapes, there are posted proper "not-an-exit" signs. These signs have letters 8 inches high with notices in English, Yiddish and Italian, informing the occupants that the fire-escapes are for the use of the Fire Department only and should not be used either for fire drills or in case of fire.

Owners of buildings in general have had the experience of erecting fire-escapes at the order of one department and later of having them condemned by another department. Peter Joseph McKeon, consulting engineer, speaking of this conflict of orders, said this week: "Such fire-escapes were too often erected with little regard to their being a safe and adequate means of exit, but simply as a technical and unavoidable compliance with some department order. As a result, when new exit standards were adopted or the jurisdiction over fire-escapes changed from one department to another, the fire-escapes were condemned and the owner obliged to make expensive alterations of the existing fire-escapes or provide entirely new exit facilities.

HON. JAMES M. LYNCH,
State Commissioner of Labor.

A Required Exit.

"Fire-escapes in the past have generally been looked upon as something which had to be provided to satisfy some public department and they were never intended for regular use. A different state of affairs now exists because fire-escapes in many cases are one of the legal means of exit and they will be used at least once a month in carrying out the fire-drills required by law. This means that such fire-escapes will be put to an actual test frequently and regularly and not, as has heretofore been the case, be used very seldom, if at all. The fire-escapes also, now represent special problems, because they must be considered in connection with the general exit facilities, and for this reason an engineer should be employed to study the needs of the building and proper plans and specifications prepared before contractors undertake to execute the work."

Hearing on Elevator Regulations.

The Industrial Board of the State Labor Department will grant a hearing to the public on Thursday, November 19, when the final report of the Committee on Dangerous Machinery, relating to the construction, guarding, equipment, maintenance and operation of elevators, will be considered.

For the same date a hearing is announced on the final report of the Committee on Fire Hazards, defining proposed rules for fireproof and fire-resisting materials, and describing certain specifications relating to construction.

Hearings on the same matters were held in July, on which occasion the representatives of real estate interests appeared and stated their views. Copies of the revised rules will not be available for publication in advance of the hearing, but those persons who have preserved the copies of the tentative regulations which were the subject of the hearings in July will understand the general nature of the final report in each case.

The rules as set down in the first draft of the elevator regulations provided for a trap door in the top of every elevator car in factory buildings. (The regulations apply only to factory buildings.) Other regulations contemplated at that date were: The cars must be properly lighted at all times when in service. They must have safety jaws of a type approved by the Commissioner of Labor. Each one must have a speed governor.

Freight Elevators.

All freight cars shall have enclosures not less than five feet six inches high on all sides not used for loading and unloading. Where the hoistway enclosures and gates are not set flush with the floor sills, and where the hoistway enclosures are not free from fixed obstructions, the car opening shall be provided with a panel not less than five feet six inches high, and not less than two feet wide, in front of the operator. This panel can be hinged to swing inward against the controller.

The entire top of a freight elevator shall be provided with a substantially constructed cover or grating of No. 8 gauge wire not less than one and one-half inch mesh, or its equivalent in strength.

Car safeties will not be required on plunger elevators. Car safeties will not be required for sidewalk type elevators which travel less than twenty feet between terminal landings.

Power-driven carriage type hoists, installed prior to 1914, without overhead car beam and car safeties, where the platform has hoist ropes fastened to its four corners, may be used for travel not exceeding fifty feet between terminal landings. Hand-power operated elevators may be used for travel not to exceed fifty feet between terminal landings.

A substantial grating to carry a load of not less than five hundred pounds shall be installed under the overhead sheaves and in any open spaces over an elevator hoistway that is not otherwise protected.

In all factory buildings there shall be a passageway leading from the elevator to the outside of the building when the elevator is at the lowest point of its travel.

Freight elevators hereafter installed in factory buildings where more than one hundred people are employed on one floor, in order to be available in case of emergency shall be capable of safely lowering a live load of not less than fifty pounds per square foot of its platform area.

All power-driven elevators hereafter installed shall have no less than two hoist ropes and two ropes attached to each counterweight.

All parts of the elevator machinery and the hoistway and car safeties shall be regularly inspected by some person competent to perform such service. Weekly inspection reports showing the condition of the elevator shall be prepared and signed by the person making such inspection; such reports shall be made on a form prescribed by the Commissioner of Labor and shall be kept on file for his examination.

MECHANICS' LIEN LAW EXPLAINED

Necessity of Protecting Rights of All Claimants to Give Every Protection to the Lienor—Statute Built Upon This Theory

By THOMAS H. RAY*

LAND is the foundation of wealth. Man is compelled by the progress of civilization to direct his efforts more and more to its improvement. He should be encouraged to do so by proper legislation. Its stability, permanence and the possibility of an ever enhancing value make real estate the most attractive investments. But it is this very quality of fixity and permanence as contrasted with the transiency and instability of chattels, which makes necessary a distinction in law between real and personal property. Because of this legal distinction and by the operation of the rule of law which transfers the title to all fixtures to the owner of the land, arises the primary necessity for a statute providing for mchanics' liens upon real property.

Chattels Can Be Delivered.

One who sells a chattel can deliver it physically to the purchaser. But he need do so only upon the receipt of the purchase price. The mechanic who performs work upon personal property obtains possession of it and can demand his compensation before he returns it to the owner. If the owner of personal property pawns it the lender gets possession and returns it only upon the repayment of the loan. Thus, regardless of any statutory provisions the vendor, mechanic or lender is equally able to protect himself by reason of his "natural lien" of possession.

By contrast, if the owner of real property wishes to sell it, he cannot deliver the land to the purchaser. But the law has contrived a method by which he may do so constructively by the giving of a deed, and proof of the delivery is preserved by the provisions for the recording of the deed. Likewise, when the owner wishes to borrow money, giving his real estate as security for the loan, he delivers to the lender written evidence of his lien in the form of a mortgage. As well, a different rule affects the mechanic or laborer who furnishes material and does work upon the real property of another. Such labor and materials have become, by operation of law, a part of the real estate and may be conveyed by the owner of the real estate who may be other than the person with whom the mechanic or laborer has contracted and against whom the latter can have no claim except such as is given him by statute. The mechanic and laborer has thus lost control of the materials, and has nothing tangible to seize and hold as security for the payment to him of the indebtedness from the person with whom he has contracted.

To relieve the material man and mechanic from this hazardous situation, in which he would otherwise often find himself, and to give to him as nearly as possible the same protection which is afforded those who deal in chattels the Legislature has provided the Mechanics' Lien Law. The constitutionality of such statute has been too well established to require more than a mere statement of the fact.

Rights of Claimants.

It has been necessary to recognize the rights of all possible claimants against the real property in the preparation of the statute, including the owners of the fee or other interest therein, mortgagees, judgment and general creditors and at the same time to give every possible protection to the mechanic's lienor.

*Mr. Ray has recently written a Treatise on the Law of Mechanics' Liens and General Contracting of the State of New York, with forms.

THOMAS H. RAY.

Since ownership and claims against real property can only be evidenced by writings properly filed or recorded it is necessary that the mechanic or material man asserting a claim against real estate be authorized to give notice of his claim in the same manner. Therefore, no practical mechanics' lien law can be devised which is not founded upon the basic principle that the recording or filing of an instrument affecting real property gives constructive notice to all interested parties of its existence and that claims founded upon such instruments must, except in cases of fraud, be given priority in the order of their filing.

The New York statute has been built upon this theory. Thus the lienor is permitted at any time to demand the terms and status of the owner's contract with the contractor. If his suspicions are thereby aroused, he may either demand sufficient security for the payment of his account, or protect himself by at once filing his notice of lien for both past and future claims, since the statute normally limits the extent of the owner's liability to the unpaid balance due to the contractor. In harmony with this general scheme, section 11 permits the service of a copy of the notice upon the owner or contractor; section 7 protects the lienor against fraudulent advance payments after the filing of his lien, or against fraudulent mortgages or incumbrances made with the connivance of the beneficiary thereof and recorded after the conception of the lienor's claim; and sections 15 and 16 protect the lienor against unrecorded assignments.

No Right of Lien.

The statute recognizes the fact that the mechanic and material man can have no inchoate right of lien. He may acquire a preference if he acts upon his rights pursuant to the requirements of the statute. But the filing of the notice originates the lien. If anterior thereto, another has honestly and by diligence acquired a superior right it cannot and should not be overreached by a lienor who has meanwhile been sleeping upon his rights. But the statute does not deprive of any of their rights those whom it seeks to benefit since it does not take away the lienors' common law action. Thus every lienor has two rights—one in personam and one in rem—which generally speaking may be pursued simultaneously, although there can be but one recovery.

In a consideration of the statute it is important to keep continually in mind its purpose, which has for its foundation the equitable principle that the owner whose property has with his consent benefited by labor and materials shall be liable for the same. Accordingly it must be recognized that the right of lien is not against the real property itself, but against the interest therein of the owner, who has either directly contracted for the improvement or who has given his consent to it when it has been contracted for by another. Therefore, it has been requisite by definition to broaden the meaning of the term owner beyond its ordinary significance of "owner in fee." And the term is necessarily made to include all possible interests in the real property which may be subject to a lien. Thus the lien may be against the interests or two or more owners in the same property, which even though merged might not constitute a title in fee absolute.

May Attach Interest.

In further accord with its object the statute has necessarily provided that the lienor need not base his claim upon a direct contract with the owner, but if the improvement to the property has been made with his consent and he has acquired the benefit of it the lien may attach to his interest therein, in spite of the fact that there is no privity between the lienor and owner.

Yet in justice to any owner his interest in the property could not be made liable to an extent greater than that to which he had assumed liability either by direct agreement or by consent, expressed or implied. Thus if a contractor had sub-contracted work at a figure in excess of the amount stipulated in his contract with the owner, the latter could upon no just theory be made liable for such excess to a lienor. It follows that the burden must be placed upon him who claims the lien of tracing his rights back to the owner either by a direct contract with him for the improvement of the property or through one who has contracted for that purpose with him or with his consent and that the lienor's right can only be determined by an examination of such contract, expressed or implied, under or through which the services were performed or the materials furnished. So that though the right of lien is given by the statute, and does not and could not arise out of a contract itself, the only effect of the statute is to apply and apportion the balance remaining due upon the contract under which the improvement was performed to those lienors who have complied with the provisions of the statute.

To this extent a knowledge of the law as it affects both public and private contract work is imperative to the proper application of the statute relating mechanics' liens.

Jersey City and Hoboken Opportunities.

Tremendous progress has resulted in Jersey City and Hoboken from the introduction of rapid transit between those municipalities and New York. This is apparent not only in the constantly increasing patronage reported by the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company since its service was inaugurated some years ago, but in the remarkable change which has been wrought in the business district of Hoboken and the strides apartment house construction has made in Jersey City.

"Does the city do too much?" asks The Sun, speaking of the city's social service and educational fads. It is very evident from the tax budget that more is being done than property owners can afford.

With election week passed, real estate folk will next look forward to the meeting of the Legislature, when it is hoped that the Sate will turn a kindlier countenance toward New York City than it has for many years.

As many of the members of the next Constitutional Convention, who were chosen at the general election on Tuesday, have expressed themselves in favor of the principle of home rule for cities and towns in this State, an amendment to this effect will probablv be made by the convention, and will be verv welcome.

The inactivity of the real estate market is due primarily to the fact that money is difficult to obtain on bond and mortgage. This is the testimony of every broker and builder. It is possible that the savings banks, the insurance companies and the other financial institutions accustomed to lend on real estate have less courage, or a less desire to help in times of public need than the banks which lend on railroad and industrial stocks and bonds? If so, then they are not doing their part in the world.

The cutting through of Seventh avenue has disclosed that a surprisingly large number of business firms in manufacturing and wholesale lines have established themselves of late years at strategical places in the adjacent streets. Grand opportunities for the business man lie in the historic strip between the Sixth and the Ninth elevated railroads north of Canal street to 23d. No part of the city is so like old New York of fifty and seventy-five years ago, and none will see greater changes in the next few years; first, because of the new subway, and second, because of the inevitable freight terminal improvements.

The Problem of Port Development.

One of the most encouraging of the recent developments is the increasing interest which is being exhibited in the grave problems connected with the development of the port of New York. These problems are being studied by many different people from many different points of view. Practically everyone is agreed upon the utter inadequacy of the existing machinery for distributing freight in and around New York harbor and for shipping it to and from factories and warehouses in New York City. Every one is also agreed on the necessity of a comprehensive plan based upon existing means of transportation and distribution, but which will supplement the defects of the present service and tie its several parts more closely together.

The preparation and adoption of such a plan is no longer a matter merely of convenience. It is becoming a matter of vital necessity to the business prosperity of the city and the welfare of its inhabitants. Time was when a city could leave the problem of providing for its food supply and distributing and collecting its freight to the enterprise of individual business men, but that time has passed. All over the world the work of private business agencies has had to be supplemented by carefully considered municipal action, designed to pull together the various private transportation lines and terminal yards. Action of this kind is as necessary to New York as it is to Hamburg, Frankfort or Seattle.

A precedent for it has already been established by the way in which the problem of rapid transit was handled. In this case the inability of private corporations to undertake as much new construction as was required for the quick development of the city and the welfare of its inhabitants forced the municipal authorities to assume control of the matter and lay out a comprehensive plan of construction, toward the expense of which the city itself made a substantial contribution. But in a great modern city the problems of transportation are quite as vital as the problems of transit. The inhabitants of New York must not only be fed, but they must be fed at the lowest possible cost; and it is becoming more than ever apparent that they will not be fed at the lowest possible cost unless the city establishes terminal markets closely connected with transportation lines, to which the food can be brought without unnecessary delay or expense. Closely connected with the food-supply and not less vital is the problem of handling all kinds of freight from coal and wheat to the notions which are sold at five-and-ten-cent stores. The local commercial associations which have been considering the problem have reached the conclusion that sufficient data have never been collected upon which an adequate report can be based. Both the Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce have consequently turned in a recommendation that the Port of New York Commission be appointed by the Mayor. The idea is that the commission be composed of three expert engineers, who would be provided with all the authority and resources necessary to prepare the information and statistics necessary to a full understanding of the question. After collecting and publishing the facts, they would base upon them a report which, if adopted by the city authorities, would determine the subsequent development of the harbor and its system of transportation.

It would undoubtedly be very useful to have a careful and comprehensive statistical investigation made into the way in which the commerce of New York gets itself transported around the city, and it is very much to be hoped that the commission will be appointed for that purpose alone. The Record and Guide understands, however, that a committee of the Board of Estimate has long been considering the matter, and is preparing a new version of the plan which Mayor Mitchel submitted last year for dealing with the problem presented by the New York Central. This new version was to include certain recommendations intended to bring the New Jersey and Long Island roads into the embrace of a general scheme. Until this new plan has been published and found wanting, it hardly seems necessary to incur the delay necessitated by the preparation of a wholly new report.

The Tax Budget.

The final figures for the City Budget proved to be better than was feared. If the tentative appropriation of approximately $204,000,000 had been approved, the tax rate in Manhattan would have gone up to 1.92. The increase has been cut almost in half by a reduction of some $5,000,000 in the appropriations, and the taxpayers will be correspondingly relieved. It is true that the reduction has been made directly in the amount which had been assigned to reduce the deficiency on unpaid personal taxes and that the money saved will eventually have to be paid by the real estate owners. But it makes a great deal of difference when this bill has to be met. To impose heavily increased charges upon real estate as long as the existing depression lasts would cause a good deal of liquidation and would represent that much sheer loss to property owners.

If the increased burden can be postponed until real estate is in better demand and building is more prosperous, the bill can be paid without resulting in the same undesirable and unnecessary penalty. Moreover, other means of raising revenue may be devised during the coming year, which will be sufficient to provide for the settlement of these old accounts. The real estate owners may consequently congratulate themselves upon the success of their protests. They have been able to bring to bear so much pressure upon the administration that it has yielded to a very considerable extent, and their ability to exercise this pressure has been the result very largely for their improved organization and the larger number of property owners who now devote part of their time to public activities.

A Salary System Needed.

Some of the property owners have been insisting upon a kind of economy which if pursued would gravely embarrass the serviceability of the municipal administration. Several of the recommendations made by a certain association would in the long run limit rather than help the cause of municipal economy. The establishment, for instance, of a rule that no expert should be employed by any municipal department without the approval of the Board of Estimate after a public hearing would place an intolerable restriction upon the efficient management of the city's business. Again, the absolute prohibition of increases in the salaries of city employes no matter how reasonable or just the claim for increased compensation may be, would surely be inexpedient. It would provoke discontent in the city departments and would result in an increase in shirking and a consequent loss to the city. Even in hard times private employers have to consider the advisability of increasing the remunerations of deserving but underpaid employes. What is needed is not an inflexible policy of refusing increases, but the installation of a system which will adjust salaries to work, provide for promotions and dismissals, and cut out the many instances of excessive remuneration.

—That realtv alone can no longer carry almost the whole weight of taxation for the present high cost of government in this city is becoming apparent to every thinking person. In fairness to all those who have a stake in the community—rentpayers, as well as taxpayers—not only should new sources of revenue be found, but the cost of government should be very considerably reduced.

—As Broadway, between 72d and 104th, has 422 stores and shops, the families in the section are getting the habit of trading uptown.

Where the Tenement Law Is Inconsistent.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

As supplementing my previous statement and as showing the anomalous condition existing under the law as it stands at present, I would mention the case of a house which is fairly representative of a large class of dwellings in the greater city. It is a four-story and basement brownstone front, about 22 feet by 50 feet, in a good residential section of Brooklyn, having once been occupied by one of America's really great men, the late Dr. Talmage.

As a boarding-house, any one of the floors above the basement may be occupied by four persons or more, the only limitation under section 8 of the building code being "not more than 15 rooms to be used for the accommodation of boarders." No legal objection is or can be raised to the occupancy of houses of this class to their full capacity, and any one of the four floors might with comparatively slight alterations be occupied separately by a single family. Due provision being made for risk from fire on account of three extra kitchens, no serious objection on sanitary grounds to this being done appears to exist; at least not more so than to present conditions of occupancy.

The average family consists of five members. A house answering to the description just given frequently shelters 25 persons or more, including domestics, or the equivalent of five or six families. No serious evil, either moral or physical, appears to result from this.

Taking a broad and fair view of this question, and without doing violence to any fundamental principle of hygiene, I do not see how it can be questioned that dwellings occupied by, say, 25 persons or less, whether living as separate families or en masse, might in the public interest be placed under less stringent regulations than the present Tenement House Law, if not entirely excluded from its operation.

C. WHITLEY MULLIN.

Where the Tenement Law Restrains Real Estate Activity.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

As chairman of the Board of Brokers' committee on three-family houses, I have personally tried, and our committee has tried, very hard for about one year to get the Tenement House Department and the Charity Organization through their tenement house committee to agree to changes in the law in relation to new three-family houses, and also in relation to altering private residences into three-family houses. We made fair progress in meeting the committees in relation to new houses, but in relation to altering old buildings, either private residences, two-family or property known as a three-story property, we made very little progress with either the Tenement House officials or the Tenement House Committee of the charity organization.

It is my personal opinion that if we can come to no agreement with either of these parties that is reasonable and fair, we should then go to the State Legislature and ask the privilege of altering houses of this class, the buildings so altered not to become tenement houses or be under the Tenement House law, but to be changed under the regulations of the present Building Department. Our committee might go a step or two farther than the present Building Department regulations in relation to fire-escapes and other requirements of this kind.

I think the real estate interests in Brooklyn are a unit in their desire for this change. Not only the owners but the renters who know anything about this are also a unit. To be able to change a private house into flats would make the private house yield from $65 to $80 or $90 a month, instead of $40 to $50. If the change can be made, where the expense is not too great, it would be always a renting property and desirable as an investment, and especially desirable for people who wish to own a home and get some revenue out of the part they do not need.

In relation to the three-story store property, the law is driving the small shopkeeper out of business, because he cannot afford to pay double rent for his store and an apartment elsewhere, and then pay for help that his family could provide if he lived in the rear of the store. Being unable to do this makes his expenses about twice as much as otherwise. The large stores get the benefit, and a small property owner cannot rent his property. In many cases that I could state the owner of the property has lost his entire equity and the property is now owned by the first mortgagee, whom the old owner could have paid, except for these severe regulations.

I would say that our committee has worked very patiently for about one year to get a reasonable compromise on these questions, and while we have not given up hope of a compromise it seems very doubtful if we can come to an agreement.

A man who sits back in his chair and says, "We have a law and I will not change this one iota from the present law," is hard to reason with. I see no objection, however, to a change in this kind of buildings, made in a reasonable way, and our committee has wished only to have these changed in a reasonable way.

In answer to your question about the younger people of our city not desiring to buy real estate or homes for themselves, I think this is due largely to the many disagreeable features and exactions over very minor things asked and exacted by the Tenement House Department, Board of Health, Fire Prevention and Building Bureaus. They feel that they do not want the worry and bother that inspectors bring from these many departments.

One could write all day about the little perplexing things asked by these various departments that in many cases are very critical, annoying and absolutely unnecessary.

REALTY MEN ELECTED.

Will be Found Filling Important Offices in City, State and Nation.

Real estate men and those engaged in allied and kindred businesses will be interested to learn how members of their respective professions who were candidates for public office, fared as the result of the election last Tuesday. Among the important state officials who will support the newly-elected Governor will be James L. Wells, who has been elected State Treasurer. Mr. Wells served in the Assembly in the years 1879, 1880 and 1892. He was an Alderman from 1881 to 1883 and a Tax Commissioner from 1895 to 1897. In 1900 he served as a member of the Charter Revision Committee and the following year was defeated as the Fusion candidate for the presidency of the Bronx.

Mr. Wells was president of the Tax Department from 1902 to 1903. He has been president of the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association since 1891. A member of the association said this week that they congratulated the people of the State on securing for the office a man so well qualified as Mr. Wells. As president of the North Side Board of Trade Mr. Wells served six years. The State Treasurer-elect has for many years been actively interested in Bronx civic problems and has played an important part in the development of that borough.

In the Twenty-first Senatorial district of the Bronx, John J. Dunnigan, president of the Van Nest Property Owners' Association, was elected. He has been prominently identified with real estate movements in that section of the city. In the Fifteenth District John J. Boylan, real estate broker, has been re-elected. He and William J. Heffernan, of the Fifth district of Kings, are other real estate men in the new State Senate.

Realty men from this city in the Assembly will include Alfred E. Smith, from the Second Manhattan district, Carmine J. Marasco, from the Third, and Frederick S. Burr, from the Ninth district in Kings.

Among the 168 delegates to the 1915 Constitutional Convention there will be eight representatives of real estate and building interests. They will include George J. Ryan, from the Second district of Queens. Mr. Ryan is a director of the Real Estate Exchange of Long Island and is asociated with the Terrace Realty Company.

Other delegates will be Moses J. Wafer, contractor, from the Third, Kings; William P. Banister, architect, from the Sixth, and William F. Mathewson, insurance, from the Tenth. In the Eleventh and Twelfth Alfred E. Smith and former Assemblyman Harry E. Oxford have been elected. In the twenty-third district, Rockland County, Richmond, Gordan H. Peck, a brick manufacturer, and Forest E. Buel, in the marble business, have been chosen.

In the new Congress, Daniel J. Riordan and Peter J. Dooling have been returned from the Eleventh and Sixteenth Congressional districts, respectively, while in the Bronx, Col. Joseph A. Goulden of the Twenty-third has been re-elected.

THE RECENT CONVENTION.

What the Up-Staters Thought of It—Great Problems Ahead.

L. D. Woodworth, of the Garfield Real Estate Company, Rochester, who was recently elected first vice-president of the Real Estate Association of the State, in speaking of the recent New York City Real Estate Convention said:

"'Come again—come next year'—were cheering words to the delegates departing from the Eleventh Annual Convention of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York. New York City had instructed, entertained and feasted us for three big days. New York City had made the discovery that a real estate convention differs from anything the metropolitans had experienced before, that it is a field-day for optimists, that it begets desirable friendships otherwise impossible and that it is worth repeating.

"In addition, there was another special and powerful motive for getting together. For years there has been a lack of co-operation between New York City and the 'Up-State,' which has largely nullified all efforts of either faction to make itself felt. This convention has shown conclusively that similar problems exist in every city and county of the State and that a union of all the real estate interests of the State can and must exercise a powerful influence on legislation, and in the constitutional convention which will be held next April.

"The New York State Convention of 1914 set a new record for things actually accomplished. Although the rare opportunity for seeing New York from a professional viewpoint was eagerly grasped by all, the convention rooms bore an air of industry and the committee work was undertaken with an earnestness which marks the change from the old style real estate convention. Great problems confront New York real estate owners and their brokers, and this gathering indicated that there is a large body of men able and willing to assist in working out the solution."

Tax Reform in Chicago.

A constitutional amendment looking toward the relief of the heavy burden of taxation borne by real estate is urged by the Chicago Real Estate Board. A campaign is to be conducted whereby each candidate for the Legislature will be asked to pledge his support to the movement, and a number of other organizations, including the Cook County Real Estate Board and the Association of Commerce, are expected to join in the furtherance of a campaign for a more general plan of taxation under which new sources of revenue will be found.

—The next River and Harbor bill coming before Congress will carry, if promises be true, an appropriation for deepening the East River so that ocean-going vessels can use the extensive Bronx waterfront. Think of what this will mean to Bronx real estate.

New Officers for United Real Estate Owners' Associations.

The United Real Estate Owners' Associations will elect a new board of officers at their next regular meeting, to be held at the Astor Hotel on Tuesday night. The efforts of the nominating committee to secure the services of Henry Bloch for the presidency for another year, proved unavailing. Mr. Bloch in declining the nomination, stated that he thought he had done his full duty by the association for an entire year, and that he preferred to have some one else assume the leadership. Continuing, he stated:

"That the realty interests of New York have become more effectively organized than ever before, is freely admitted by those who have interested themselves in public affairs during the past year. Our own association not only watched, but actively participated in every matter of interest to the taxpayers of the city. We have become a powerful and influential organization whose aid and co-operation is now sought for by public officials. The achievement of most enduring benefit to our associations was the establishment of the permanent headquarters—a general meeting place and a central bureau of information for all property owners of New York. I am content to leave the presidency with the thought that I have at least helped to establish a permanent foundation for what can be made to be one of the most powerful organizations in New York."

A Filling-In Project.

A communication from the Northwestern Bronx Property Owners' Association, urging an appropriation for the filling in of Van Cortlandt Park south of the Colonial Gardens, Bronx, has been referred by the Board of Estimate to its Committee on Corporate Stock Budget.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Election week was not productive of any new developments in the real estate situation and conditions remain substantially unchanged. The elimination of a solid business day had its effect, as it would have even in a week characterized by active trading. The important sales concerned West Side apartment houses notably on Riverside Drive, Northern avenue and in West 123d street, where a Philadelphia company acquired a multi-family structure in a deal which also involved Atlantic City property.

There was recorded this week a building loan contract for $650,000 made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in favor of the Paterno Construction Company, which will be used to cover the cost of the construction of another West Side operation.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 10 as against 184 last week and 13 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 4 as compared with 8 last week and 7 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 6 as compared with 10 last week and 6 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 121 as against 124 last week, 9 having stated considrations totaling $285,850. Mortgages recorded this week number 53, involving $1,488,575 as against 50 last week, totaling $2,324,940.

From the Bronx 6 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 9 last week and 12 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $280,254, compared with $706,058 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $35,091,303. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $313,825 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Nov. 8, 1913, was $44,448,100.

Investor Buys on Northern Avenue.

M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company, sold for the Haven Construction Company, Charles Flaum, president, the southwest corner of Northern avenue and 180th street, a five-story apartment house on plot 100x75, recently completed. The house contains thirty apartments and has been held at $125,000. It carries a first mortgage of $90,000 held by the Germania Life Insurance Company, which made the building loan. Mr. Morgenthau states that the purchaser is a newcomer in the field of real estate investment, never having made a real estate purchase before. A sale of the adjoining property, the northwest corner of Northern avenue and 179th street, was prematurely reported last week. Mr. Morgenthau reports, however, that negotiations for this building are practically completed and that it is expected that contracts will be signed shortly.

Greenwich Village Deal.

Sykes Realty Corporation sold to Mark S. Reardon the one-story business building containing three stores and a theater on the west side of Southern Boulevard at the junction of Boston road, 174th street, and the Boulevard, covering a plot 75x130. In exchange the seller took from Mr. Reardon the seven dwellings at 107 to 115 Bedford street running through the block to 594 and 496 Hudson street, this property having a frontage of 80 feet in Bedford street and 43 feet in Hudson street, adjoining the Christopher street frontage.

Riverside Drive Apartment House In Sale.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, sold for Mrs. Lydia B. Hyde the Miramar Apartments, a nine-story elevator structure, on plot 78 x 100, at 452 Riverside Drive. The house was acquired by the seller in February, 1911, along with the Eton Hall and Rugby Hall apartment houses, all located just west of the grounds of Columbia University, in part payment for the old Babbitt soap factory, at 76 to 80 Washington street, extending through the block to West street, which Mrs. Hyde sold to B. Crystal & Son.

Out-of-Town Investors Buy Here.

The American Realty Company of Philadelphia has purchased from the Nason Realty Company, through Collins, Toan & Company, the Benmore, a six-story elevator apartment house at 449 to 453 West 123rd street, on a plot 75 x 100.11. The selling company has owned the property since August, when it was bought from Edward A. Kerbs, who had obtained the house in July at foreclosure on a bid of $109,000. In the present deal the American Realty Company gave vacant property at Atlantic City, N. J., in part payment.

Chelsea-Bronx Trade.

Brown-Weiss Realties bought from the International Distributors Corporation the new seven-story store and loft building at 136 and 138 West 22d street, on a plot 41.8 x 98.9. In part payment the buyers gave the northeast corner of Washington avenue and 167th street, a six-story flat, on plot 29 x 127. The latter house, together with a number of other properties, was acquired by the selling company last month in a trade.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

LEAH ROSENHEIM.—4 West 126th st, 3-sty dwelling, 17.6x100.9, $16,000.

KATHERINE EISLER.—1236 2d av, 4-sty tenement, 25x64, $16,000.

WILLIAM H. McCORD—68 West 83d st, 4-sty dwelling, 20x102.2, $23,000.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments and sales not held as per week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* In the case of which the property described was bid in by the plaintiff's amount.

The Auction Market.

Edward Kammak, an outside bidder, paid $15,750 for the three and four-story front and rear tenements at 516 and 518 West 27th street on a plot 50x98.9, offered at foreclosure this week. An interesting phase of this transaction was the purchase price which was about $4,-000 above the encumbrances. Property offered in foreclosure proceedings in the auction rooms have with but few exceptions failed to bring amounts equaling existing liens, and the sale of this property at a price which will mean the return of part of the investment to the defendant is the most significant event in the salesroom this week.

Light Your Halls

Twenty inspectors have recently been detailed by the Tenement House Department to see that hallways of apartment and tenement houses are lighted at night in accordance with the law.

The law reads that there shall be a light at night in the lower hall and one in the hall on the second floor. Many owners and occupants of tenement buildings unconsciously violate these provisions because of an inadequate method of controlling the light.

If you feel that the hallways of the buildings you own or occupy are inadequately lighted or the lighting improperly controlled we shall be pleased to render you any assistance in our power.

Write us and one of our lighting experts will show you how electric light will not only protect you against law-violation, but he will prove to you that it's the most economical form of lighting for hallways.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

PENT HOUSES AS "BUNGALOW APARTMENTS"

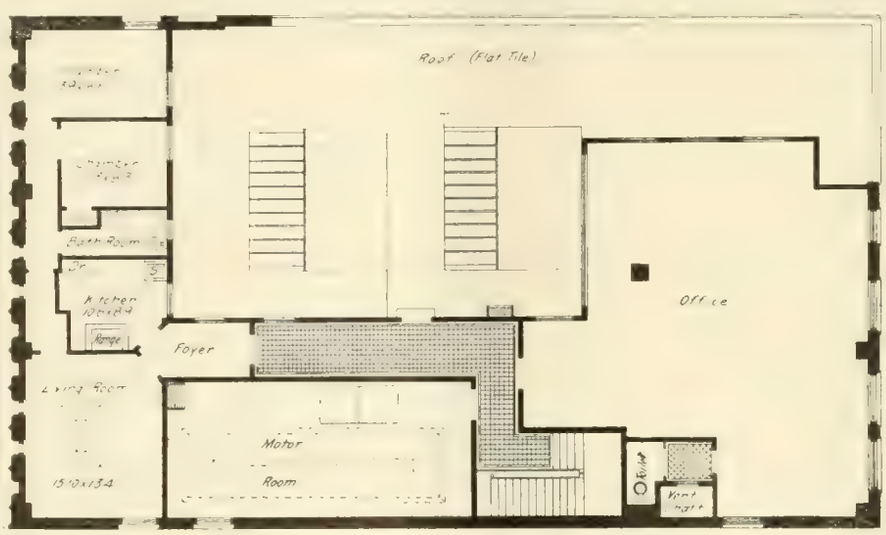
Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

PENT houses on roofs of office and loft buildings have for some time past been utilized as offices and studios, and their advantages for these purposes are manifold. For studios used by artists, architects or photographers they are ideal as they are located far above the noise and dust caused by traffic in the streets as well as within the building; and the light obtained is superior to that in an office. Until recently, however, the use of these pent houses has been limited to their rental as offices and studios, but now a new class of occupancy has been found for them, and it is quite possible that a larger field is opening for the owners of high business buildings in the midtown section, which although limited will pay a handsome return on the investment.

Opportunity for the owner is open for the more complete utilization of what was formerly waste space upon the roofs of these modern business structures. To make this space pay by the remodeling of pent houses into small, light housekeeping apartments requires only a small initial outlay.



"Bungalow apartments" on the roofs of office and loft buildings are only a recent innovation, and while practically an experiment they seem to have many advantages and possibilities. The success of these apartments would mean that owners and building managers could sell space on their roofs usually not utilized and would be able to considerably increase their rent rolls without inconvenience to themselves or to their tenants. There is no reason why a small apartment should not be practical from an economic viewpoint for both the tenant and the owner.

A number of excellent reasons might be advanced to prove why these apartments are practical, and one has only to see a roof bungalow decorated and furnished in order to feel certain that they combine all the advantages of life in a high-class apartment, with the privacy and seclusion of a private residence. When absolute privacy is a consideration, one of these suites has advantages over most apartments in the city. The tenant is isolated and only rarely comes in contact with other tenants in the building, as he does in an apartment house.

For individuals or small families of adults these pent-house apartments have peculiar advantages. They are located in the heart of the business, theatrical, shopping and club sections of the city. The surface of the roofs being for the most part of flat tile, can be utilized for out-door living-rooms or roof gardens, with only a slight additional expense. This is a distinct advantage over a suite in the modern apartment where the outlook is usually upon the uninteresting facades of the building opposite or the walls of an interior court.

Cross & Brown Company, agents for the building at 18 East 41st street, as reported recently in the Record and Guide, leased the pent house in that building to Donald Brian, the actor, for use as an apartment. The accompanying sketch of the roof plan shows the arrangement of rooms, method of access, as well as the free roof space which can be utilized. Minor structural changes, of course, were necessary and these were made at a small expense. The result, however, is a four room apartment with foyer and bath complete and practical for light housekeeping in every respect. The rooms are all fair sized, well lighted and ventilated. The living room, approximately 16 x 13 feet, has windows on two sides, and a ventilating skylight above. The kitchen has gas range, refrigerator space, sink and cupboards, a complete equipment necessary for the preparation of meals.

In the summer it is proposed to utilize the open space on the roof as a roof garden. Potted plants and shrubbery will be placed to partially screen the skylights and with the addition of a few comfortable chairs and lawn tables and benches, an out-door living room will be provided. This roof garden will add much to the pleasure of living in the city and will provide a comfortable spot for warm evenings. Where out-door sleeping is desirable, the advantages of an apartment of this type are obvious. All night elevator service is provided in this building and the tenant will be furnished with keys for the lower vestibule doors, so that access to the hall can be had after the building is closed for the night.

APARTMENT ON ROOF OF 18 EAST 41ST STREET.

The practical manner in which this particular apartment has been worked out, and the artistic possibilities noticed after the alterations and decorations were completed, have resulted in applications for apartments of a similar character in other buildings. The same agents have plans under way at the present time for installation of such an apartment on the roof of the new building at 15 and 17 West 44th street, opposite Sherry's Hotel.

Other buildings which have tried the same experiment and which have appeared successful from all viewpoints are the Emmet Building, on Madison avenue, where Dr. Emmet, owner of the building, has an apartment as his city residence; the Cameron Building, ot 34th street and Madison avenue, living apartments of F. W. Woolworth; on the roof above the 40th story of the Woolworth Building, and an apartment which is contemplated for the roof of the new Astor Building, at 10 West 33rd street, of which H. L. Meader is the architect. Mr. Meader is designing this apartment for his own occupancy as a residence and private studio.

Keeping the Balcony Filled.

The big problem of the theatre owner and manager is to keep his house full. His problem is much the same as that of the hotel, department store, or other establishment that caters to the general public. He must make his theatre a cheerful and pleasant place to come to. Every comfort, convenience and attraction that he offers helps to advertise and fill his theatre and to retain his patrons.

With this in mind many of the modern theatres are adding to their equipment by making provision to carry their patrons up to the balconies and galleries. The vertical elevator can, in a measure, perform this task, but its ability to move large crowds is limited because of its intermittent service. The constant come and go of theatre crowds demands a continuous service and this is now being accomplished in many well known theatres by means of the Escalator or "moving stairway."

The chief value of the Escalator lies in its ability to move large crowds quickly and safely. Operating on the principle of an endless chain it gives continuous transportation between floors and has a capacity capable of handling speedily the crowds in the largest theatres. It is driven by a low horse-power motor, runs smoothly and quietly and will operate in either direction to carry passengers to or from the balcony.

In the last few years the small moving picture show with its cheaper prices has appreciably detracted from the balcony and gallery patronage of the "legitimate" theatre and the higher class moving picture and vaudeville houses. Some progressive theatres, however, have found that by making the upstairs seats convenient of access and egress, thousands of amusement loving people who cannot afford to pay prices for orchestra seats will avail themselves of the Escalator to reach the balconies.

In one popular theatre where no reserved seats are sold, the management, by having an Escalator, does not open the doors to the orchestra until the balconies are well filled.

The Escalator virtually puts the balconies on the first floor.

That the policy, "Let the People Walk," has long been abandoned by progressive business people, is evidenced by the number of Escalator installations to be found in theatres, amusement parks, department stores, hotels, railway terminals and at elevated railway and subway stations. The attitude of the public toward these labor saving devices, installed to eliminate stair-climbing, is forcibly illustrated in the thousands of people making use of them.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Wax Coating for Concrete Floors.

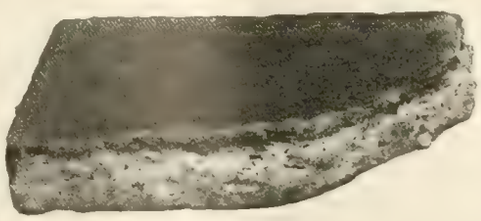
SUCH a thing as a wax coating for cement floors sounds incongruous at first thought, because it seems quite impossible to expect any substance as soft as wax to give any wear. But to all intents and purposes this is exactly what the Waxement Company, of 51 Chambers street, says it can do. And it seems quite feasible when the process is explained and its advantages analyzed. If the small cut appearing in the next column is closely examined it will be seen that instead of the wax laying upon the top of the concrete as a carpet or rug, it has made itself a part of the concrete fabric so that even under severe wear on the floor surface, the waxy preparation keeps the dust from flying and maintains the body of the floor structure.

In developing this material, chemists first studied the requirements of the average concrete floor, the first being to produce a material that would increase and make permanent the bond in the concrete structure no matter how great the surface wear would be. In other words, a material had to be found that regardless of weather and temperature fluctuations would make a perfect adhesive material between the silicates and cement particles in the concrete.



Next it was necessary to find a substance that has absorbtive powers sufficient to penetrate into concrete, and then came the problem of combining with these two a sort of lubricant that would minimize surface wear without being greasy and finally, after comprising all these qualities, the material had to be odorless, sanitary and decorative.

There finally was evolved the product by which the company is known. The larger cut gives some idea of the way it is applied, showing the interior of the Calumet Baking Powder Company's plant when the floors were treated by this method.

The manufacturers claim for this system of floor protection, positive protection of surface under all circumstances. In addition to making the floor almost wear-proof, it has the virtue of making them postively waterproof. Oils, grease, tar, pitch, glue or chewing gum will not stick to the floor, and even ink will not stain it if it is wiped up promptly. The manufacturers also make the claim that this composition will reduce the cost of floor maintenance considerably, regardless of whether the floors are merely subjected to shoe wear or steel wheel traffic. It is applied by heat and pressure and not merely with a brush as ordinary dressings. This material may be obtained in a variety of colors to correspond with decorative arrangements of offices and show rooms and it may be applied to badly worn floors just as satisfactorialy as to new ones.

A Wheeless Door Hanger.

BUILDERS for a long time have been in search of a wheeless door hanger; one that positively will stay on the track and will take long wear and hard usage. Such a hanger is illustrated in the cut in the lower part of this column. It is made by the Grant Pulley and Hardware Company, of 3 West 29th street. This pulley, as shown by the sketch, has the advantage of hanging the door upon a positive plane that cannot be offset by any manner of pull or push. It is noiseless because there can be no binding between rail and wheel for the simple reason that there is no wheel. The weight of the door is sustained by balls which carry the weight of the door entirely. There are no pins to rust out or bend, and it exudes no dust because the wearing surface is reduced to a minimum. At the same time this system offers strength without utilizing a bulky or unwieldy appliance. The appliance is especially commended in hanging of elevator doors, because they are noiseless and easily operated. It is known in the trade as the Diamond door hanger.

Looking at the sketch one cannot note its complete construction but the manufacturers say it is so simply constructed that there is nothing about it to get out of order; the balls are placed equal distances apart, assembled and held in place in such a way that no weak spots can possibly develop. The fact that the tracks are pitched at an angle of forty-five degrees precludes any possibility of dirt or grit clogging the balls in their operation.

Laying Concrete Under Water.

HISTORY tells us that the reason Portland cement came into such sudden and permanent popularity as a building material was because it could be laid under water as satisfactorily as it could be laid in the open air. Its use as the medium of foundation for the Eddystone lighthouse, exposed to the tempestuous seas, was its first practical try-out, and since then it has been used extensively both under and above water.

But there are many persons who have never understood just how Portland cement is laid in water, and so excerpts from an article in the Building World, by J. R. Middleton, asssistant engineer in charge of the Canadian Pacific Railroad bridge construction now in progress at Pitt River, B. C., may be enlightening.

Mr. Middleton says the first essential is a pipe usually referred to as a "Tremie," sufficiently long to reach to the bottom of the body of water where the concrete is being deposited. This is suspended vertically and may be raised as the work progresses. It is kept absolutely free from water at all times. The batch of concrete is deposited in the hopper, and slides down the pipe by its own weight. It is mixed wet enough to flow easily. The lower end of the pipe protrudes into the deposited mass a sufficient distance to prevent any influx of water.

The hopper, he says, is built of sheet iron, about 4x4 feet, with vertical sides for a depth of nine inches. In a further depth of one foot three inches, the sides are batterred in to leave a hole 12 by 12 inches. They are then turned in to form a pipe just large enough to be inserted in a short length of 10-inch wrought iron pipe fitted with a flange down in the lower end. The hopper is jointed to the short pipe by four verticle riveted bands, and the joint, which should always be kept above water, is calked so as to be "grout-tight." The remainder of the "tremie" is made up of lengths of 10-inch wrought iron pipe with screw joints except the top one, which is flanged to connect with the short piece riveted to the hopper. All screw joints should be greased and the flanged joint gasketed to insure water-tightness. A heavy band is riveted around the top edge of the hopper for reinforcement. A derrick is used in handling the "tremie."

A Fire-Prevention Window.

SPECIAL windows designed to meet requirements of the Labor Department, Bureau of Fire Prevention and the National Board of Fire Underwriters are being put on the market by the William F. Clark Company, of 315 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn. A conspicuous instance of the varieties of windows required to meet the conditions of these different safety agencies is noted in the stock listing as reported by the card index of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The list includes double-hung fireproof windows, twin double-hung and pivoted transom, stationary, twin stationary, top-hinged, pivoted upper, pivoted lower, single pivoted, twin pivoted and multiple pivoted. In each case the windows are designed for a special purpose and bear the label of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The windows made by this company are designed to do away with all possibility of warping under heat so that easy and positive action is assured in any emergency in factory, loft or office building.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

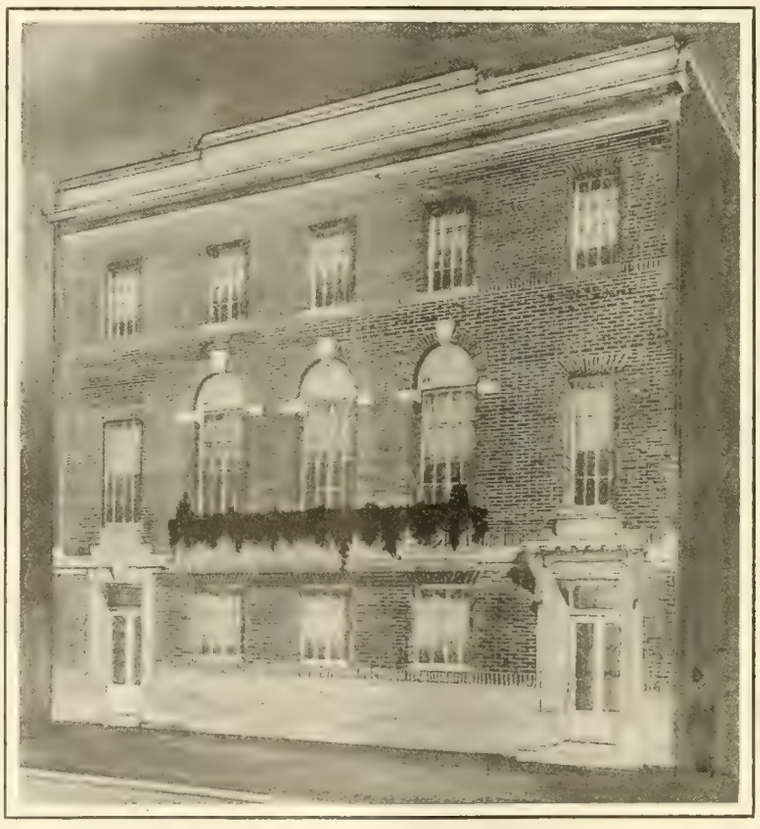
New "Twilight" Hospital Soon To Be Erected —Another Hospital Project For the Bronx

TO Greater New York's long list of hospitals, clinics, and sanitariums devoted to the special treatment of all classes of physical distress, there is soon to be added a new building which should do much to relieve the suffering of women. The building has been especially designed for the administration of the "Twilight Sleep" or narkophen-scopolamin treatment of obstetric cases. This system of treatment, of which so much has appeared in the public prints during the last few months, has been used in Frieburg, Germany, for some time. In this country many physicians and obstetrical specialists have made use of the theory with slight variations in the administration of the treatment.



In New York City the treatment has been tried in the Jewish Maternity Hospital on at least one hundred and fifty cases as well as in the Long Island College Hospital, in Brooklyn, at Bellevue Hospital and other institutions in Manhattan. The members of the medical staffs of these hospitals have been instructed in the methods of the treatment by a German physician who was formerly a pupil and assistant of Drs. Krönig and Gauss at the Frieburg clinic in Germany.

With the object of providing ideal surroundings and conditions where this treatment may be administered exactly as it is done at Frieburg a modern hospital building is projected. The structure will not be a large or expensive one, but it will be complete in every respect. According to the present plans, the projected building will be located in the Borough of the Bronx, in the vicinity of 142d street. No site has been definitely settled upon at this writing, although a number of available properties for the purpose are under consideration. The projected structure will be known as the "Twilight Sanitarium," erected and backed by a group of physicians and others who have studied the treatment.

Louis Allen Abramson, architect, 220 Fifth avenue, has designed and planned the proposed building and it will be erected under his personal supervision. The structure will be of brick with trimmings of buff Indiana limestone and marble, three stories and basement in height. The facade has been designed in a simple Colonial style without ornamentation of any description. While this building will not be a large one as compared to many other hospitals in the city, in it will be included all the modern equipment and appliances known to medical and surgical science for the proper care and comfort of the patients while in the institution.

The plans of this building are quite novel in their detail, and the special requirements of the treatment as far as the arrangement of rooms is concerned makes the problem a most interesting one for the architect. Of particular interest is the room in which the treatment proper is administered. As the success of this requires that the patient be under constant observation and inasmuch as this treatment, to be successful, depends upon the proper induction of Twilight sleep, absolute quiet and absence of glare or strong light is essential. The room in which the treatment is to be administered will be lighted with high sash, glazed with a blue glass. Direct light from these sash is so shielded that it is reflected first to the ceiling. In this manner a soft blue glow infuses the room, as it has been found that a light of this character is the kind best adapted to the treatment.

Provisions will be made so that a number of patients may undergo treatment at the same time, and for this reason the room has been designed of sufficient proportions to comfortably accommodate the expected demands. In this room a partition forms a passage in which are several doors, arranged with small glass panels. It is proposed to station the nurses and physicians in this "Silence Corridor" where they are able to observe the patients without disturbing them.

Louis Allen Abramson, Architect.
PROPOSED "TWILIGHT" HOSPITAL.

New Bronx Hospital.

Several years ago a group of physicians and laymen organized the Bronx Hospital Association as a solution of a serious situation which confronted the then existing hospitals in the borough. It was due to the rapidly increasing population and development of new and extended sections. The two hospitals in the borough at that time were overcrowded to the extent that patients had to necessarily be transferred to other institutions. The Lebanon Hospital, at Westchester avenue and 150th street, in the opinion of the committee, was too poorly situated (the elevated extension of the subway winds around the hospital buildings) to warrant further extension or improvement. The other, the Fordham Hospital, a city institution, was far remote from the vast section which now is thickly populated.

With the idea in view of increasing the hospital facilities in the borough and making them easier of access to the residents, the association decided to erect a modern structure, centrally located, which will cost, on completion, approximately half a million dollars. Louis Allen Abramson, architect, 220 Fifth avenue, has been commissioned, by the committee, to prepare the plans and specifications for the new project.

The site of the proposed Bronx Hospital is exactly half way between the two existing ones, secluded to a degree, though directly accessible from all transit lines. The building will be located at the southeast corner of Charlotte street and Crotona Park East, facing Crotona Park.

The building, as projected, will be five stories in height, on a plot 105x107 feet. The present plans provide for the construction of only one wing which will be occupied by an extensive out-patient department and dispensary on the first floor, and by the hospital proper on the remaining floors. The uppermost story will be devoted exclusively to operating and allied rooms and laboratories. On the roof will be a solarium, with wards for septic, tubercular and pneumonia cases. Upon the completion of the building the wing now to be erected, excepting the dispensary portion, will be transformed into a permanent home for nurses.

The floors throughout, excepting those in rooms in which water or live steam is to be used, will be covered with "battleship linoleum," cemented to the underfloor. This material, the architect states, possesses particular virtue for hospital work, in that it absolutely eliminates settlement or other cracks, is soft to the step, warm to the feet and is sanitary and easy of replacement and repair. All details of construction will tend to minimize interstices and sharp corners and other repositories for dust and bacteria. Mouldings and all the trim will have plain surfaces wherever possible.

Inasmuch as it is the fundamental requirement of a hospital to be "curative," the environment must be such that it will be pleasing to the patient, and must unconsciously give an impression of latent healthfulness. For that reason a system of ventilation will be installed which will permit the windows in wards and private rooms to be opened. It is held that there is nothing to be gained in painting the patients' rooms in unrelieved, glaring colors. Unsympathetic, white, cold, steel equipment, frigid and unattractive to the patient; while it breathes of sanitation, is certainly not conducive toward cheerfulness. Walls and ceilings enameled in soft pastel tones in various color schemes, with perhaps a flat, stenciled frieze, will add greatly to the restfulness of minds of the patients by not making them mindful of the fact that they are immuned in a hospital. Similarly the plain, broad, massive flush veneered doors, while splendid as to type, are primarily institutional.

Fire Rules for Up-State Garages.

Fire-prevention orders have been issued which strike directly at the owners of private and public garages and are of particular interest to such as have garages with a capacity of more than four cars, and those that are interested in their future construction.

The new law covering these orders becomes effective in this State (outside of New York City) on December 1st, and its rules and regulations will be sent to every city and incorporated village.

Following are the restrictions under the new law:

Repair shops shall not be maintained with a garage.

Heating shall be by steam or hot water.

Gasoline or naphtha tanks will not be allowed under sidewalks. Those installed will have to be removed and reinstalled in compliance with the new orders. These tanks must be buried at least three feet from the surface of the ground, and proper piping connected to garage or curb outlet. No pits will be hereafter allowed.

No building or parts thereof shall be converted into a garage or used as such, unless of fireproof construction.

Yonkers Y. M. C. A. Figuring.

At Malba, L. I.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

PLAN FILINGS SHOW GAIN OVER TEN MONTHS OF 1913 FOR METROPOLITAN DISTRICT—PRICES LOWER

Current Quotations on Standard Commodities—Lumber Weak

NOVEMBER opens with the building material market weaker on prices, but more hopeful than it was thirty days ago. Steel has dropped to 1.21c and 1.26c from a range of 1.31c and 1.36c, or ten cents in a little less than a month. Practically all lines of lumber are below prices quoted October 1. Shading is promiscuously done in those lines which do not publish list quotations, and customer and quantity govern practically all business being taken. Lumber is weak.

The volume and value of building plans being filed in the Metropolitan district tend to inspire confidence. Plan filings for the ten months just closed show a net gain for the corresponding period of last year of 1,308 buildings, and an increase in valuation of $2,991,100. Of this total New York City showed an actual gain in number of 1,091, the total plans filed in the nine months of 1913 being 9,223, whereas the year 1914 has so far developed 10,314 buildings. New York City shows a loss of $12,622,017 for the ten months, but this is made up by a gain of $14,000,998 in the total valuation of plans filed in the Metropolitan district, including East Jersey and Westchester.

Construction in the five boroughs of New York City in the ten months just closed gives a total of $117,425,983, as compared with $130,047,000 in the first ten months of 1913.

Outside of New York City there was a gain in new plan filings of 217 over the plan filings of last year. The large number of building artisans out of employment at present, and the fact that building material interests have brought prices down to the lowest possible levels, mainly to encourage new construction, makes it apparent that, while there is an actual demand for new buildings of certain types in the Metropolitan district, finances are still the retarding factor.

The opinion was expressed this week that building material interests will find that financiers will be inclined to look with more optimism upon the immediate business future now that the election has turned out as it has. Many building construction interests in the Metropolitan district believe that the depression has reached its last ebb, and that the improved sentiment noticeable at the week-end will develop into a freer trading market.

Plan filings in the five boroughs this week follow: In the corresponding week last year there were 143 new building plans filed, valued at $1,706,087.

PAINTS.

November Quotations Still Further Effected by War.

QUOTATIONS current in the paint ingredient market are all above figures listed on October 1. The fact that Turkey has entered the war and the possibility of Italy following suit has caused advances in certain colors and the prospects are good for still further advances. The extreme low price of linseed oil is responsible for a comparatively slight change in current mixed paint quotations in the trade.

White lead, dry or in oil, is reported to be seasonable, but concessions are being made by certain manufacturers for large purchases. Open prices are on the basis of 6¾ cents a pound for lot not less than 500 pounds. There is a slight advance in quotations for supplies in lesser quantities. Red lead is lower, prices ranging now from 5½ to 6 cents a pound for dry and 7¼ cents for red lead in oil. Zinc oxide is having a brighter view of the market with foreign competition temporarily suspended. Quotations run at 5⅞ for American process; 6½ French and 7 cents for red seal. White seal brings 7½ cents.

Many of the foreign dry colors are out of the market. Distributors are holding the remainder of their stocks for old customers. Domestic color makers are unusually active, and are getting good prices. Linseed prices continue to be in favor of the consumer. China wood oil, used to some extent for varnish making, is selling at nominal prices. Argentine is reporting prospects of a good flaxseed crop, so that there will be little cause for early price advances. Turpentine prices are steady and 48 cents is the generally accepted quotation.

All of which indicates that paint manufacturers are having hard sledding and because they have no means of knowing how long the present state of affairs will last, they are not anxious to overstock.

BRICK.

Prices Drop Slightly—Sentiment More Favorable.

WITH a slight improvement in riding at the week end common brick prices fell off moderately, apparently to encourage buying. Raritan brick is without change.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Nov. 5, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS PARAMOUNT

The Real Estate Association of the State Will Give Them First Consideration—Able Counsel Selected to Defend Property Rights

FIRST of all the questions that will receive the attention of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York during the coming year will be those to come before the Constitutional Convention. This was decided at a meeting of the executive committee of the association held last Saturday at Albany. No other question will be taken up by the association until the Committee on Constitutional Convention is well along with its work.

Then, it was determined committees will be appointed to consider the following subjects: (1) Legislation, (2) Taxation, (3) Ethics, (4) Local Organization, (5) Regulation of Brokerage, (6) Rural Credits, (7) Mortgage Loans, (8) On Consolidation of Building Inspections, (9) Housing, besides the usual committees on Finance, Auditing, Publicity, and Membership.

When the executive committee had listened to the report of the Committee on Constitutional Convention it was decided, after careful consideration, to appoint Danforth E. Ainsworth to represent the association at Albany. Mr. Ainsworth is a man with considerable experience in public life. He is vice-president of the Albany Chamber of Commerce, was a member of the Assembly from 1885-1895, and during that time was the Republican leader on the floor. He has also been Deputy Attorney General, and has served Albany as president of the Board of Education.

Mr. I. H. Lehman, of the law firm of Leaventritt, Cook & Nathan, of which ex-Judge David Leaventritt is the head, was chosen New York Counsel. Mr. Lehman has had a wide experience in real estate matters, and represents some very large property owners in New York City.

A Resolution.

The reasons which led to the appointment of these counselors were stated in a resolution adopted by the Committee on Constitutional Convention, to the effect that the committee's service should be initiated by the appointment of a chairman, whose duty it would be to ascertain what features, if any, of the present constitution it is desirable to change. This to be discovered by consultation first with expert students of the Constitution, then with the other members of the committee, and finally with the members of the various local associations.

Especially will the chairman take note if any movements are on foot to amend or supplement the Constitution in a way inimical to the real estate interests of the State, and to obtain all possible information regarding the source and character of these movements, all of which information to be placed at the disposal of the association and its committees.

It was considered that it would be wise to have the first vice-chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Convention a resident of Albany. It was the verdict of the committee that Mr. Delancey M. Ellis possessed unusual qualifications for this position, and that he should be induced to accept it. Mr. Ellis has consented to accept the vice-chairmanship of this committee, with the understanding that he will be in charge of this important work in Albany. He also expressed his desire that Danforth E. Ainsworth act as Albany counsel to this committee, in addition to acting as counsel to the association, and this will doubtless be confirmed by the committee at its next meeting.

M. MORGENTHAU, JR.,
President State R. E. Association.

Mr. Ellis is a member of the firm of E. D. L. Palmer & Co., of Albany, the largest real estate firm in that city, specializing in the management of estates. He is a trustee and treasurer of the Albany Chamber of Commerce, a Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and is in charge of the work of revising the Tenement House Regulations for cities of the second class. He was recently in charge of the New York State Exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Oregon.

President Morgenthau presided at the meeting of the executive committee and also at the meeting which was held at the Ten Eyck, and was attended by the following:

L. D. Woodworth, 1st vice-president, of Rochester; W. Jay Russell, 2d vice-president, Ogdensburg; Wm. D. Bloodgood, 3d vice-president, Queens; C. A. Hills, treasurer, Syracuse; H. L. Reed, secretary, Amsterdam; Wm. H. Moffitt, New York (ex-officio); Wm. H. Mills, New York; Ten Eyck T. Mosher, Jr., Albany; Chas. F. Warner, Buffalo; F. A. Austin, ex-Secretary, New York.

An Important Committee.

The president appointed the following Committee on Constitutional Convention: Chairman, L. D. Woodworth, Rochester; 1st vice-chairman, Delancey M. Ellis, Albany; 2d vice-chairman, Allan Robinson, New York; 3d vice-chairman, Thomas J. Overturf, Buffalo; secretary, H. L. Reed, Amsterdam; Danforth E. Ainsworth, Albany; Hiram Mintz, Binghamton; Fenton M. Parke, Buffalo; Henry Bloch, I. H. Lehman, Thomas M. Mulry, Edw. P. Doyle, Elisha Sniffin, Manhattan; Cyrus C. Miller, Edw. B. Boynton, Bronx; John F. James, Brooklyn; James Frank, Long Island; Wm. H. Williams, Queens; H. B. Stevens, Kingman N. Robins, Rochester; S. T. Betts, Herbert Hess, Syracuse; A. J. Baechle, Utica; Robert E. Farley, Clifford B. Harmon, Westchester; E. J. McGoldrick, Assistant Corporation Counsel.

Keynote Speeches.

In calling the members of the committee together for their first meeting, President Morgenthau said: "We want to cooperate with every real estate organization indirectly interested in real estate throughout the State. We are the only State-wide organization I know of devoted to real estate interests in this State, and we are therefore, perhaps, in an enviable position, but one which brings grave responsibility. We want to realize those responsibilities, and that work which we have in mind should not be simply for ourselves, but rather for the citizens of this State. We are not going to serve ourselves, if we are going to try to put through anything in the way of amendments to the Constitution that are not in the interests of the public at large."

Allan Robinson, of New ork, one of the vice-chairmen of the committee, was asked to state his views, and said: "I heartily sympathize with the recommendations embodied in the resolution just adopted. It followed quite a discussion in which we went over the whole matter, and was the composite photograph of our minds, on the best way in which this thing should be done. Now, while I am afraid that anything I may say will be merely saying over again what already has been said, I do want to emphasize one point; that is, that you cannot go into this thing without being prepared for it. No one of us at the present time knows his job. Perhaps no one of us is really qualified of himself to learn his job. There are some few men in New York State who are experts on these matters, and we have to get hold of them and get the benefit of their opinion.

"One of the primary results we are after is to find out what we want and then to work on the members of the Convention in their own districts. The best influence you can have, the strongest influence you can bring to bear upon them is the influence of their own friends and acquaintances, and you have in your organization of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York a machinery for bringing home to practically every single one of these legally elected delegates the points you want to impress upon the Convention as a whole, when they come to Albany."

The committee decided to defer further action until Mr. Ellis and Mr. Ainsworth could get together and formulate their ideas.

RIDGEWOOD A MECCA FOR BUILDERS

During the Last Five Years This Growing Section Has Been Transformed From a Wilderness Into a Prosperous Residential Community

RIDGEWOOD, that section of Brooklyn and Queens extending along both sides of Myrtle avenue from about St. Nicholas avenue and including the Fresh Pond Road district, has been the scene of one of the most remarkable building movements in the recent real estate history of Greater New York. What was five years ago cultivated farm land and truck gardens is to-day a thriving home community, and the corn field of yesterday has been transformed into the block of completely tenanted dwelling houses, overnight, as though by magic; hundreds of six-family houses have been built and utes by means of the Myrtle avenue elevated road."

About a year and a half ago, the old baseball grounds, bounded by Putnam avenue, Elms street, Woodward avenue, Palmetto street and Covert avenue, began to be improved by the G. X. Mathews Company, with the six-family house typical of Ridgewood's development. This company since its formation has sold about 350 houses. During 1913, 65 were disposed of, while in the previous year 46 changed hands.

"By standardizing our type of operating on a large scale," said A. F. Mathews, "and by buying our land at farm prices, we created a product which, in our opinion, would net the greatest return for the least outlay. We selected as our field the border line between Kings County and Queens County, because it was along the lines of transit improvement and because land values were low in a section particularly favorable and adaptable for immediate improvement.

"Houses were built which gave a tenant five rooms and bath for an average of $15 per month, and which sell for about $11,500. We have just finished the last of 150 six-family houses in this locality, which completes a $1,000,000 operation during the last year. Since January 1, 1914, we have sold 65 houses on Putnam avenue."

At present, Bauer & Stier are building about 200 three-story double and single flat houses on the property bounded by Myrtle avenue, Cornelia street, Madison street, Woodbine street, Palmetto street and Cypress avenue, and others on Putnam avenue, Gates avenue and Linden street.

Along Myrtle avenue, the principal business street, every lot from Wyckoff avenue to Fresh Pond road is either improved or being improved with business buildings. Louis Gold built and sold in the last two years 40 such properties, all located on the avenue. He is at present erecting eight two-story and store buildings at the southeast corner of Myrtle avenue and Madison street and two similar structures at the southwest corner of Myrtle avenue and Hancock street. Adjoining this property at the Madison street corner, the Simar Realty Company is building eleven six-family houses in the east side of Madison street, four of which were sold from the plans; also on the next block on the north side of Putnam avenue five six-family houses.

The Ring-Gibson Company is just finishing thirty four-story houses, containing flats of five and six rooms at rentals of $18 to $19 per month, in both sides of Madison street, between Doubleday street and Fresh Pond Road. Foundations for thirty more have been completed for similar properties in Woodbine street between Doubleday street and Fresh Pond road, while plans have been prepared for an additional twenty on adjoining lots. Of the thirty houses nearing completion in Madison street thirteen, according to the builders, have either been sold or are under contract for sale.

James M. Hawley, a local real estate broker, in discussing the section, said: "With the selling and renting market for Ridgewood properties unusually good, with an excellent demand for stores on the business streets, Myrtle avenue and Knickerbocker avenue, the outlook for autumn is bright. In a great many instances, the owner occupies a flat in the building and rents out the other floors. The result is discrimination on the part of the landlord in the selection of tenants which benefits not only the property but also the neighborhood."

the demand for additional ones is so insistent that extensive building operations are now under way, heedless of apparent financial stringency, and reflecting the confidence which builders have that their properties will be as successful as those which came before.

When it is considered that Ridgewood's development began after the 1907 panic, and became conspicuous during a period of so-called "real estate reaction," the wonderful strides which the district has made merits additional recognition.

The new buildings are tenanted chiefly by old residents of Williamsburgh and Greenpoint, who have been forced to seek new quarters on account of the great changes which those neighborhoods have undergone, by reason of the influx of a large foreign population.

"These people selected Ridgewood," said William Meruk of Meruk & May, who have figured prominently in the Ridgewood section, "primarily because of the fact that the section is well above the sea level and is highly desirable for residential purposes; also because the residents can reach the business centers of the city in less than twenty-five min-

GREAT CHANGES PLANNED FOR BROOKLYN

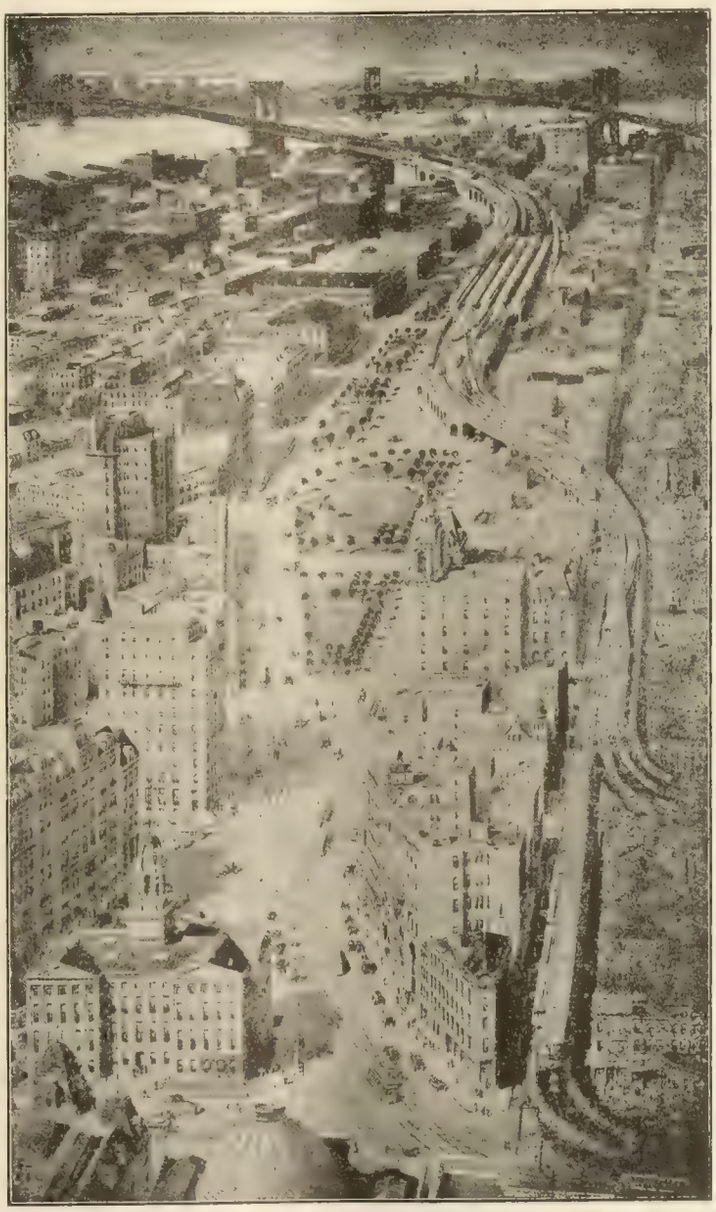
The Elevated Road to be Removed From Fulton Street and a New Approach to Brooklyn Bridge Built—Application to P. S. Commission.

THE New York Municipal Railway Corporation has made application to the Public Service Commission for a relocation of part of its Fulton street elevated railroad in Brooklyn, in accordance with the plan favored by the Bridge Department, the Committee on City Plan and citizens' organizations. This plan provides for the removal of the elevated structure from Fulton street, between Borough Hall and the Brooklyn Bridge and its transfer to Adams street and private property.



By an amendment to the Rapid Transit Act, passed in 1913, the Public Service Commission is authorized, upon application from a company holding such a franchise, to relocate a line or part of a line in another street. Under the Dual System contracts the company has the right to build a third track on the present elevated structure, and it is willing to apply to the cost of the new structure in Adams street an amount equivalent to the money it would spend in erecting the third track. The company points out, however, that it is about ready to proceed with the third-tracking and urges immediate action if its application for a relocation in Adams street is to be favorably considered by the commission and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

At the Bridge Department this week it was stated that the petition and plan of the railway corporation fit into the plan of the department for the proposed approach to the bridge. The ultimate result will be a great improvement for that part of Brooklyn, especially the lower Fulton street section, which will be reflected in a revival of real estate.

The plans prepared by the Department of Bridges for the proposed improvement of the Brooklyn Terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge and the approaches to that structure show an ornate and artistic entrance to the bridge in place of the barn-like structure which now obscures the view of every one approaching it from the Brooklyn end. The unsightly shell of steel and glass, used as the Brooklyn Terminal of the Bridge, is to be torn down when the Department is authorized to go ahead with its comprehensive changes. That terminal has outlived its usefulness and is a constant reminder of the days when all Brooklyn elevated railroad passengers had to change cars there, going to and coming from Park Row, Manhattan. The tangled web of tracks and the platforms over the trainyard, which extends back to Tillary street, it is also proposed to tear out.

Real Estate to Be Acquired.

All of the property not already owned by the city, between Fulton and Washington streets, from the new entrance of the bridge at Sands street, up to Court street and Myrtle avenue, is to be acquired, and the buildings on that property torn down. The roadways of Fulton and Washington streets, from the bridge entrance up to Court street, will be widened for the accommodation of traffic, and the center of the spacious approach that will be created devoted to park purposes. The elevated railroad structure on Fulton street, from Boerum place to York street, will also be taken down if the Bridge Department's plan receives the approval of the P. S. Co. The elevated loop in Sands street and High street will be eliminated, and the elevated railroads running to the bridge station will be operated through Adams street, which will be widened to accommodate a five-track elevated railroad.

PROPOSED BROOKLYN APPROACH.

The removal of the elevated railroad as proposed would be far-reaching in its effects. Borough Hall Square would be decidedly enhanced in attractiveness and realty values would undoubtedly show marked increases. With the bridge approach laid out as a park, with wide roadways on either side, and relieved of the elevated railroad structure, it would seem inevitable that much of the abutting property for a wide surrounding area would also increase in value. The plans developed by the Bridge Department, covering the proposed improvements to the Brooklyn Bridge, provide for a modern station equipped to accommodate ten-car trains. The arrangement of the tracks approaching the Bridge would be changed so as to increase efficiency of operation, which means that more cars could be run over the structure. The proposed elevated railroad, that would connect the tracks in Adams street with the bridge station, is shown on the plans and pictures of the improvements as a structure that will be in conformity with the general artistic treatment of the approach from Borough Hall and the new bridge station.

It is contemplated not only to rearrange the operation of elevated railroad trains over the bridge, but the trolley or surface car traffic is also to be handled in a new and more efficient way. Under the proposed plans the bridge local trolley cars are to be cared for in the bridge station on a mezzanine floor. The footpaths or promenade of the bridge are to be free from obstructions. The roadway facilities for team and vehicular traffic are in the new scheme considerably increased and arranged to eliminate congestion and interference with street car traffic.

The improvement of all the facilities on the Brooklyn Bridge which are proposed by the Bridge Department, if carried into effect, would be adequate to properly serve that structure should it in the future be reconstructed so as to double its capacity.

In the construction of the proposed approach a plaza would be created by the removal of the buildings in the block bounded by Johnson, Fulton, Tillary and Washington streets, with an area of approximately 50,000 square feet. That plaza would be available and would be an ideal site for a public building. The Municipal Building, now being constructed at the Manhattan end of the bridge, has a gross floor area of 40,000 square feet, or less than that which could be provided on the plaza of the proposed Brooklyn approach.

Would Start Buying.

Peter S. O'Hara, of Bedford Park, says it would be a great boon to the real estate market and would attract many buyers and also many tenants if three-family houses could be freed from the tenement classification: "We know for a positive fact that there are more investors for three-family houses than for apartment houses, as a three-family house has a certain amount of privacy, which both owner and tenant like. At the same time, a three-family house can be run on a profitable basis, which means that the rent for the two floors will maintain the cost of keeping the property, thereby giving an owner an opportunity to have free rent for the trouble in looking after the house."

HOW THE HALF-TAX LAW WOULD WORK OUT

It Would Not Lower Rents For Working People, Nor Reduce Taxes for Small Owners—Who the Beneficiaries Would Be

By J. H. EHREHART

IN the discussion of the proposed law to halve the assessment of building values I have seen no concrete examples given showing the necessary consequences of such a law.

The only justifiable excuse offered for exempting such a large amount of property from taxation is that it would reduce rents for working women and men. Those who make such a statement and apply it to the Borough of Manhattan are either very ignorant of actual conditions or make false statements as to the results.

There are only 7,000 vacant parcels of real estate in Manhattan Borough, assessed at about $160,000,000, or less than three per cent. of the total valuation, including personalty. Therefore there must be a large increase in the tax rate if $866,000,000 of improvement values are to be deducted from the assessed valuations.

The great majority of buildings in the Borough of Manhattan are either from twenty to one hundred years old, or are what are called "taxpayers" (buildings intended for temporary use when the present conditions of title or use will not justify a permanent structure). These buildings add very little, if anything, to the value of the land on which they stand, and are assessed not at their reproduction value less depreciation, but on their selling value above the land value.

Present Basis of Assessment.

An examination of the assessment rolls shows that, in spite of the modern buildings scattered over the borough, the great majority of improvements are assessed at from 5 per cent. to 45 per cent. of the land value of the lots on which they stand. This applies to practically all private residences in the borough over twenty years old, excepting those in choice residential sections, old flats, apartment houses, business houses south of 23d street to City Hall, and all the old factory buildings on the East and West sides of the city.

With the exception of a few model tenements and modern flats, these are the buildings in which the average working woman and man who pay rent and whose wages are affected by the rentals their employers must pay are vitally interested. The beneficiaries of the proposed law would be the public service properties under the streets and rivers, the large power houses of the same corporations, the large hotels and apartment houses with rentals of $2,000 to $25,000 per apartment and the modern up-to-date skyscraper.

The Annual Report of the Department of Taxes and Assessments for 1914 gives the following figures:

|---|---|
| Total amount of land values, page 67. | $5,149,250,720 |
| Total amount of personal, page 73 | 287,768,270 |
| Total ratables. | $5,437,019,030 |
| Tax, at the 1914 tax rate of $17.80 per thousand, $96,778,938.73 | |
| Total improvements ordinary real estate, page 67. | $1,612,328,120 |
| One-half real estate of corporations, page 67. | 46,389,443 |
| One-quarter special franchise, page 67. | 74,148,523 |
| Total improvements | $1,732,866,086 |
| Amount to be deducted by law, one-half. | 866,433,043 |
| Total ratables. | $5,437,019,030 |
| Deduct from total ratables the above. | 866,433,043 |
| New ratables. | $4,570,585,987 |

Total revenue required, $96,778,938,734, divided by total new value, gives a new tax rate of $21.242 per thousand of valuation, an increase of $3.442 per thousand of valuation. I have no means at hand of determining the actual improvement value connected with special franchises and purposely make the estimate very low. The actual figure would show an increase of about $3.50 per thousand valuation.

In the case of a private dwelling valued by the Tax Department at $6,000, the new law would work out like this:

Private dwelling: Land, $4,000; improvement, $2,000; total, $6,000; tax rate, $17.80 per thousand, $106.80. Halving building value: Land, $4,000; one-half building value, $1,000; total, $5,000; at tax rate of $21.30 per thousand, $106.50, a saving of 30 cents to the very small private house if worth one-half the value of the land.

The figures in the accompanying table explain themselves. The examples are taken from the Assessment Rolls of 1914.

Note: The foregoing table proves that the beneficiaries of the proposed Half-Tax Law would be public service properties, the larger hotels and apartments and skyscraper office buildings, and not the homes of people in average circumstances. The tax rate under the new law is estimated at $21,242 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, to compare with $17.80 under the present law.

Azeez Khayat, of Rector street, will not be likely to become a modified single taxer, nor will the forty-eight tenants of the Astor estate in Block 399. The buildings are in fair repair, but date back to "before the war." Strangest of all, the great beneficiaries of such a law are all opposed to it. Why? Because they recognize its injustice and realize that if the loose-witted can pass such a law there will soon be more unreasonable laws that will hurt them as well as the average real estate owner.

A circular is being industriously distributed in the city streets purporting to be signed by Messrs. Dan Beard, Percy Grant and a dozen other humanitarians, advocating the single tax, pure and simple, petitioning the Governor of the State to secure the passage of legislation reducing the assessment of improvements by degrees to one per cent. of value.

The Astor Policy.

This circular quotes the holdings of the Astor family as an illustration of the evils of present conditions. As a matter of fact, well known to all persons interested in real estate, the Astor family has kept well above the average in the development of its real estate, and all of its old tenements are kept up in good condition, and all repairs necessary are promptly made for the benefit of its tenants. The five properties of the Astor family named below would be benefited to the extent of over $75,000 annually by such a law—another instance of the almost certain failure of the physician to accomplish a cure if he does not specialize on the particular malady he wishes to treat.

Vacant Property Does Not Pay.

No vacant real estate in Manhattan held over a long term of years subject to taxes and improvement assessments earns the legal rate of interest for its owners.

At the present time there is no class of building improvement that is not carried on ahead of the demand. If the burden on vacant land is increased, it would cause a flurry for a short time and absolutely destroy the value remaining in private residences and other structures not thoroughly up to date.

CONTROL OF THREE-FAMILY HOUSES

Widespread Opinion Favors Removing Jurisdiction From Tenement House Department—No Hope of Liberal Treatment

A LARGE body of opinion throughout the city evidently favors taking three-family houses out of the jurisdiction of the Tenement House Law. Real estate owners, agents, brokers, builders and architects seem to be all of one mind in regarding the proposed amendment as having become very necessary.

Howard C. Pyle, of 201 Montague street, expressed his belief that it would be wise and proper to permit alterations to the old private brick and stone dwellings for occupancy and use by three families, in an inexpensive way and without having to conform to the red tape and make the unnecessary expenditures required by the tenement law.

"In Brooklyn," explained Mr. Pyle, "there are many fine substantial private houses, that have outlived their use as strictly private residences and their taxable values are suffering for lack of availability. These buildings generally are of excellent construction and are very practical for such an alteration and would provide the best living conditions.

"The present Tenement House law absolutely prohibits and obstructs any practical alterations of this kind. Its provisions in this respect are unnecessarily drastic. However, the present tenement house officials seem to be unwilling to consider any changes for the better, and apparently are unwilling to admit that there should be different provisions applicable to three-family houses than to twelve- or sixteen-family houses.

"On the other hand, there has been a growing demand for a more even distribution of New York City's enormous population, and many theories have been advanced to obtain it, such as single taxation, restriction of building heights, improved transportation, dock facilities at Jamaica Bay and Montauk Point, and yet right at our doorstep we have a partial solution that was entirely nullified in 1901, when the Tenement law was passed.

"From the real estate standpoint, the three-family house is the best medium to encourage ownership by the moderate classes, for the reason that it will return a small profit on the investment and provide, as well, good living quarters for the owners. This class of property would be always in demand even in abnormally dull times. It is also the kind of construction that affords the least opportunity for undesirable speculation, and its practical prohibition by the Tenement House law is responsible for the overproduction in two-family houses.

"Associations, real estate interests, and especially the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, have been of the opinion that there is an urgent need of some change in the present laws. Various committees have been working for some sort of modification in the law, but practically without result, and the general feeling is now that the only way a change can be made is by removing from the Tenement House Department jurisdiction for three-family houses and placing it with the Building Department, the same as for two-family houses that are so popular today. This, I believe, will be accomplished in the very near future.

"Only in the past ten years has real estate been denied that constitutional right known as 'a day in court,' and during that time it has suffered untold hardships, and has been staggering under the load of all sorts of unnecessary and oppressive laws and regulations, placed upon the statue books by those inexperienced with its requirements and without prudent thought or considerations. The time is coming when this huge yoke of guardian ad litem by the soldiers of fortune must be thrown off, either by consent or through rebellion."

Should Agitate.

Moore & Landsiedel, architects and superintendents, with offices at 149th street and Third avenue, said they could see no objection to exempting three-family houses from the tenement law. If the various real estate and taxpayer organizations throughout the city would agitate and place the issue before the next Legislature, no doubt satisfactory results could be obtained. Persons who had built two-family houses in the Bronx in the past had since come to the conclusion that their supposed investment has become a burden. Their ground was too valuable for the class of building, and especially where there were assessments still pending for street openings, trunk sewers, etc. At the present time a two-family house was not salable at a price to yield the money invested. Prior to the enactment of the Tenement House Law, when the three-family house came under the supervision of the Bureau of Buildings only, two-family dwellings were built in abundance, because they were worth the investment and they could be sold by a builder to advantage; but since the enactment of the present tenement law, the building of these kind of houses had so completely ceased that they had drawn approximately but one plan of this kind in two years.

Eugene J. Busher, of Courtland avenue and East 149th street, Bronx, said:

"My experience has been that if three-family houses were taken out of the Tenement House Department of the City of New York it would be better on these grounds:

"First—They are built for a person to live in as a home and get enough money out of the two other floors to pay the taxes and interest on the mortgage, if there be any mortgage.

"Second—If the Tenement House Department does not bother them all the time to make little repairs, etc., they will pay; but if the Tenement House Department compels them to fix things all the time, there is nothing left, and that is why three-family houses are not in the market; people seem to be afraid to buy them on that account.

"I hope your valuable paper will try and get the Tenement House Department to leave three-family houses out of their jurisdiction."

Automatic Sprinkler Case Finally Disposed of.

The Court of Appeals, on the 10th instant, denied a re-argument of the appeal in People v. Charles Kaye. Mr. Kaye was convicted of misdemeanor for failing to provide his loft building with the sprinkler protection required by an order of the Fire Commissioner. The case was ultimately appealed to the Court of Appeals, where, after argument by Carlisle Norwood, in behalf of Kaye, and Assistant Corporation Counsel MacNulty, representing District Attorney Whitman, the conviction was affirmed.

Lately, counsel for Mr. Kaye made application for a re-argument of the matter. The denial of this application by the Court of Appeals finally disposes of the controversy concerning the authority of the Fire Commissioner to require the installation of automatic sprinklers in factory buildings, as defined by the Labor Law.

As the law is interpreted by the highest judicial authority of this State, the Fire Commissioner has the power to require that factory buildings shall be equipped with automatic sprinklers, subject to the right of any property owner to contest in the courts the reasonableness of the requirement, as a matter of fact, in a particular case.

A thousand years of peace when the present wars are over is the prophecy of the Bishop of London. It is hoped the peace will be coupled with prosperity in business, lower taxes on real estate, a minimum of restrictive legislation and a good market for real property.

The Real Estate Association of the State of New York is well advised in not trying to do too much. A careful study of the State Constitution with the aid of expert counselors, and with a view to being prepared to make wise suggestions for the good of real estate when the convention assembles, is sufficient for the present.

The tentative City Budget for the fiscal year 1915, being now under consideration in the Board of Aldermen, that body of lawmakers has an opportunity of rendering a great service to the tax-ridden public by making a sincere effort to reduce the enormous total of expenditures. Marked consideration for taxpayers at this time would help greatly to restore general business confidence.

A tax of $1 92 on real property may not seem high to those cities which have a higher rate, but their rate is higher by reason of a lower assessed valuation. Where an owner must pay on full valuation, as in New York, it is different. In New York we have reached a point where, as Judge McCall has said, if a halt is not called, and some plan of alleviation found, the owners of real estate may well contemplate confiscation.

The one recourse that an aggrieved taxpayer has in this State is to a court action. The State Board of Tax Commissioners has power to "investigate and examine" only. New York City feels aggrieved over the way the counties have taxed its acqueduct property and is spending a lot of money in attempts to get redress. Until authority is vested in some central body to order a reassessment where justice demands it, and to limit the taxes levied in any city, there will be no real reform.

An Important Work.

The effective work accomplished by the local real estate associations during the past few weeks in relation to the budget makes it desirable that the scope of their beneficial activity be extended. They should be able to make their voice and influence heard at Albany as well as at the City Hall, for, as we all know, a large part of the city's money is spent under the direction of the Legislature, and its work is as of decisive importance in respect to many important aspects of the city policy. It will be particularly important during the coming session, because the Legislature just elected will pass upon the new Charter, which is now being drawn by a committee connected with the local administration. It is consequently very encouraging to read a report that effective steps are now being taken to support the State Real Estate Association. Such an association is extremely desirable and can exert a very useful influence at Albany, because the committees of the Legislature will pay very much more attention to the suggestions of a general organization than it will to the suggestions of a local body.

Of course the influence of a general association could not be used in reference to many legislative proposals of the utmost importance to New York City, but it could be used on behalf of sound general laws—laws framed to give a larger control over their own affairs to the municipalities and to bring about a better and fairer relation between the State and local governments. These fundamental questions will have to be fully considered by the coming Constitutional Convention, and it is most desirable that the interests of real estate owners, which are the same throughout the State, should receive abundant and definite expression during the deliberations of the convention. A state property owners' association should be organized for this purpose—if for no other.

A Business Revival at Hand.

According to every superficial indication, a genuine improvement in business is about to begin. Until recently the country has been readjusting itself to the shock of the war—a shock which was so severe that it has taken over three months merely to restore the machinery of commerce and industry to comparatively smooth operation. At last, however, the shock seems to have been largely absorbed: business confidence is being restored; and business activity will steadily increase. The operation of the Federal Reserve Act will contribute substantially to this desirable result. It will add to the effectiveness of the banking resources of the country at the very juncture when such an addition is most necessary. The danger in the near future is not, indeed, of an under-supply of credit, but of an excessive supply, considering the necessary limits of wholesome business activity at the present time. But the Federal Reserve Act ought to provide against unwholesome speculative activity. The powers of the Federal Reserve Board are enormous. By its control of the discount rate it can discourage speculation of any kind —speculation that is either general or local. For the first time since the National Bank of the United States went out of existence the banking system of the country is efficiently organized and centralized.

Hereafter American business of all kinds can depend upon a much steadier and better regulated supply of credit than it has been able to get in the past, and this new condition will have a most beneficial effect on business activity. It should in the long run have a particularly beneficial effect on building and real estate operations. Ever since 1906 real estate and building in New York City has been suffering from the drawback of a more or less contracted supply of loanable capital. In spite of this drawback enormous and even excessive building transactions have been financed, but they have cost more than they should and there have been times during which loans could be obtained only at a very high price and under the most serious difficulties. If this condition can be even partially remedied, it will save New York real estate owners and operators much anxiety and many millions of dollars a year.

Even a very considerable improvement in the supply of loanable capital will not be of much immediate assistance to the local real estate and business market. It may lead to the purchase of some real estate which otherwise could not have changed hands, and it may lead to the reconsideration of certain building operations which were abandoned as a consequence of the uncertainty produced by the war. But it cannot bring about any really substantial recovery in the local situation, because trade conditions do not as yet favor such a recovery, at least not so far as Manhattan is concerned. In none of the speculative districts do the conditions exist which favor an extensive buying and building movement. Another year of speculation will be necessary before either the mercantile district or the upper West Side will be ready for a substantial increase in building. Brooklyn and Queens are better off in this respect than are Manhattan and the Bronx. Building operations in those boroughs are even now running ahead of last year, and they are likely to expand still further in the near future. Taking the situation as a whole, there can be no doubt that the lowest point has been passed and that an upward tendency will soon begin to prevail. The year 1915 will show a decided improvement over this year, which is now fortunately drawing to a close.

Financial Capital After the War.

Financiers and economists are very generally apprehensive of a severe scarcity of capital immediately succeeding the end of the war, and, of course, they are in the main justified in their expectations. But there are some grounds for believing that they exaggerate the effects of the war on the destruction of capital and that the financial system of the world may repair the havoc caused by the war more quickly than they anticipate. The chief grounds for this belief consists in the economies which are brought about as a consequence of the much more serious and continent life which people are obliged to lead. Economists are agreed that one reason why capital became increasingly dear of recent years was the constantly growing luxury of the rich. Incomes which used to be saved and re-invested have more and more been spent in socially wasteful ways—a result which has, of course, made consumption larger, but which has deprived the economic systems of the accumulation of capital, which had become indispensable for further business development.

It is manifest that the war has very much diminished the waste that resulted from luxurious and extravagant habits. All over Europe the rich have been obliged to curtail their amusements and to live soberly and economically. Something of the same kind is happening in this country, although, of course, to nothing like the same extent. The savings from these sources will do something to repair the loss of capital which business is suffering as a consequence of the actual destruction of property; and after the war is over the rich may well continue their more thrifty habits at least for a certain number of years. It seems probable, consequently, that economic recuperation will proceed much more rapidly than many financiers anticipate.

Reason Together.

The expectation is that a number of bills amending the Tenement House Law will be introduced into the next Legislature for enactment into law. Some will be proposed by the Tenement House authorities, who have been singularly successful in the past in getting measures through. Should not the principle of co-operation which is elsewhere replacing the old antagonism between private citizens and public officials extend to the tenement house authorities?

Why cannot there be a conference on the subject of contemplated tenement legislation, so that each side may know the needs or desires of the other?

To the advantage of all concerned, conferences of this nature have been held by the State Factory Investigating Commission, by the State Industrial Board and by various New York City boards and commissions. The Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, in revising the building code, consults the public as to its wishes at every step. The Building Districts Commission, the West Side Improvements Committee, the City Budget Committee—all take the public into their confidence, preferring to have the co-operation of the people than their ill-will.

Dissatisfaction with the Tenement House Laws continues to exist among the owners of small properties. Time and remedial legislation have healed some of the wounds, but there remains a feeling pervading all the boroughs that real estate ownership is being made unnecessarily difficult in New York City under the Tenement House Law for people of small capital. It is alleged that a great section of the market for cheap suburban homes could be saved for New York if certain classes of property which once returned an income to their owners could be relieved from the severe restrictions of the law. If, for example, the handsome and commodious three-story and basement brick and stone dwellings with which the Bedford section and the Park Slope section of Brooklyn abound could be changed from private dwellings into flats.

This is an important public question, about which there should be a free interchange of views, with the expectation of either showing the utter undesirability of so changing the law, or else of arriving at a fair compromise between the interests of real estate and business, on the one hand, and those who exercise a guardianship over the law, on the other hand. This would be better than the old way of each party trying to take the other by surprise, and it would be far better to discuss the matters at issue here in the city than oblige citizens to go to the State capital at short notice for that purpose.

There should be an end to surprise legislation from Albany, no matter from what source or for what laudable purpose, because in too many cases it is intended to take a mean advantage. Let us fight our local government battles here in New York, if there must be any fighting, but let there be some effort at co-operation first. We are sure that the Tenement House Department and the Charity Organization's Tenement House Committee would find pleasure and profit in a conference with the real estate interests as now organized and represented.

Real Estate Values and the War Tax.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Realizing the far-reaching influence of the Record and Guide in advocating proper legislation for the real estate interests, I am encouraged to submit an opinion regarding a section of the Federal War Tax Law, recently passed, concerning real estate conveyances which becomes effective December 1, 1914. It reads as follows:

"Conveyances: Deed, instrument or writing, whereby any lands, tenements or other realty sold shall be granted, assigned, transferred or otherwise conveyed to, or vested, in the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons by his, her or their direction, when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance thereon, exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500—$.50, and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereon in excess of $500—$.50."

This tax takes for granted that in this State provision has been made for the recording of considerations in deeds. There is no such law on the statute books, to my knowledge, at this time, and only about five out of a hundred deeds filed in this county show a stated consideration. These comprise in the main referees' and executors' deeds. It is obvious that the War Tax Law would reach only five per cent. of the recorded instruments, which would net but little return.

A great proportion of recorded instruments showing considerations affect properties which have been foreclosed, and which have already been burdened with various fees. The additional tax would work another hardship on both the defendant and the plaintiff in each proceeding, and such deeds should be exempted from the tax.

With this condition of affairs, 95 per cent. of recorded deeds will avoid the tax, unless some State action is taken to permit the Federal law to fulfill its requirements. Such action, if taken, must make it obligatory on the part of the seller to incorporate in the deed in place of the usual "one dollar and other valuable considerations" the exact amount of the purchase price. As the deed specifies the amount of liens existing against the property, you would have on record the actual selling price. By this means owners, prospective buyers, various city departments, and other interested parties, would be able to ascertain the value of any piece of property by personal investigation. The acknowledgment in the deed would have to be revised, the conveyor swearing to the truth of the actual amount received.

Should a plan of this kind be adopted, assessed values would become real values through standardization, thereby practically eliminating the greatest difficulty which now confronts the tax commissioners in determining property values for the purpose of taxation.

Fate of Single-Tax Candidates.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Last year sixty-five candidates for the Assembly were pledged by the Society to Lower Rents, for the Single Tax Bill, known as "halving the tax upon improvements." Of these, twenty-two were elected. This year the Society to Lower Rents pledged only forty-two candidates for the Assembly, and at the election only eight out of the forty-two were elected. No State Senators were elected last year, but this year fourteen Senatorial candidates were pledged by the Lower Rents Society. Only one of these Senatorial candidates was elected.

In addition to its attempt to elect certain candidates for the Senate and Assembly, the Society to Lower Rents started a campaign to defeat the following five candidates: Assemblyman Ellenbogen, Crane and Hoff, all running for re-election; Senator Cullen, who was up for re-election, and Ogden L. Mills, Senatorial candidate in the 17th District, New York County. Of these five candidates, whom the Single Taxers attempted to defeat, only one failed of election, S. Clinton Crane. On the accompanying sheet is a list of the Assemblymen and Senators who were pledged to the Single Tax plan with a notation as to the results of their candidacy on November 3.

Following are the Senate and Assembly candidates pledged by the Society to Lower Rents in New York and Bronx Counties, together with the results:

Senate—Herman Weiss, P. Canavan, F. P. Coughlin, Walter R. Herrick, George W. Simpson, Henry Salant, Jeremiah Kelleher, all defeated.

Assembly—The following were defeated: Joseph S. Siegel, Harry G. Fromberg, Henry S. Parks, I. Apfel, Alexander Todd, Leon Bleecker, E. J. Roche, H. Opdyke, Thomas J. Keenan, Franklin Brooks, William W. Young, James Gear, Benjamin E. Moore, G. E. Heywood, C. F. O'Brien, Arthur Johns, Arthur G. Muhlker, M. J. McEnany, Isidore Hershfield and Isidor Silver. Those elected were: Nathan D. Perlman, S. Sufrin, Thomas Kane.

Kings County—Senate—The following were defeated: F. W. Moore, Charles C. Wise, Orris L. Forrester, J. B. Neary, W. H. Ream and Andrew Colvin. William J. Heffernan was elected.

Assembly—Those defeated were: Frederick Bennett, L. M. Barbieri, E. F. Hills, W. J. McRoberts, W. H. Tappsy, Charles W. Morton, James E. Hults, Frederick Ulrich, Wallace H. Erskine, William C. McKee, H. Scheidemann, H. C. Karpen and Maurice DeYoung. R. Hunter McQuistion, P. A. McArdle and A. C. Flamman were elected.

The Largest Item of City Expense.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The largest item of enhanced city expenses is that of interest on city bonds. This interest charge for 1915 is $52,000,000, a million a week. The city is engaged in a form of financiering which would be ruinous to any private interest, corporation or business concern. This plan is to issue for cash bonds for municipal purchases which yield no revenue in return.

If a railroad issued bonds for many million dollars to be used for ornate monuments or unused fields, such action would be unwise. New York is paying $52,000,000 interest on bonds for which $94,000,000 was issued for bridges which yield no net return; $15,000,000 for armories; $6,000,000 in markets which entail a loss of about $50,000 a year, and $30,000,000 in public buildings, the latest additions to which are to be the new court houses in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx.

One hundred and fifty millions are thus represented unproductively. If the city continues its policy or impolicy of issuing bonds for purposes which are unremunerative, the annual interest charge will continue to rise, and the swelling burden will have to be met by heavier taxes.

Discouraging Real Estate Ownership.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I certainly think that, from a real estate standpoint, and more particularly from the investor's view, houses containing less than four families should be stricken from the Tenement House law. I can quote you many instances where both the investment and the building itself were ruined.

I have in mind a house on Atlantic avenue, purchased by a widow for investment, having three separate sets of improvements therein. Not long after, the first floor became vacant; later on, the second and third floors were also vacated, and the property remained in that condition for at least five or six months. During this unoccupied period, the Tenement House Department insisted that fire-escapes be put upon the premises, and that windows and doors be cut here and there for light and air. As a matter of fact, instead of encouraging the investor, she was made to lose her property, from the fact that she was unable to rent to two families on account of the three sets of improvements and was unable to comply with the requirements imposed by the Tenement House Department.

Another case is the three-story building consisting of two apartments and a store. It is very easy to see that buildings of this character should also be stricken from the Tenement House law. Look at Nostrand avenue between Malbone street and Flatbush avenue, for example, with block after block of this kind of buildings vacant. The small storekeeper cannot afford to pay $40 to $45 for a store and from $15 to $20 for an apartment, and if this class of building was to be eliminated from the list he could then live with his family in the rear of the store, provided the improvements could be put in.

If there ever was a change made in the department, it certainly should be along these lines.

I hope that by the combined efforts of real estate owners and brokers they will eventually be able to take this class of property from the tenement classification, and after this is done I am sure that real estate investors will be encouraged and that sales for this class of building will be increased.

THE CITY BUDGET.

Real Estate Board Asks the Aldermen to Keep It Down to the 1914 Level.

The Board of Aldermen is considering a budget submitted by the Board of Estimate amounting to $199,238,000. This budget is nearly $7,000,000 greater than that of 1914, and is over $80,000,000 higher than the budget of 1906. In round figures, the adoption of this budget will necessitate an increase of at least 12 points above the 1914 tax rate generally, and of 20 points in the Bronx and 36 points in Richmond.

The Real Estate Board, in a communication to the Board of Aldermen this week, expressed the belief that these increases, if imposed, would have the most serious effect upon real estate in the City of New York and that the tax levy, based upon such a budget, would be extremely difficult to collect.

"The Comptroller will tell you," the letter continues, "that on July 31 last, there were $116,000,000 of uncollected taxes, notwithstanding the fact that there had been sales of tax liens in every borough of the city during the past three years.

"Every member of your board is aware that the city cannot borrow, except upon temporary revenue bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, for the expense of government. ,

"It would be extremely unfortunate if by your action in approving the proposed budget, you so depressed real estate and discouraged property owners that they would not make the effort necessary, even provided that such effort could be successfully made, to pay their taxes next May. In that event the city would be without the money necessary to conduct its government.

"It should be remembered also that it is generally believed that assessed valuations are entirely too high and many hundreds of protests and applications for reduction have already been made.

"If the protests are granted and the assessed valuations lowered, there would be a still higher rate if the budget remains as it is. If the protests are not granted there will certainly be a great number of certiorari proceedings.

"In view of all these facts and of the fact that there is no State tax this year, the Real Estate Board feels that the budget for 1915 should not, at least, be any greater than that of 1914. They are justified in this belief by the frequent official statements that under the efficient and economical government commenced under such happy auspices five years ago, large savings in administration expenses were being effected.

"The budget in detail has not yet been printed and is therefore not available for examination by the Real Estate Board, but we are certain that if you will refer this matter to your Finance Committee we will be able to present to you specific items of expenditure that can be reduced without in any way affecting the efficiency of the present city government or compelling you to drop from city employ any worthy man. These suggested reductions, if adopted, will be sufficient to enable you to keep the tax rate as it was in 1914."

Brooklyn Brokers to Meet.

At the Clarendon Hotel, on next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the members of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers will hold their annual meeting for the election of directors and officers for the ensuing year. Reports from the various committees will be submitted. The nominating committee has already made known its selection of five directors to serve for three years: Joseph M. May, Howard C. Pyle, William P. Rae, Isaac Cortelyou and Eugene J. Grant.

It is expected that many matters of importance will come before the board for discussion as the past year has been an active one for the different committees, especially so with the Legislative and Taxation, Municipal Improvements, Tenement House and Transportation and Subway committees. It is expected that Chairman A. J. Waldron in his report for the Tenement House Committee, will make final recommendations.

Increases Plate Glass Business.

The Fidelity & Casualty Company has taken over the entire plate glass business of the Preferred Accident Insurance Company, which is retiring from that line. The contract of reinsurance become effective November 1, 1914, and involves approximately $40,000 in premiums. Superintendent Nelson D. Sterling, who made an extensive trip through several of the Western States in order to arrange certain details of the transaction, reports that he has been successful in obtaining the co-operation and promise of active support from practically every agent concerned, so that we may expect to hold by far the greater portion of the business thus transferred to our books.

Working for Sixth Avenue.

Posner & Co., of 111 Broadway, stock brokers, have called a meeting of Sixth avenue property owners and others interested for the afternoon of Saturday, November 21, at their offices, at which a plan for rehabilitating Sixth avenue as a retail shopping center will be broached. Posner & Co. are endeavoring to start a movement that will save the big store buildings from being cut up into specialty shops.

Property owners in the Riverdale section north of 242d street, where the subway stops, are anxious for an extension of the road for some distance northward, without consideration for Yonkers, but simply as an act of justice to a neglected part of New York. They will hold mass meeting next Wednesday night at Lavelle Hall, on Riverdale avenue and 260th street.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Eugene Lamb Richards, Superintendent of the State Banking Department, in a letter recently sent to the heads of savings banks in this State, said that he did not believe any enforcement of the rule requiring sixty days' notice of depositors was necessary, in view of the improvement of the money market and the restoration of public confidence. For the purpose of discussing this letter, representatives of a number of banking institutions in Manhattan met in the Union Dime Savings Bank this week and virtually decided to discontinue the rule.

A. P. W. Kinnan, president of the Union Dime Savings Bank, in discussing this move said: "A decision to discontinue the rule which was established soon after the outbreak of the war, will not, in my opinion, cause any immediate improvement in the real estate situation. The results will not be evident until after the next day, when interest is payable, which will be January 10. At that time the savings banks may be in a position to loan more liberally on real estate, a branch of the business which has been very quiet for several months, because the various institutions will be able to determine the exact sums of money withdrawn after that date.

"The relation of the savings bank to real estate lies in the mortgage, and the way in which the bank can help the owner is by loaning him money on his property. There is every reason to believe that with an improvement in the condition of the savings banks, the bond and mortgage branches of the market will be benefitted."

M. Morgenthau, Jr., in discussing the mortgage market, said: "The loan this week on a large vacant lot made by a conservative lender clearly demonstrates not only the stability in New York real estate in times of stress, but also shows that we are rapidly on the road to normal conditions in the market. I have just returned from an up-state trip and find these conditions are not local in New York, but that there has been a decided change in sentiment within the last few weeks.

"A few weeks ago it would have been difficult to obtain money on the very choicest properties even at 6 per cent. Today it is difficult to find really choice loans at 5½ per cent., and there is plenty of money for exceptionally good propositions at 5 per cent."

Of interest, this week, was the institution of condemnation proceedings for the acquisition by the city of the Stevens' House, erected about 112 years ago, and other landmarks, near Battery Park, which are to be torn down to facilitate subway construction.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 15 as against 10 last week and 30 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 4 as compared with 4 last week and 10 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 11 as compared with 10 last week and 20 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 131 as against 121 last week, 10 having stated considerations totaling $418,289. Mortgages recorded this week number 72, involving $2,852,774 as against 53 last week, totaling $1,488,575.

From the Bronx 11 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 6 last week and 7 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $631,837, compared with $280,254 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $35,723,140. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $505,670 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Nov. 15, 1913, was $44,953,770.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

NECESSITY OF AN ENGINE ROOM LOG

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

ENGINE room records, comprising a systematic tabulation of all figures pertaining to the engine and boiler rooms in large structures, have become a necessary factor in the up-to-date scientific management of buildings. The need for such a carefully prepared and preserved record has been demonstrated by the high standard of efficiency to which this phase of management has been raised. While no particular system is in general use there is little difference substantially in the various methods.

The systems of maintaining records vary in most cases with the size of the building and the comparative duties of the building manager and the chief engineer. In a ten-story building there would obviously not be so great a need for a more complex system as in a twenty or thirty-story building, and where in a building of the latter type an engineer would take fifteen-minute records of a "load," in a smaller building an hourly record would be sufficient. In cases where the highest efficiency has been obtained such results can be traced through the preparation of a log which enables the building manager to become familiar with all the details of the engine room at a moment's notice.

Value of Records.

The daily records are of value because they serve as a basis of comparison with the corresponding days or months of the previous year or years. In this way the building manager can discover when there is an overdrawing or overconsumption of fuel or other supplies. Most engineers keep a record of all incoming material, such as coal, oil, etc., and another record showing how long a given quantity lasts. Elimination of waste through a speedy discovery of the same is the consequence because the defect can be traced and remedied on the same day.

All work, as for instance the installation of new elevator cables, is recorded and the careful building manager is enabled to ascertain the quality of the material used on the job. Where a new set of cables are installed, which lasts only three months as compared with the previous set lasting nine months, the building manager, by consulting and producing his record, can prove to the contractor that the cables in the second set were less satisfactory than those previously purchased.

BUILDING managers have long since realized the necessity of keeping a complete set of engine-room records and many forms have been devised to facilitate the work. So many opportunities exist for leaks and unnecessary expenditures, in the mechanical departments of a large structure, that a comprehensive system must be adopted, yet so simple as to be instantly legible. The Record and Guide presents a Boiler-room Log now in use in one of the large office buildings. This schedule cares for all the principal routine items and also provides for exigencies.

An engineer who manages the plant in one of the Fifth avenue office buildings, north of 42d street, relates an interesting incident in connection with his record. The building operates its own plant except between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m., when the structure is practically untenanted. During that period the Edison Service is used. A careful daily tabulation of the meter is maintained through readings each day. One morning sometime since, the engineer in reading the dials discovered an abnormal increase in the consumption of current etc., as compared with the day before and the corresponding day of last year. He immediately commenced an investigation and discovered that there had been a parade the previous evening and a large number of tenants had viewed it from their windows, incidentally turning on the lights, and using the night elevator.

Another engineer in a commercial building in the downtown district noted on his log an exceptional demand for power and upon investigation discovered that one of his tenants, a dealer in novelties, was running a special sale and the great stream of customers necessitated an unusually large number of elevator runs, with cars filled to capacity.

The log reproduced on this page, through the courtesy of the chief engineer of one of the largest office buildings in the city, represents the systematic way in which he keeps in constant touch with a complex workings of his plant. It contains a complete record of coal received in bunkers, buckets fired and ash cans carried away. It also notes the various temperatures at stated periods, the boiler pressure, heatings and readings and all other items in connection with the operation of boilers. He checks the arrival and departure of all employees, together with all miscellaneous data of the engine room down to the minutest detail. Such a comprehensive chart is typical only of the large isolated plant. In smaller buildings engineers are content with a log recording only the more important details, such as the voltage, amperage and kilowattage of and the supplies received and consumed.

The log has reached its highest development in the building of a prominent insurance company where it takes the form of a large chart, 16 feet long and 4 feet high. Each day the various reports are pegged out on the chart and connected by variously colored strings. Instead of the figures indicating an increase or decline the strings serve the same purpose and show a rise and drop with each fluctuation. At the end of the year the chart is photographed, framed and hung up to remain a permanent record in this unique form.

Necessity of a Log.

A log has become a necessity and should be kept with studious care. Indicating as it does the daily changes in each service of the engine room its value lies in its accessibility for reference. To the engineer it means the introduction of scientific methods in the management of his plant; to the building manager it means closer co-operation with his assistants through a reliable medium for the detection and elimination of waste and needless expenditures, and to the owner a ready reference to the whys and wherefores of the cost of the maintenance of his property as affecting his net return. In addition the log serves as a check upon carelessness of employees and is an irrefutable record of their punctuality and capability. For these reasons, the log has become recognized as an important part in the management of a building, and in these days when the aim of every building manager is the greatest efficiency of service for the least amount of outlay, the log is a necessary requisite.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

A Safe Distributing Panel.

ALL danger of a person's fingers coming into contact with dangerous wires and switches in electrical distributing panels is removed in a panel box being introduced by the Bryant Electric Company, of Bridgeport, Conn.

All connections and conductors are concealed and separated from the front of the panel by a continuous sheet of insulating material. There are no live parts exposed. In case a switch mechanism requires adjustment the cover of the particular unit affected can easily be removed, and the switch mechanism can be replaced or a new one substituted just as quickly.

"On" and "off" appear in plain English; the former is in black letters on a white background, and the latter in white letters on a black background; so that the condition of each switch may be distinguished at a distance. The fuses are self-indicating and can be replaced by anyone without the slightest danger of contact with the circuit, and without the use of screw-drivers or other tools and the attendant danger of using them.

With a quantity of these units in stock, the contractor is ready to make up lighting panels of any size, thus avoiding delays or expensive stock. The case with which the parts are assembled minimizes installation cost, and the device itself, on account of its simplicity, is inexpensive. It is shown in the next column.

Oxy-Acetylene Welds.

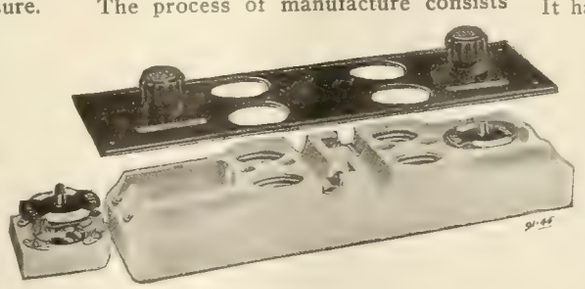
CONTRACTORS having to do with fractured steel members in equipment or in structural parts may, in the past, have doubted whether the broken parts could be assembled safely by welding. Some tests made recently by Professor A. Campion and William C. Grey on oxy-acetylene welding of steel have demonstrated that such welding may be almost as strong as the original fabric. The American Gas Light Journal reports the tests and observations as follows:

"The material used was mild steel, containing about 0.25 per cent. of carbon. For the first series, bars ⅝-inch in diameter were turned down for a length of 1½ inches at the weld to ⅜-inch in diameter, the elongation being taken on a 1-inch length. Contraction of area was not recorded because most of the fractures were much too ragged to measure.

The results indicated that an average weld had about four-fifths of the strength of unwelded steel, while the ductility is only about one-fifth. There was no great variation in maximum tensile strength but ductility varied widely from the average, for the lowest strength of welded metal was about 80 per cent. of that of the original steel and the lowest elongation was only 9 per cent. Ductility was increased by hammering; but the strength was lowered. Reheating after hammering improved both the ductility and the maximum stress. Reheating at the same temperature without hammering caused a comparatively large rise in ductility and a small rise in the strength. Quenching in water and reheating brought the strength up almost to that of the unwelded steel, but diminished the elongation.

For the impact tests bars 6¼ inches long and ½ inch in diameter were notched in the center of the welded part to a diameter of 0.4 inch. The results showed great variation and suggested that an average weld would resist only half as much fatigue as unwelded metal. Hammering improves the weld in this respect, but the metal should be reheated at a full red heat—800° C.—to avoid production of strains or brittleness. Reheating or annealing without hammering has but little effect. The treatment which produced the best results in the tensile tests gave the worst in the impact tests. Further experiments with the bars notched at the edge of the weld instead of at the center were made to ascertain the influence on the whole weld of the overheated zone produced during welding, and the results varied still more than those given by centrally notched bars; but while hammering specimens of the latter gave 84.4 per cent. of the original strength, the hammered side-notched bars gave only 57.7 per cent. Impact tests on plates of different thicknesses showed conclusively that the reliability of the weld and the strength decreased as the thickness increased.



The authors conclude that very serious responsibility is incurred by using autogenous welding in parts which may be subjected to any considerable strain.

Water-Glass.

UNDER the name of "water-glass" a new system of damp-proofing concrete surfaces is being developed. It has a use in the prevention of dust arising from concrete floors, it is a preservative of remarkable powers, but, according to J. T. Dennison, an expert, who has been making a study of this material for a long while, the possibilities of its use in steel construction and other lines are not now fully known.

"Water-glass" is a compound of silicate of soda or silicate of potash or mixtures of both. The silicates are prepared by melting together mixtures of quartz or white sand and soda ash or potash as the case may be. These mixtures, when melted in proper portions, form a glassy mass which is soluble in hot water.

The process of manufacture consists essentially in melting the above materials, usually in the presence of charcoal or other form of carbon, then pulverizing and bleaching out the material with hot water. The silicate or "water-glass" is made of different strengths, and is sold according to percentage of dry silicate present in the solution, usually 33 to 66 per cent.

It seems to offer more advantages when used as a paint vehicle than any other material known to science. At first glance, it would appear to be a very cheap material. Secondly, when used in a paint, it would make one which could be more readily applied. Third, it would dry quickly and is entirely odorless and non-poisonous. Fourth, it would prevent the formation of mould or fungus. Fifth, it would also prevent worms or dry rot in wood; and, lastly, it would be a fire retardant.

But, like every other new thing, it has its primary drawbacks. It can, so far, be used only with a very limited number of pigments, because most of the pigments have some action of the "water-glass," causing it usually to coagulate. It does not remain smooth, but forms a slight efflorescence of white powdered soda on the surface. It has a tendency to chip, crack or peel off. Atmospheric changes have a deleterious effect on it as have also acids and gases of various kinds.

In mixing colors with "water-glass," many changes take place. Sometimes the color changes entirely, due to the action of the alkali in the "water-glass. Then, again, the color may act upon the silicate of soda or potash, forming therewith an insoluble silicate, such as lead silicate or zinc silicate, so that when the color is mixed with "water-glass" it immediately causes the entire mass to become solid instead of remaining in a paint consistency. As a matter of fact most pigments have this action to a greate or less degree.

The lead compounds and zinc compounds have this action to a very marked degree, so that it takes place immediately. The iron oxides, ochre and umbers work slowly; and a very few materials like chromium, barium chromate, ultramarine blue, and the graphite blacks work very slowly upon the "water-glass," and can be mixed for some considerable time. Whiting and clay have a decided action upon this material. It will be seen, therefore, so far as the use of "water-glass" with pigments is concerned, it is almost impossible to make a mixture which will keep any length of time.

A number of attempts have been made to make use of "water-glass" by applying first the pigment bound with glue or some other material of a similar nature, and then applying over this material a solution of "water-glass." This has a disadvantage in necessitating two operations; and it is also necessary to overcome the action of the "water-glass" of the colors, especially those colors that are readily affected by alkali.

Silicate of soda or "water-glass" is largely used for the purpose of fireproofing various materials. Wall paper has been fireproofed by the use of "water-glass;" but precaution must be taken with regard to colors, as mentioned heretofore. Scenery and similar products have been treated with "water-glass" for the purpose of fireproofing.

"Water-glass is a very useful material as a binding substance, and is used very largely in the manufacture of boiler coverings and all of the asbestos products, as it acts as a fireproof glue for the purpose of binding the fine fibers together. It has also been used for mending various materials, and it is extremely useful for that purpose. It is also extensively used in the manufacture of artificial stone and similar substances.

As a fireproof material, silicate of soda or "water-glass" is probably equal to any other substance used for that purpose. It has the disadvantage of being alkaline in its action and in its nature. It is always used thinned down with water, and should not be applied too heavily, otherwise it will only collect on the surface and flake off when dry.

Treatment of Wax Wood.

WAXED floors can be cleansed by washing off thoroughly with turpentine and benzine, after which they can be rewaxed if desired. Desks, chairs, etc., in offices which have been scratched or damaged by wear may be made almost as good as new by washing thoroughly with lukewarm water and then rub with a piece of cheese cloth in which some prepared wax has been placed. After this has been applied, if a vigorous rubbing is administered by hand the surface will become perfectly smooth and its original gloss will be restored. Floors finished in plain oil only can be refurbished with a mixture of turpentine and linseed oil.

A FIRE TEST.

The Fire-resisting Qualities of Metal Ceilings Compared with Plaster Ceilings.

The Associated Metal Ceiling Contractors of Greater New York conducted a test on Wednesday, November 11, at the Columbia Testing Station, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, by Prof. James S. The reinforced concrete structure in which these tests are made at Norman avenue and Monitor street, had been put in readiness for the occasion, with six different panels, two plaster and four metal ceilings, specified in the following manner:

Plaster on wood lath; plaster on metal lath; metal ceiling on wood furring; metal ceiling on metal-covered furring; metal ceiling on ⅞-inch wood sheathing; metal ceiling on wood furring and plaster boards nailed to wood beams.

At the end of the test, which lasted exactly one hour and fifteen minutes, with a heat of 1,700 degrees, inspectors of the various departments having representatives present, rendered decisions in order of their superiority. No. 1, metal ceiling on plaster boards on wood furring; No. 2, metal ceilings on sheathing ⅞-inch thick; No. 3, plaster ceiling on wire lath; No. 4, metal ceiling on metal-covered furring; No. 5, metal ceiling on wood furring; No. 6, plaster ceiling on wood lath. Encouraging News.

During the last few years the necessity of having switchboards in buildings of all classes has been growing, until today there is hardly a structure of size in which this device cannot be found. In speaking on this subject Mr. Charles L. Eidlitz, president of the Metropolitan Electric Manufacturing Company, said: "In 1902 our company was incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey with a capital of $25,000, but since that time the business of the company has grown to such an extent that it was found necessary to increase the capitalization to $300,000, all of which has been subscribed.

"In addition to switchboards the company also manufactures panel boards, detachable mechanism, switches, receptacles and various other appliances. The company has a large plant in Long Island City, near the terminal of the Queensboro bridge. Our company is thoroughly equipped and we consider the plant one of the best in the country.

"We have installed our appliances in many notable structures, including the Altman store, Lord & Taylor's, the Hall of Records, Mount Sinai Hospital, Bankers Trust Company, Grand Central Terminal, State Capital, Albany; Woolworth Building, American Express Building, Western Union Building, Adams Express Building, National Biscuit Company's Building, Hill Publishing Building, J. # The Foundation
New York City

Of all the skyscrapers, factories and public buildings in New York City built in the last five years how many were not erected on concrete foundations? Less than one per cent.

For the foundations of the largest and most important what cement was used?

Lehigh—in such structures as the Woolworth, the Municipal, and a number of others you can name for yourself.

Why? For permanence.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

ANALYSIS OF EASTERN SITUATION SHOWS IMPROVED SENTIMENT REFLECTED IN BUILDING ORDERS—MONEY EASING

Some Startling Facts with Reference to Local Building

BIG thinkers in the business world are more unanimous in their belief that conditions are improving, especially during the last ten days. Collections are better because the average business man expects that the introduction of the Federal Reserve bank system next week will ease the general money situation and permit building operations that have been stalled since the outbreak of hostilities abroad, to proceed.

On the first of the month building operations east of the Mississippi were calling for materials as follows: Clay products, 58 per cent. of normal; cement, 70 per cent.; steel and iron, 43 per cent.; paints and oils, 52 per cent.; naval stores, 47 per cent.; lime and plaster, 68 per cent., and roofing material, 55 per cent. At the end of the first ten days clay products were moving at 60 per cent., largely through activity in the lakes section, cement 78 per cent.; steel and iron, 47 per cent., mainly through improvement in foreign orders for barbed wire and similar products; paints and oils, 59 per cent.; rope and other naval stores, 49 per cent.; lime and plaster, 70 per cent., and roofing material, 57 per cent.

In some of these lines sharp cuts in prices have been made. Notable among them are iron and steel and linseed oil. The cut in common brick prices has stimulated trade here only slightly. All through New Jersey, Connecticut, New York state and Pennsylvania brick prices are being held firmly and so is the 90 per cent. mill base in Portland cement. Natural cement is said to have an expanding market since the beginning of the war.

The most startling changes have been made in lumber, according to November lists. The spruce market in both Eastern and Virginia stock is under heavy competition and short spruce has eased off $1 to $1.50. Pacific coast lumber, while there is no particular change in price in full carload lots for Eastern delivery, larger orders and water schedules are lower in price and, in fact, some business is being booked at low prices. Long leaf yellow pine lumber has dropped off another 50 cents to $1 on certain items. Competition is keen on all business offered. Short leaf market rules on about the same basis as a month ago. Yellow pine flooring is fairly firm on A, B and A Heart rift and flat flooring, but other items have eased about 50 cents.

There has been no change in the base price of Hemlock, but prices fluctuate, depending upon the size of inquiries given out in the market.

Prices of hardwoods show a drop of $1 to $2 in thick ash. About $1 to $2 on certain grades of chestnut and maple. Plain oak is fairly firm, but common oak has eased off. As a matter of fact, No. 1 common lumber of all kinds is lower on all prices than thirty days ago. Mahogany is bringing about the same prices as a month ago. Maple flooring in clear and No. 1 has eased off $1 to $2. Factory flooring, 13-16 by 2-inch has stiffened about $1 to $2. Prices on cypress lumber show no change from a month ago. In regard to the supplies of cypress, some items are reported short, but others are as usual.

Plan filings in the five boroughs this week follow. In the corresponding week last year there were 172 new building plans filed, valued at $1,486,900.

COMMON BRICK.

Unloading Is Moderate, But Prospective Demand Good.

WHILE unloading of common brick does not indicate any marked improvement in building construction in the week just closed the fact that 8,950 tons of structural steel requirements have come to the surface in the last few days indicates that an improvement in brick buying is not far distant. Such a tonnage insures requirements of at least 2,950,000 common brick. With the 42,000 tons now being fabricated for local delivery in the remainder of the year brick orders covering approximately 13,860,000 may be expected.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Nov. 12, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

HARDWARE.

Low Price of Iron and Steel Keeps Cost of Manufacturing Down.

HARDWARE manufacturers report a strengthening tone in import inquiry but no sign of immediate change in domestic business. Factory outputs are being maintained at approximately the capacity ruling for last year, especially since the low prices ruling in iron and steel have made the market attractive to equipment companies. Building hardware enters the winter in a dull market. Carpenters' tools are more in demand. In the equipment department radiators, fire escapes and architectural iron are reporting restricted business. Inquiry is extremely light. The trade, however, has noted the improved sentiment in business and hopes for a freer buying movement before long.

BUILDING DEMAND.

Manhattan and Bronx Show 49 Per Cent. Plan Filing Gain Over Last Year.

STARTLING revelations regarding the buildings projected in the city during October are made in an analysis of the weekly October building statistics. Perhaps the greatest surprise is the discovery that Manhattan and the Bronx show together a gain in value over the new building plans filed in October a year ago. Manhattan alone shows a gain of 46 per cent. Bronx developed a gain of 60 per cent.

In Manhattan nineteen new buildings projected to cost more than did thirty-six buildings propected in the same month in 1913. There were no plans filed for dwellings in this borough.

Brooklyn filed 37 less plans for new buildings than in the same month last year, Queens dropped back 43 and Richmond 8. The fact that Brooklyn and Queens showed decreases will be no more surprising to the trade than the announcement that it fell away 30 per cent. from the value of buildings projected in October, 1913. In that year 273 buildings were projected to cost $2,172,360, as compared with 236 buildings costing only $1,510,300 last October.

Queens projected 343 new buildings in October, 1913, as against only 300 last month, representing a loss in the current year of 72 per cent. In October last year that borough's new building estimates ran up to $1,212,328, whereas they are scheduled to cost only $876,347 this year. The net decrease for October, 1914, was $335,981.

Richmond, in October, 1913, planned 68 new buildings and in the same month this year only planned 60. A year ago the value of the 27 buildings was estimated to be $1,790,237, whereas 60 buildings planned last month will cost only $61,422, a loss of 94 per cent.

In all the city the number of new buildings projected was 80 less than in the same month a year ago, October, 1913, brought out 748 new buildings valued at $7,560,215. Last month developed 668 new buildings valued at $7,161,578, or a loss of only 6 per cent.

IRON AND STEEL.

Inquiry Somewhat Livelier—Heavy Cast-Iron Pipe Buying.

ASIDE from the fact that Boston was actively in the market for cast iron pipe to the extent of 7,000 tons of 60-inch size, and the Rupert Brewery came into the market for 1,200 tons of fabricated steel for a stock house, and apartment at 61 Park avenue and another at 409-413 Park avenue, requiring in all about 1,500 tons, there was a strong undertone which indicated early orders as soon as the financial strain is relieved.

The Bethlehem Steel Company will furnish 300 tons of steel shapes for the apartment house at 96th street and West End avenue, and Levering & Garrigues will supply 600 tons for additional terminal area structural work at the New York Central Terminal. The George A. Fuller Company announces that the Bowery Y. M. C. A. building will call for 300 tons of structural steel and Sanders & Barnett will furnish 150 tons of shapes for the Santine warehouse in this city. The American Bridge Company, through Post & McCord, will supply 800 tons of steel for the Rockefeller Institute, and the Hay Foundry & Iron Works will supply 400 tons of steel required for the subway approach in Newark.

Large contracts still pending include 1,100 tons for a high school in The Bronx, 200 tons for P. S. 100 in Brooklyn, 400 tons for the St. Giles Hospital in Brooklyn and about 2,000 tons pending on local apartment houses. This volume is said to be within thirty per cent. as large as that pending in the middle of November last year.

The total tonnage in sight up to Wednesday on current work was 8,950 tons, which will involve the use in actual construction of approximately 2,953,500 common brick.

CLAY PRODUCT EXPORTS.

Showing State of Foreign Business Prior To Outbreak of the War.

ACCORDING to a Government report covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, there was exported by American clay product interests 7,415,000 common building brick valued at $64,955, as against exports in the year ending June 30, 1914, of 5,294,000, valued at $66,240. There were exported by American face brick interests 58,525,000 building brick, the total value of which was $623,115. This was a decrease in value over brick exports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, of $162,561. American fire brick manufacturers reported the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, as being the best in the history of this type of brick. The total value was $1,098,893, representing 50,601,000 pieces.

Authoritative data concerning exports of clay products for building purposes since June have been received. Exports have been practically nil, especially since July. At the same time there is a growin inquiry not only for available bottoms, but also a desire on the part of foreign investors to know whether building material deliveries can be made at the close of the war. From the more authoritative source intimation is given that American manufacturers are as keen for possible business in the export line and are already keenly alive to any proposition that will cut the cost of manufacture.

GLASS.

General Assortments Broken—Factories Operating at Moderate Headway.

WINDOW glass factories resumed operations on November 1 for their winter run. Factories have shown that stocks were badly broken and it is the intention of the manufacturing interests to even these up before the first of the year. Distributors here do not expect over production because the building market will not require heavy shipment of stock.

UPWARD TREND OF MARKET STARTED

Many Factors Which Hung Over Situation Dispelled and Big Business Interests Look for Greatest Boom in History of Country

"LAST month I was pessimistic, two weeks ago I saw a betterment in conditions, but now I am an optimist and feel that the turning point has come and that general business conditions throughout the country are on the mend." Roger W. Babson, the well known statistician, expressed himself in these terms last Thursday evening, and in so doing has reflected to a very large extent the general pulse of the mercantile field throughout the United States. There are a large number of people who have not the foresight and ability to realize that the turning point in the depression actually came and was passed last August, and others, while they realize that the lowest ebb may have been passed, still do not see any prospects for immediate improvement. The general, silent hope of most business men is for a steady, healthy and normal increase in the volume of business, without any dangerous upward rush, so that the after effect, when the reaction sets in, will not be too severe.

Trade Fluctuations.

It is a well defined principle that what goes up must come down, and in looking over the various trends during the last ten years this is very apparent. In 1904 there was a serious depression in general business conditions, but toward the latter part of 1905 the situation changed and the upward swing started and lasted until February, 1907, when another change occurred, the panic ensuing. In March, 1908, another upward movement started, lasting until 1910, after which two years and a half of normal conditions prevailed, followed by the decline, which culminated last August, after the declaration of war.

In speaking of the present situation and the outlook, Mr. Babson said: "Fundamental conditions show distinct improvement. There are several reasons to form this opinion: (1) The tremendous crops, together with the splendid prices paid abroad for grain, the increase in Kansas crops and in some other States since the war was declared. (2) The Federal Reserve law, which went into effect this week. Probably few realize that $400,000,000 in gold will be released as reserve. The loaning capacity will be enormously enhanced. For every dollar released, a borrowing capacity of five dollars is created, or, in other words, a total increase of about $2,000,000,000. Of course the time is coming when we must pay for this inflation, and pay dearly, but, in the meanwhile, I look for the greatest boom that the country has ever witnessed; (3) railroads are going to get their increases in rates. I could not get those in Washington to talk upon the subject until a few weeks ago, but it is now clearly known that the President and his Cabinet are going to do everything that is consistent to put the increase into effect.

"The question has been asked, 'What recourse has the President in the event of the Inter-State Commerce Commission refusing to grant the increase?' The President can go to Congress and ask that the Commission be augmented. (4) The last election was decidedly beneficial. The results will put both parties on their good behavior.

During the last month the general business conditions throughout the country have so shaped themselves, that the "Big Business" interests are reversing their position and now consider that one of the biggest booms that the country has ever known is about to be launched. Real estate has been a sufferer during the depression, the financial situation being the principal influencing factor. With the easing of monetary conditions and renewed confidence on the part of the investment public, realty will once again come into its own.

"While foreign export business is desirable and there is every chance of increasing the South America trade, still we must not lose sight of our own country. With one-sixteenth of the surface of the globe, the United States provides 60 per cent. of the total corn grown, 61 per cent. of the cotton, 63 per cent. of the petrol, 55 per cent. copper, 42 per cent. iron, 35 per cent. tobacco, 40 per cent. coal, 30 per cent. lead, 28 per cent. silver and 20 per cent. of the gold. The possibilities of developing these industries is stupendous. The decrease in idle cars is also most important and shows the trend. The passing of the English moratorium is another forward step. While that was in force, we had to pay, but could not collect. The reserve of the Bank of England has increased from £138,000,000 to £243,000,000.

Uplift in Bonds.

"During the last ten days, I am informed that there has been a more rapid increase in the price of bonds than at any time during the last twenty-two years. The tide has turned, and while it does not mean prosperity next week, still we have started to climb the hill."

During the period of commercial depression, real estate has also been a sufferer. During the week the Record and Guide canvassed the brokerage field and prints a number of interviews with leading brokers, who give their opinion on the outlook:

Charles Griffith Moses, of the J. Romaine Brown Company, said: "While the lack of funds for mortgage investment has had the effect of curtailing new building enterprises to a large extent, the result is not altogether unsatisfactory. We are usually pretty well supplied with enough residential and commercial space to take care of any normal renting demands in New York, and when this supply is ample the competition for tenants is so keen that owners and agents are forced to make concessions of one kind or another to fill up their buildings. The growth and expansion of the city, however, is so rapid that a very few months of inactivity in new building causes the demand to exceed the supply, resulting in a stiffening of rentals and a consequent benefit to the owners.

"The recent tremendous shrinkage of values and income on stocks and bonds has caused many investors to turn to real estate for safe and profitable investment, and with the opening of the stock market enabling people of means to dispose of such securities, there should be a very satisfactory real estate market. The chief business at present is largely exchanging of equities along the lines of consolidation of separate small and unimproved pieces for one modern apartment or commercial building to be held as a permanent investment. This form of trading is good for the market and shows a healthy condition of affairs. In spite of several months of comparative inactivity the prices and values of good properties are holding firm with strong indications of having a good market in the near future."

In the Trade Districts.

Frank B. Lord, vice-president of Daniel Birdsall & Co., Inc.: "We consider that the liquidation of over-mortgaged and under-rented property has about run its course, and that unsettled condition of the various trade districts of the city has nearly reached its end. We believe that within twelve months there will be abundant evidence that real estate has not lost its position as a premier investment. The public has learned that the old theory 'that stocks and bonds can be liquidated at an hour's notice' is more or less untrue at all times and especially so when a supply of money is most necessary. The prime requisites for a full return of confidence in real estate are that the public shall understand its socialistic attacks on realty (which includes the 'single tax' craze) stand no chance of succeeding in this state and that the municipal government is striving honestly to reform the tangled condition of its assets, its valuations and its expenses."

Wright Barclay: "I do not look for any great revival of business in real estate until the foreign situation is sufficiently improved to warrant the reopening of the New York Stock Exchange and the loaning institutions decide to place more money at the disposal of real estate owners for investment in mortgages. I then believe there will be a considerable demand for real estate, particularly of an investment nature, as much money heretofore invested in stocks and bonds will be diverted to real estate.

"A great deal depends, however, upon the new real estate tax rate for the year 1915, as most of the modern improved properties are carrying now all the taxes they can stand, and in order to have a great demand for such properties, the fixed charges and maintenance expenses must be kept down, so that the properties can be made to net from five to seven per cent., as no property will be sought for investment, if it nets less. The rentals in all these properties seem satisfactory. It is the fixed charges that must be kept down. I further believe there will be plenty of money available for investment in first mortgages in the near future, and, therefore, all mortgagees holding past due mortgages at the present time should be lenient until the owners of real estate have a chance to refinance their properties."

T. Rodney Berg said: "Not the least important result of the opening of the federal reserve banks is the influence these banks will have on the real estate market. Succor is badly needed in this direction. Mortgage money has never been more difficult to obtain in this city than since the European catastrophe first threatened, and the natural result has been a serious stagnation of activities in this field. The federal reserve banks, while not directly benefitting real estate, nevertheless promise great relief to this commodity in the near future. Their really salient function being to create freer circulation, the badly clogged money channels leading into realty investment must soon be purged and put back in active service. No immediate result can be expected, as the plan itself will take several months to become thoroughly effective, but property interests are sure to feel the effects by early spring. Even the most conservative expert does not hesitate to make this prediction, and so a most welcome stimulant will be given in a quarter where it is much needed."

Charles F. Noyes: "All indications point towards a better real estate market. Property conservatively purchased at the present time is certain to show buyers large profits, and many investors will be attracted to mortgages and real estate. Comparatively few investors have heretofore put their money in real estate, the majority preferring railroad, industrial, or the so-called Wall street securities. Many of the large industrial corporations and railroads have passed or reduced their dividends, and many active stocks have depreciated 50 per cent. or more. This situation has been aggravated by the closing of the Stock Exchange. The future of this country and of New York City was never so bright from a commercial viewpoint as at the present time. With confidence renewed, I believe the profits from mercantile enterprises will largely be directed to real estate securities, at least to a much greater extent than in the past, particularly as property values are now admittedly at a low ebb."

J. Clarence Davies: "I look to see an easing up of the money situation after the first of year and look for mortgage money at 5½ to 6 per cent., which will help the situation in the Bronx to no small extent. The Bronx is ripe for a building movement of size. At the present time apartment houses are 98 per cent. filled and the demand far exceeds the supply. For the last two years there has been no building in the borough to amount to anything, as loans were hard to obtain. The result is that we cannot house the people who now desire accommodations."

Frederick M. Hilton, president of William A. White & Sons, said: "General business and the security market have materially improved within the last few weeks, and this recovery is bound soon to be reflected in real estate. Mortgage money, I believe, will be easier after Jan. 1. People are saving money and confidence will return. Then, there should be a revival of investment demand. Real estate has held as well, if not better, than other forms of investment and cases of distress largely can be traced to owners with small equities. In other words, people who purchased more heavily than their means permitted and trusted too much to easy money conditions were virtually the only ones to get into serious difficulties."

Wallace J. Hardgrove, manager of the Queensboro Corporation: "In Queens, the outlook in the real estate market is most satisfactory and I anticipate a general enhancement in values. The number of employees in factories employing more than one hundred operators increased 40 per cent. in two years and the number of structures, now under construction, which will be opened during 1915, will make this increase about 60 per cent., for three years. I believe the following reasons account for the growth: First, proximity to Manhattan, via the Queensboro Bridge; second, the splendid water and freight facilities, and third, the fact that cheaper land can be obtained than in any other section equi-distant from the heart of the city. The population has increased faster than the production of building, although many apartments and tenements have been erected in Queens in the last year. I have the greatest faith in this section of New York City and consider it a great field of opportunity for profitable and successful building."

New Year's the Cynosure.

Joel S. De Selding, of De Selding Brothers: "Conditions are better. The outlook is bright. Confidence is returning. The real estate market is improving. The basic reasons for these results lie in the return of banking confidence and the consequent increase in money circulation. After the first of the year I look for moderately increased activity in all branches of the realty market. The reduction in building operations during the last few years has had a tendency of nearly equalizing the supply with the demand. Investors should therefore find New York real estate, at present prices, the most attractive market for their consideration."

Albert B. Ashforth: "The improved sentiment, which is so evident in financial circles, has spread to real estate. Merchants and manufacturers have discovered that even under present conditions there is business to be done, not only on the old volume of trade, but on an increased basis in many commodities. This feeling has a potent effect on realty. I look for no boom, but believe that vacant space gradually will be rented."

LIMITATIONS ON BUILDING HEIGHTS

Will Be Contained in a Separate Ordinance Framed by Aldermanic Building Committee, After Recommendations of the Bassett Commission

It is reported that at next week's meeting of the Board of Aldermen an ordinance will be introduced by Alderman Hamilton regulating the height, size and arrangement of buildings hereafter to be erected. This ordinance will embody the recommendations of the Heights of Buildings Commission which were made to the Board of Estimate last spring, but it has been prepared by the Building Committee, with the assistance of ex-Superintendent Rudolph P. Miller, and eventually will form part of the Building Code.

Nothing in the ordinance has to do with setting apart building districts, as that is a matter exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Building Districts Commission, of which Edward M. Bassett is chairman. Under the terms of the Charter, it will be necessary for the new ordinance to receive the approval not only of the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor but also of the Board of Estimate, and it is expected that a joint public hearing will be arranged for.

Maximum Height Limit.

The ordinance will provide that any wall bordering on a street will be limited in height to twice the width of the street, but in no case to exceed three hundred feet, except that when a street is less than fifty feet in width such wall may go to a height of 150 feet. Church spires and the chimneys of power and manufacturing plants are exempted from the limitation.

When a single building is erected upon a corner facing upon streets of different widths, the limiting height of the street walls will be determined by the street of greatest width.

Any part of a building not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of the lot may be erected to any height, provided that it shall be distant at least twenty feet from all lot lines, other than one bordering on a street more than 150 feet wide, a public square, a park or marginal way. The set-back planes will start at the limiting heights for street walls and incline upwards from the street in the ratio of one foot horizontally for each four feet vertically.

In all buildings hereafter erected, except tenement houses, lodging houses and theatres, provisions for light and air shall be made by means of yards and courts.

Yards and Courts.

Every building must have a yard open from the floor level of the lowest story to the sky, except that when all rooms are otherwise adequately lighted and ventilated as prescribed by law, the yard may start at the level of the second-story floor beams. The least dimension of the depth of the yard will be ten per cent. of the depth of the lot (but not less than six feet) and the yard must contain ten per cent. of the area of the lot.

At any story above the first an additional one per cent. of the area of the lot is required to be provided in a yard for each story above the first, provided that such additional yard area may be reduced by the area of any setback or prescribed court at any story. When the building is situated on a lot fronting upon two or more streets, or on a corner, no yard will be required, but setbacks and courts will have to be provided. The least dimension of any court will be, at any specified point, not less than one and one-quarter inches for every foot of height such point is above the curb level, but not less than six feet. Nothing in the ordinance prevents the projection of a cornice beyond the street line or setback plane.

Existing Buildings.

No building now existing shall be altered or enlarged so as to be in violation of the ordinance, but nothing in the ordinance will require any change in existing buildings, or buildings for which permits have been issued, or the construction of which is being diligently prosecuted within a year of the date of the permit.

Violations of the ordinance will be dealt with in the same manner as violations of the building code. Parts of the existing code in conflict with the new provisions are to be repealed.

An Elevator Ordinance Coming.

An ordinance regulating the construction and maintenance of elevators, under the control of the Bureau of Buildings, will be introduced in the Board of Aldermen next Tuesday. It was prepared by ex-Supt. Miller and the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen and eventually will form part of the Building Code. A public hearing will be held.

On Thursday of this week a final public hearing was held by the Industrial Board of the State Labor Department at the Fourth Avenue Building on the tentative rules for the construction, operation and maintenance of elevators in factory buildings. Changes have been made in the rules as a result of the previous hearing held in July. Real estate interests have been represented at the sessions of the committee on elevators by George W. Olvany, special council of the Real Estate Board.

WELL POPULATED COMMUNITY ON HEIGHTS

Fort Washington Avenue District, Sold at Auction in April, 1909, Now Improved With High Class Apartment Houses

IN April, 1909, the managers of the Fort Washington and Buena Vista Syndicates decided upon dissolution, and as a result fifty-five plots, each of sufficient size to commence the construction of substantial buildings, were offered at public auction. The property was located on Washington Heights. Twenty-nine were in the territory bounded by West 177th street, what is now Northern avenue, 181st street, and Fort Washington avenue, including also Pinehurst avenue. Within this area, at the time, there were only six apartment houses, five on Fort Washington avenue and one on Pinehurst avenue, at the northeast corner of 185th street. On the extensive building operations which have been going on since the auction sale. Of the twenty-nine unimproved plots in the above described area, which were sold in 1909, only three are vacant at this time.

With the 181st street subway station as the medium for connecting the district with the southerly section of the city, the Broadway surface line near at hand for less distant points, and the 181st street cross-town cars extending into the Bronx, the transit question has apparently been met, for today there are on Fort Washington avenue north of 177th street to 181st street, fourteen apartment houses. There are nineteen on Pinehurst avenue and ten on Northern avenue. To these will be added two five-story multi-family buildings on the east side of Pinehurst avenue, 100 feet north to 180th street, which are being erected by the Riverview Construction Co., Henry M. Bloch, president, from plans by Samuel Sass, architect, at an estimated cost of $100,000.

The two five-story apartment houses at the northwest corner of 179th street and Northern avenue, taking in 835 West 179th street, on plot 100x125, which are rapidly nearing compleion, figured in cash investment transactions last week. Deeds passed from the builders to the Minuet Realty Company, Bernard Naumberg, president, without the formality of a contract. They were erected from plans by B. W. Levitan by the Haven Construction Company, Charles Flaum, president, which bought the property, together with an adjoining plot at the corner of 180th street and Northern avenue, last spring. The four houses have since been erected from building and permanent loans made by the Germania Life Insurance Company. The sale of the 180th street and Northern avenue building, which is also being completed, was announced by the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company late last week, and only the 50-foot house, in 180th street, remains to be sold to complete the disposition of the entire property by the builder. According to the broker, the three houses have been sold for cash, without any element of trade. Weschler & Cohen represented the seller.

The northwest corner of Northern avenue and 180th street, 125x125, was sold at the auction sale in 1909 to Maximilian Morgenthau for $36,000. These lots, as part of a plot 125x272, were assessed last year at $100,000. The southwest corner of Northern avenue and 181st street, 153.8x104, was bought at the same time by the Henry Morgenthau Company for $46,000. Today they form part of a plot 153.8x239 which is assessed at $112,000.

Elevator apartment prices range from $9 to $11 a room, while in the walk-ups owners receive about $8 a room.

CONSTRUCTIVE WORK FOR PUBLIC WEAL

What the Real Estate Board Intends Doing During the Coming Winter — Important Amendatory Legislation To Be Sought

THE Real Estate Board of New York announced yesterday a definite program upon which it is already at work. This program, which contemplates important constructive work with relation to city departments, the Legislature, Charter amendments and the Constitutional Convention, is a continuation of activities in which the board recently has been engaged.

The most important work already accomplished along lines looking to economy in city affairs and the protection of property owners and taxpayers throughout the city, includes certain reasonable amendments to the Labor Law; crystallizing sentiment for a simpler method of building supervision; specific recommendations looking to the reduction of the enormous city Budget of more than $210,000,000, as at first contemplated in the estimates of heads of departments.

The tentative budget forwarded to the Board of Aldermen by the Board of Estimate showed a reduction to $199,238,000, and the Real Estate Board has suggested further reasonable economies in view of the distressing conditions in real estate. These economies, if granted, would further reduce the budget by about $5,000,000. If these further reductions are not granted, the 1915 tax rate will not be far below the $2.00 mark.

The Real Estate Board, however, realizes that even if these reductions are granted, this work will have to be done over again next year and in succeeding years. The board's present aim is to correct radical defects in governmental processes, and to eliminate that large proportion of waste which could be avoided if certain methods now in vogue were changed. Unless this is done, taxes will be enormously high in 1916 and will reach increasingly high points in 1917 and 1918.

While this work is primarily for the relief of property owners, it is only to a slightly less degree an important contribution to civic progress and betterment; and for this reason the Real Estate Board looks for the support and cooperation of civic and taxpayer bodies, and of broad-minded and progressive city and state officials.

The program, which the board proposes to follow vigorously, is as follows:

Before the Legislature.

The Constitutional Convention may provide certain remedies. Relief should also be looked for in the proposed new Charter. But both of these processes will be slow, while the need is for remedy at the earliest possible moment. The Legislature must therefore be asked to aid, and among the more important legislative efforts will be the following:

1—Secure legislation requiring that all salaries which must be provided for in the city budget be fixed by the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and that all laws conflicting with such provision or fixing other than eight hours as a legal day's work be repealed.

2—Amend the State Labor Law so that the State Labor Department shall have jurisdiction only over the employees themselves and the housekeeping of the buildings in which they work.

3—Amend the tax lien law so that the interest due on a tax lien must be demanded in writing or by proper publication before the lien can be foreclosed, and limiting the cost of this notice to a fixed sum in foreclosure.

Charter Amendments.

Charter amendments will be sought to provide:

1—For a central purchasing bureau, by enlarging the powers of the Board of City Record.

2—For a new Department of Buildings, to have entire jurisdiction over buildings and to take over the inspection functions now exercised by other departments including the State Department of Labor, its inspectors to be the only ones charged with the enforcement of the necessary regulations. In this work the board is co-operating with the State Factory Investigating Commission.

3—That all claims against the city be audited only by the Comptroller's office or, if in the form of a contract, by the Bureau of Contract Supervision as well as the Comptroller's office.

4—That water taxes be collected by the Comptroller at periods during the year when such collections will not interfere with the work of collecting other taxes.

5—For a Board of Education small in number, with paid members, to have absolute control over all educational matters, subject only to the State Board of Education, the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen.

6—For the consolidation of the Department of Bridges and the Department of Docks and Ferries. The completion of the great construction work that made these two departments necessary no longer exists.

7—For the consolidation of the Department of Charities and the Department of Corrections.

8—That all hospitals be put under one administrative head.

9—That there be one administrative head for Parks.

10—That there be one administrative head for Public Libraries.

11—That all city employees, except administrative heads, work the legal eight-hour day and be paid only the prevailing rate of wages.

Constitutional Amendments.

The Real Estate Board's program for proposals to the Constitutional Convention is less ambitious than some that have been suggested. Its work in this particular will necessarily be limited to such constitutional changes as intimately affect real estate, leaving it to other civic organizations particularly charged with that duty, to work out, other equally important problems. It recognizes, however, the importance of the following, which it will urge:

1—An amendment to provide for absolute home rule in cities of the first class.

2—An amendment to provide that all real estate taxes must be levied both on land and the improvements on land.

3—An amendment opposing any attempt to increase the debt limit now fixed in the constitution at 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of real estate.

The present State constitution, and all proposed changes will be considered by a committee of which some prominent citizen will be chairman, and which will consist of business men, lawyers, real estate owners and others representing real estate interests.

The views of the committee, when adopted by the Real Estate Board, will be submitted to the Constitutional Convention by paid eminent counsel.

ADVISORY COUNCIL AND THE CODE

A Committee Appointed to Look After the Interests of Property While Building Ordinances Are Being Prepared

As many of the ordinances which are being incorporated into the new Building Code by Mr. Rudolph P. Miller are of vital interest to real estate owners, the Advisory Council of Real Estate interests has appointed a Building Code Committee to look after the interests of property owners as these ordinances are being drafted and promulgated. The members of this committee are Messrs. Henry W. Hodge, Otto M. Eidlitz and Julius Franke. The composition of this committee represents the best technical authority to be obtained in the city, i. e., engineering, architecture and building construction.

This committee will keep in close touch with all the building ordinances that are to be prepared by Mr. Miller for submission to the Board of Aldermen and inform the council, if, in its opinion, modifications can be suggested which will be of benefit to real estate, and at the same time providing the full measure of safety which is the first object of such a code.

Although the various real estate associations have their Building Code Committee, as yet there has been no committee appointed consisting of technical authorities which will exclusively look after the interests of property owners. The Citizens' Union has a committee upon which certain real estate associations are represented and this committee is doing excellent work, but the necessity of having a committee of technical experts to examine and analyze the various provisions of the code is responsible for the thorough consideration of the building by the Advisory Council.

The reports of this committee will be submitted to a sub-committee consisting of some of the large real estate owners and brokers. When the decisions of these two sub-committees are approved, every effort will be made by the council to have them incorporated into the code. It would appear as if several of the ordinances passed by the Board of Aldermen are rather stringent, and a very careful supervision of the sections must be maintained in order to preserve the proper counterbalance between safety and over-regulations of buildings. The importance of a proper Building Code which will meet with the approval of both the city and the real estate interests is very evident in the light of the proposed consolidation of building inspection departments into one central department, the principle of which the Advisory Council strongly favors.

The council is now devising a plan through its Law and Legislation Committee whereby it is hoped that the general principle of consolidation will be enacted into law during the next sessions of the Legislature. At the present time the council is disposed to regard the plan of having a Borough Building Department in each one of the separate boroughs as more possible of becoming law than one central department, inasmuch as the five Borough Presidents would be inclined to support and urge the passage of such a statute, although there are many commendable features to the plan of one central department.

STANDARDIZATION OF LEGAL FORMS

Register Hopper Calls Meeting In Effort to Minimize Work and Cost of Copying Old Documents Placed on Record

ON November 16, a conference was held at the office of the Register of New York County for the purpose of seeing if some method could not be devised for the standardization of forms used in the instruments pertaining to real property conveyancing and other documents which are placed upon record. Register John J. Hopper after calling the meeting to order, drew attention to several things that had become apparent to him, upon taking office, one in particular being the necessity of continually copying and recopying certain forms which appear in old documents.

"We have a department," said Register Hopper, "that is recopying some old records which have become faded and worn out because of their age. I commenced to study a more systematic and business-like way of copying these records. Among other things a young man in charge of the department devised a stand to keep the books upright and introduced typewriting instead of long hand. In order to make the pages and alignment agree with the old records he invented a little machine with a ratchet. The books varying from 46 to 50 lines necessitated different ratchets, and by the means of touching a button the ratchet is made to fit the number of lines on a page. We are now doing three to five times as much as was done under the old method and making a much better product.

Linotype Tried.

"Linotypes were tried, but we found that the present cost would be exceeded at least two or three times. Photography was also considered, but serious defects immediately became apparent, so these two methods were abandoned. The ultimate result has been to endeavor to use the present method as economically as possible."

The Register drew attention that in recopying the old records all the printed matter which appears in every document must be transcribed, and in examining these printed forms a great similarity was found; yet there was a variance of a word here and there which created a difference, though the thoughts were identical. Close examination was made of a hundred and fifty of these instruments that came in during a single month, many with trivial differences. As an example, one document will read "nineteen hundred and nine," while another will contain the words "one thousand nine hundred and nine." Many other instances of similar nature appear. The contention was made that, if the forms could be made uniform and printed, a large percentage of the work of recopying would be eliminated.

How Present System Works.

Attention was also drawn to the fact that during the month of June, 1914, 198 different instruments including mortgages, conveyances and miscellaneous papers came into the office for record. A booklet was compiled, for reference to those present, which indicated the variance in forms of documents dealing with the same class of records. The various title companies, law firms, and printers, who prepare legal documents have, to all intents and purposes, many clauses which are the same, though in many other instances the addition or substitution of one or more words create a condition in the Register's office which requires exhaustive clerical work.

During June the number of words inserted in the forms now printed amounted to about 769,000. Then appears a memorandum of the words not in form. Many papers are received which may not follow form, but assuming the latter to be true there are shown to be about 763,000 words and the total of those two items is about 1,532,000. In conveyances about 46 per cent. of the words are printed and 53 per cent. plus are inserted. In mortgages 66.4 per cent. are printed and 33.6 per cent. inserted. In miscellaneous 51 per cent. are printed and 49 per cent. inserted. It can be readily seen that if the printed words are in a standardized form a large percentage of the work of recopying will be eliminated and only those portions of documents dealing with descriptions and special clauses will have to be inserted.

Forms for Mortgages.

The question of devising forms for mortgages presents a much more serious and difficult problem. Mr. Walter Lindner expressed an opinion that it would be a good thing if a sort of clearing-house was established, for the purpose of receiving suggestions from various sources about mortgage forms. In that way the best ideas could be taken out of all the forms and a new one made which would compose the differences.

Attention was directed to the methods employed in other communities in New York State. But little difficulty would be experienced in standardizing the forms for the Assignment of mortgages. It was considered feasible by those present that the real solution lay in having as many standard clauses as possible, and where changes are to be made that they appear at the end of the clauses, rather than having them inserted, as at present.

A resolution was presented and adopted that the standardization of forms should be attempted and the action of the Register in relation to the matter approved.

Committee Appointed.

A general discussion of the situation followed with the result that a committee comprising Mr. Walter Lindner, of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company; Henry R. Chittick, of the Lawyers Title Insurance & Trust Company, and Cyril H. Burdett, of the New York Title Insurance Company was formed to see if some equitable solution of the problems could not be formulated. Another meeting will be held at a future date when the findings of this committee will be considered.

Among those present were: Hon. John J. Hopper, Register; William Halpin, Deputy Register; Walter Fairchild, Special Deputy Register; J. Charles Walton, Assistant Deputy Register; Judge James P. Davenport, Assistant Special Deputy Register; Samuel S. Lupschutz, Chief Clerk, Department Commissioner Public Records; F. Pecora, Chief Clerk; N. D. Reich, of the Committee of New York County Lawyers Association; J. H. Hutchinson, of the Bureau of Municipal Research; Franklin A. Coles, of Nassau County; George F. Butterworth, of the Committee of Association of the City of New York, and of Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft; Frederic J. Middlebrook, of the Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and of Bowers & Sands.

GAIR COMPANY BUILDS NEW STRUCTURE

WITH the completion of Building No. 7 of the Gair group, located between the termini of the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges, on the Brooklyn waterfront, another notable structure has been added to the industrial development in that section of the borough. The structure is twelve stories in height, occupying a plot 200 x 125 feet, and measures 275 feet from curb to roof. The building, which was erected by the Turner Construction Company, will be leased largely to manufacturers, although the Robert Gair Company will use a portion for its own occupancy. All the floor spaces are free, clear and unobstructed, and are rectangular in shape, affording the maximum amount of floor space. The floors in the tower, of which there are four, measure 50 x 50 feet, and are adapted to studio work. The building is fireproof throughout and all modern appliances have been installed. The property is a short distance from the New York Dock Company and the Jay street terminals, which connect all the railroad and steamship lines. Surface and elevated lines extend to all parts of Brooklyn, making transportation most convenient for labor. Loading platforms have been provided and a sheltered driveway where teams may unload under cover. Electrically-equipped trolleys operate between the elevators and trucks or freight cars. The driveway has also railroad tracks, which connect with the Jay street terminal.

Important hearings will be held next Monday and Tuesday before the State Factory Investigating Commission. The tentative bill providing for the consolidation of State and city building departments, and the proposed revision of the Labor Law, will be up for criticism.

A pertinent suggestion is that the State Labor Department, which was organized to protect the interests of workmen, should be restricted to a supervision over the employees and to the housekeeping of the buildings in which they work, leaving to better qualified authorities jurisdiction over the construction of buildings.

The assurance from the subway contractors that they will comply with the statute forbidding the employment of alien labor on public works, removes the fear that the construction of the new rapid transit lines will be delayed by labor complications. This would have been too much to add to all the other troubles that real estate has been called upon to bear.

So many useless, obstructive and expensive commissions have been imposed upon the public that there is a nation-wide cry for the promised "new freedom." Every sort of business has suffered in every part of the land, not real estate in New York City alone. From the big railroads, enslaved by the I.C.C., down even to the small horticulturist, who is commanded to pack his apples in a certain manner, business has been completely dominated of late years by the uplifters and their imported ideas.

Optimism has been the prevailing feeling this week. The business sky looks brighter than before the war. The Federal Reserve banks opened and inaugurated a new banking system, the Cotton Exchange resumed business, the savings banks have loosened up, the export trade is bounding forward, steel mills are resuming operations, the security markets are gaining strength, and every man seems to be looking the world in the face with courage and confidence.

Interest in the Constitutional Convention.

A most encouraging sign is the increasing interest which real estate men all over the State of New York are taking in the constitutional convention. They are beginning to realize that if some hard work is put in during the sessions of the convention and if consequently the new constitution contains certain general provisions in the interest of the economy of public expenditure and municipal autonomy, an enormous saving can be made in subsequent traveling expenses between Albany and Buffalo, Rochester or New York. At the present time delegations of citizens are, throughout the whole legislative session, making trips to Albany, usually in relation to legislative projects of exclusively local interest which ought to be settled by the municipal government without any interference from the Legislature; and these journeys are expensive in time and money and often entirely fruitless of corresponding results. The only way to reduce the amount of this legislative interference, and thus to do away with the necessity of periodic excursions to Albany, is to establish firmly in the new constitution the principle of home rule.

Inasmuch as a large majority of the delegates elected to the convention are Republicans, it is interesting to consider what kind of a constitution the Republicans as a party are likely to favor. A certain amount of light can be obtained upon this matter by the last Republican State platform, which devoted a good deal of space to the subject of the new constitution. In some respects this platform gives a perfectly clear indication of the kind of constitution which the Republicans, under the leadership of Senator Root, are likely to favor. In other respects the indications are more ambiguous; but on the whole the real estate interests can feel assured that the majority are pledged to the enactment of the right kind of changes in the fundamental law.

The text of the platform with which we are dealing begins by asserting that the increase in population, the changes in industry and manner of life and business, and the growth of cities, have created social problems with which the State government must be prepared to deal, but it goes on to say that the necessity of placing on the government increasing burdens in the interest of social welfare, should not cloud the principle that the common welfare is not distinguished from private rights and individual welfare. This view of the increasing social responsibilities which are being imposed upon the State government is not satisfactory. It has even more than the usual ambiguity of platform declarations, and it leaves the reader wholly in doubt whether in cases of conflict between individual rights and social welfare, the Constitution will be designed chiefly to protect the former or promote the latter. This is one important matter which should seriously be considered by property owners all over the State.

The clauses which relate to governmental economy and efficiency are very satisfactory and indicate that a real improvement may be expected in the administrative organization of the new State government. The majority are pledged to afford the voters of the State an adequate method of holding their elected officials accountable for their misdeeds. To this end they propose to reduce the number of elective officials, to vest the administrative functions of the State in a limited number of departments, and to establish a system of official budgets. The property owners of the State should be cordially and unanimously in favor of these changes. The length of the present ballot makes it impossible for the voters to fasten responsibility for their misdeeds upon those who have committed them, and if New York is to obtain a really responsible government, it is essential that the number of elected officials should be very much reduced and that the Governor should have the power to appoint the incumbents to these offices. It is extremely satisfactory also to know that a large number of the delegates have individually been pledged to the short ballot.

The platform unites an approval of the short ballot with the entire rejection of the machinery of direct government, and under their existing leadership the Republicans will undoubtedly keep out any suggestion of direct government from the new Constitution. In so doing they may well be justified on the ground that only a limited real demand for the initiative and the referendum exists in this state. On the other hand, it will be very interesting to see whether the voters will accept a Constitution which cuts down popular participation in the business of government in one direction without increasing it in any other direction. The minority could easily claim that the short ballot indicates lack of confidence in popular political intelligence, and it will not be easy to return an effective answer to this criticism unless the new Constitution does something to enlarge the scope of popular political activity.

The attitude of the Republican platform on home rule is more ambiguous and less satisfactory. It declares in general that the State must reserve for the central authority the determination of general policies equally applicable to every part of the State, but that consistently with this limitation the cities and counties should manage their own affairs without interference from Albany and should enjoy home rule to the widest practical extent. A declaration of this kind may mean anything or nothing. Of course, the Legislature must continue to legislate upon all matters connected with the general policy of the State; but the point is that it must no longer be allowed to legislate, as it now does, upon essentially local business. The Republican record has always been very bad in this essential matter. The party leaders have wished to retain the power of interference with the government of New York City because New York is normally under Democratic control, and because the Republicans can often use the power of the State Legislature to make it disagreeable for the local Democratic organization. In all probability they will wish to put in the Legislature the power to interfere in purely local affairs, and it is because they are liable to go wrong in this respect that the real estate organizations all over the State should be ready to insist upon the adoption of a sound policy. They should insist, that is, upon a real rather than a nominal increase in the control which a county or a municipality can exercise over its own affairs and they should have prepared specific provisions that will embody the measure of home rule which should, in their opinion, be granted.

The American Way.

Two buildings of rare beauty and extraordinary costliness have just been completed that symbolize in an unmistakable manner the business and social supremacy of New York City. Nowhere else would a private firm of bankers think of building for their exclusive occupancy a comparatively small banking house to cost as much as $1,500,000, on land worth "in the neighborhood of $4,000,000." And not in our time in any other land than this has a private citizen ever erected so clostly a dwelling as Mr. Frick. By common report he paid $2,400,000 for his site, he has expended $2,000,00 on the building and will adorn it with art treasures worth millions more. In neither case was the building designed to outshine any other or to win public admiration. A very evident desire in each instance was not to be flamboyant or conspicuous. Mr. Morgan, as everybody knows, built his offices to suit himself—his personal needs and ideas. The cyclopean blocks of marble, weighing twenty and thirty or more tons each, cut and fitted so accurately that the joints are almost invisible, are not particularly beautiful to the masses, but they are real marble and as solid and collosal as they seem. Quarries were almost torn to pieces to produce units of such great size. That was Mr. Morgan's way, and it is said that Mr. Frick was actuated by much the same feeling; his house was not built to please his architects, his neighbors or to make a show place for an admiring world. In a word, these masterpieces of construction were built in the real American way and they typify American solidity, efficiency and worth.

Unremunerative Indebtedness.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Mr. Ernest Harvier's timely presentment of the burden of interest on city indebtedness may be somewhat extended. The total debt service for the ensuing year, according to Budget News Bulletin No. 6, just issued, will be $7,000,000 higher than Mr. Harvier states, or $59,832,000.

Moreover, the unproductive class of investments should include the expenditure on the Catskill water supply which is not, nor will be, productive of any new revenue. This $160,000,000, of which upwards of $135,000,000 have been already expended, will thus double the total presented by Mr. Harvier, and leaves the city with $300,000,000 or non-earning capital investment.

Unpaid Real Estate Taxes.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Various alarming statements have been given out to the newspapers of this city in regard to the amount of unpaid real estate taxes. Most of these statements have been based upon a misunderstanding of the figures in the Comptroller's report, but their whole effect (if not their avowed intention) has been to make it appear that real estate in this city was in a precarious condition because of the general system of taxation in New York.

I have before me an editorial from the Times-Union, of Jacksonville, Florida, which begins with the statement that "about one-third of the people of Jacksonville have not yet paid their city taxes, or at least those who own one-third of the property have not paid;" and it appears from the remainder of the editorial that the date on which taxes become delinquent has passed. This is a far larger proportion of unpaid taxes than in the City of New York, and yet Jacksonville and the entire State of Florida still maintains the antiquated and discredited general property tax system, from which New York has gradually been freeing itself. So that the delinquency in Jacksonville cannot be ascribed to conscious efforts to "place all the burden of taxes upon real estate."

Mortgages Assessed to Make Concessions.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

We would respectfully submit through the Record and Guide to the different interests which have money loaned on real estate mortgages in the Borough of Manhattan, a suggestion which we believe would greatly relieve the present depressed condition of such real estate, and would also prevent the necessity for lenders to take at foreclosure sales real estate which they do not want, and from the actual losses such as many of them have suffered. Forced sales of properties in this market have not brought, and are not likely to bring, the face of the incumbent mortgages, and once sold for less than the face of the mortgage, it is difficult to resell for enough to bring the lender out without a loss. We speak particularly of properties located in sections where the rental values have heavily declined, in many instances by not less than one-half.

We recently averted a foreclosure, and thereby benefitted all concerned, by inducing the mortgagee to reduce the interest rate from 5 per cent. to 4 per cent. The property was located south of 23d street, and was leased to one tenant for a long term. The enforcement of the full conditions of the lease meant bankruptcy to the tenant, and the vacancy of the building in a neighborhood where there were already 30 per cent. of vacancies. It was necessary for the owner to reduce the rent in order that the tenant might exist. The owner was unable to do this without help from the mortgagee, who, on presentation of the facts, agreed to reduce the interest rate on the mortgage to 4 per cent. In consequence of these concessions and arrangements, the property is today in a healthy condition. Without a doubt the tenant, landlord and mortgagee each has been saved a serious loss.

We have in mind at present a case wherein, on account of the reduction of the rent, the over-valuation by the city for taxes not only leaves no net income, but an actual deficit to the owner, who is paying 5 per cent. mortgage interest. The city has assessed the property for at least 25 per cent. more than its actual value. We hope to have the assessment reasonably reduced, and by getting the mortgagee to reduce the interest rate for a couple of years to 4 per cent, to save all concerned from serious loss. The co-operation of all is necessary to prevent this. If these efforts should not succeed and the property were forced to a foreclosure sale in this market, it would not bring within 20 per cent. of the amount of its encumbrances, unless protected.

Few lenders are willing to take over real estate, and we feel in citing these facts and making an appeal for concessions, that we are in the way of benefitting and not injuring, those whose favor we strongly desire to acquire or retain.

As an inducement to the mortgagee to make concessions, it might be well that in cases wherein mortgages are extended at the present time, or the interest rate reduced for three or five years, that the mortgagor should agree to pay off each year some portion of the principal of the mortgage, thus reducing the obligation against the property and increasing the security of the loan.

We believe such a course would do much to preserve values, and give heart and encouragement to the owners of real estate, who, during the last five years, have known nothing but worriment and loss, resulting from obligatory reduction of rents, the exactions of public departments, the heavy increases in taxes, and the high rates of interest.

All these conditions have caused many owners to receive from their agents statements, coupled with requests for remittance of checks to balance them, rather than with checks enclosed for net income.

Tenement Law Too Restrictive.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

While we would not for a moment rail against the Tenement House Law or the Tenement House Department, we do think the question of taking the three-family house out of the jurisdiction of the Tenement House Department is a matter worthy of due consideration. There may be good reasons advanced for keeping the little three-family house under the fostering care of this noble institution, for it certainly has done an immense amount of good in compelling the alteration and cleaning of a vast number of old filthy dwellings that were unfit for human habitation, as well as requiring more perfect conditions in all new tenement houses.

There are also many good reasons why the three-family house should be free from the requirements of the Tenement House Law, especially when we know the law is being interpreted technically and not liberally. As an illustration of this, we will cite a recent occurrence in our own office. A client of ours owning a three-story three-family semi-detached house occupied by only seven persons in all, wished to improve his property and give his tenants better accommodations, by building an extension containing a kitchen and bathroom on each story, but as this was a frame house within the fire limits, we told him the law would not permit it, so we filed for an extension with a bathroom on each story; and as they were short of closet-room, we put a dish closet in the extension, opening of course from the existing rear living-room, not from the bathroom. But this closet, not being a necessary part of the bathroom, was religiously struck out as an unpardonable sin. While technically this was right (the law permitting extension for bathroom purposes only), we believe these technical hair-splittings are unworthy of the noble institutions of our great city and State. There is no hope of a liberal interpretation. The only hope is by removing the control.

There are many hundreds of three-story and three-story and basement brick and brownstone houses in this borough, all private dwellings, that are not netting 4 per cent. on the investment. Many of them are for sale at considerably less than the assessed valuation. They are in good locations, but the people who have occupied them are moving to other parts of the borough, and there is no demand for them now as private houses. Now, if the law would permit us to turn them into three-family houses, they would become a comparatively good investment; and as many families these days consist only of a man, his wife and a brindle pup, they would not be overcrowded. The Bureau of Buildings could take care of these alterations as well as new three-family houses, that there should be reasonably good light, ventilation and proper fire exits. So we are certainly in favor of this change of jurisdiction.

Keep Your Hall Lights Burning.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The law requires that in every house which is occupied as the residence of three or more families, lights shall be kept burning in all the halls from sunset to 10 p. m. From 10 p. m. until sunrise lights must be kept lit in the entrance hall and on the landing two flights up, where the house exceeds two stories in height. This requirement is intended to facilitate escape or rescue in case of fire.

In a recent night inspection of the Borough of Brooklyn only about one-fourth of the houses visited were lighted as required by law. Another inspection will be made soon, and if the houses are found dark a second time the Tenement House Department will be obliged to summon the owners of such houses to court and require a penalty in each case.

The publication of this notice in your paper may call some of your readers' attention to their duty under the law, and thus enable them to escape the consequences of continued violation of it.

JAMES J. MURPHY,

A Conference on Constitutional Amendments.

In response to an invitation sent out by the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, a conference was held at the rooms of the Merchants' Association on Thursday afternoon, in pursuance to the program of the State Association for safeguarding real estate interests at the coming Constitutional Convention.

Representatives were present from the Advisory Council, the Real Estate Board, the Allied Interests, the United Owners, the Long Island Exchange, the Queens Chamber of Commerce, the Brooklyn Board of Brokers, the Harlem Property Owners, the Erie Basin Board of Trade and various other organizations.

The object of the meeting was to suggest possible amendments of a beneficial nature that could be made to the State Constitution. During the meeting the following topics were discussed.

1. Uniformity throughout the State in the selection and classification of objects of taxation and exemption.

2. Improvement in the system of equalization of taxation.

3. Objection to any changes in the Constitution which would operate to the detriment of real estate interests; in other words, a policy of watchful waiting.

4. Revision of present system of county government, particularly bearing on reduction of expenses and the correction of mal-administration of local tax authorities.

5. Opposition to any amendment to the Constitution which would serve as a basis for action along the line of single tax.

Mr. Allan Robinson, who is a vice-chairman of the Constitutional Convention Committee of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, presided at the conference.

BROOKLYN BROKERS.

Elect Officers and Discuss Plans for the Future.

The annual meeting of the Board of Real Estate Brokers at the Clarendon Tuesday night resulted in the re-election of Christopher C. Mollenhauer as president, Thomas Hovenden as vice-president. George H. Gray was elected treasurer and Isaac Cortelyou was elected secretary. There was a large attendance at the meeting of the board—in fact, much larger than at any meeting in the past five years, and in the speeches of the members it was indicated that a marked improvement in real estate has occurred.

William P. Rae stated that he had a conference with Controller Prendergast on the matter of disposing of the large quantity of real estate owned by the city, which at given times is sold. It was stated that the city at present has on hand about $2,000,000 worth of such realty. The Controller assured the committee that as soon as the realty market improved to such an extent that it would be advisable to place the holdings on sale, Charles O'Malley, the real estate expert for the Finance Department, would announce a date for the sale.

Howard C. Pyle, chairman of the committee on transportation, announced that he and his associates had made an investigation of the work being done on the new subways for this borough. He said that the committee wanted to report that each member was astonished at the progress being made, especially along the Sea Beach route.

Other reports were read by Frank Tyler, on taxation, and A. J. Waldron, on the tenement house situation.

Subway Extension Urged.

Property owners and others interested in that section of the city between Yonkers and the 242d street subway station met on Wednesday to urge the extension of the subway from its present terminal to the city line. A number of prominent speakers, including Borough President Douglas Mathewson, Cyrus C. Miller and Congressman Joseph A. Goulden, addressed the meeting. H. Hudgins, a local owner, declared that if the city was not prepared at this time to undertake the project, he would arrange to finance it for the benefit of the property owners affected.

The Fulton Street Improvements.

A communication has been sent by the Public Service Commission to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, asking whether the city will have funds available to defray its part of the expense in the removal of the existing elevated tracks and structure from Fulton street, Brooklyn, to Adams street. The New York Municipal Railway Corporation recently applied to the commission for such relocation, and stated that it would be willing to devote an amount equivalent to the sum it would otherwise spend for the third-tracking of the line from the Brooklyn Bridge to the Borough Hall. The change, if made, will be in line with other improvements that are being made in the vicinity of Borough Hall, and was recommended by the City Plan Committee.

Mortgage Broker Re-enters Field.

Operators and builders on Manhattan Island and the Bronx will be glad to hear that Richard H. Gatling has returned to the mortgage field. After an extended trip to Europe, he comes back believing that financial conditions are fast beginning to mend. For fifteen years past, Mr. Gatling has been a recognized expert in the negotiation of mortgage loans. As a specialist in this line he has loaned millions of money on real estate throughout the entire city. Friends and clients can find him at his new office at 150 Broadway, where he will conduct a general real estate business.

Accretion on Long Island.

Long Island yearly is a heavily patronized summer territory, and hundreds of the summer tourists are prospective permanent residents. "Because of its nautical advantages and easy accessibility southern Nassau County is making steady accretions to its population," said D. Maujer McLaughlin, president of the Windsor Land and Improvement Company. "Because of New York's variegated population there is a similar demand for real property. The next ten years will demonstrate more and more that the individual home for the average man is a suburban proposition.

"During the decade from 1900 to 1910, New York City added to its total of population a number of persons equal to the entire population of Philadelphia. New York is the commercial center of the universe; no city equals it in substantial and rapid growth. Before its subway system is completed, city officials are confronted with the necessity of adding more routes. Manhattan's growth has caused the increase of values, and is still causing steady increment throughout the suburban districts."

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Coincident with the various important moves made this week in the effort to readjust the financial situation in the city there appeared to be a more noticeable tone of optimism among real estate men. Since it is too soon after the introduction and actual operation of the new banking methods, for the results on real estate to become evident, it can hardly be said that this week's business has been effected either one way or another. The fact remains that the small buyer who has not been especially active of late figured prominently in the business transacted this week.

In the Bronx particularly there was a fair demand for investment property. While there were few deals involving costly properties for large sums of money, there were, nevertheless, a number of good transactions consummated, and several of them lacked the element of exchange which has been the principal characteristic of real estate trading during the year.

Of interest in connection with recent activity on lower Fifth avenue was the announcement by a broker that an entire commercial building near 17th street had been filled with new tenants. This indication of improvement in a section which was formerly one of the most desirable in the city, but which latterly has not been particularly active, may also be taken as an encouraging development.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 10 as against 15 last week and 22 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 3 as compared with 4 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 7 as compared with 11 last week and 17 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 115 as against 131 last week, 14 having stated considerations totaling $373,900. Mortgages recorded this week number 61, involving $1,039,408 as against 72 last week, totaling $2,852,774.

From the Bronx 17 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 11 last week and 11 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,704,100 compared with $631,837 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $37,427,240. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $636,650 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Nov. 22, 1913, was $45,590,420.

$375,000 Taxpayer in Trade.

Mrs. Clara S. Stanchfield has purchased through Arnold, Byrne & Baumann and Leo Solomon, from the Burkam Realty Co., Wolf Burland, president, the "Bronx Centre," one-story and two-story taxpayer at the southwest corner of 160th street and Westchester avenue, a plot 246 x 125 x 109 x 200. The property is fully leased for business purposes, and was held at $375,000. In part payment, Mrs. Stanchfield gave the five-story dwelling, 36 West 86th street, on plot 25 x 100, which has been held at about $85,000. She bought it from the builders in 1908, for a cash consideration of $80,000. Mr. Burland purchased the entire block on Westchester avenue from 158th to 160th street, in October, 1910, and built on the corner of 158th street a three-story building with stores, known as "The Burland Casino," which he still owns.

Fifth Avenue-East 69th Street Exchange.

J. Harper Poor sold through William B. May & Co. the five-story residence, 33 East 69th street, to Carl D. Jackson. It was built about two years ago, after plans by Howells & Stokes. He gave in part payment the vacant lot in the south side of 89th street adjoining the residence of Benjamin N. Duke, on the Fifth avenue corner. The property has a frontage of 23 feet and a rear of 35 feet, with restrictions as to light and air between the owner of this plot and Fifth avenue property owners in this block. Mr. Jackson purchased the lot in June, 1913, from the Paterno Construction Co., intending to build a residence.

Deal Pending on Seventh Avenue.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the twelve-story loft building at the southeast corner of Seventh avenue and 14th street, on plot 100x106.11. Leslie R. Palmer, one of the owners, stated yesterday that the contracts had not yet been signed. Nothing could be learned regarding the indentity of the prospective purchaser or other details of the transaction.

Cash Buyer for Bronx Apartment.

Richard H. Scobie sold for the P. J. Dwyer Building Company, the six-story apartment house with stores, on plot 54.9 x 128, at the northwest corner of Southern Boulevard, Crotona Parkway and Fairmount place. The structure will be completed about December 1, and has been held at $110,000. According to Mr. Scobie, the stores and apartments are all rented.

Broadway Block Front Deal.

According to report yesterday a well-known operator has purchased from the Metropolitan Improvement Company, Francis M. Jencks, president, the block front on the east side of Broadway, from 88th to 89th streets, 201.5x100. It has been occupied for many years by the Thedford Coal Yards and is free and clear of encumbrances.

The Auction Market.

To protect the light and air of its property at 41 to 49 West 35th street, the owners of the Collingwood Hotel contracted on Thursday to buy the four-story dwelling at 46 West 36th street on lot 16.8x98.9, which was scheduled for sale as a result of foreclosure proceedings. The broker in the deal was A. A. Hageman. They ratified their purchase at the auction sale by bidding in the property for $55,000. Several blocks to the north, the Continental Hotel property at the southeast corner of Broadway and 41st street, a nine-story building partly on leasehold and partly on fee holdings, was sold on a single bid of $750,000 to Florence L. Mabee, representing the Mabee family of Saratoga, N. Y., which sold the property about two years ago to the defendants in the present action. The encumbrances on the property amounted to $930,000. It is not expected that the sale will effect the present tenants which include the Cafe Boulevard occupying a part of the building.

Saum's Preservative

Makes CONCRETE Floors as Indestructible as Granite

Saum's Preservative prevents or stops disintegration. Concrete so treated resists acids, alkali, and is water, sun and wind-proof. Horses' feet, wagon wheels, hand trucks do not scrape or wear concrete floors after Saum's Preservative has been applied.

Easy to use, economical, efficient and lasting. Write for book of evidence. Our engineers will call upon request.

47 New Families A Day

Official figures state that every day in the year 47 new families locate in Brooklyn.

It is natural that these new residents demand living accommodations that shall be up-to-date and complete.

They are educated to the comforts and conveniences of modern life and they move to where they may obtain them.

Progressive Brooklyn builders and architects are aware of this fact and that's the reason why Electric Light is installed in 95 out of every 100 buildings erected; even to the low priced tenement.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

TO CHECK BUILDING OVER-REGULATION

By RUDOLPH P. MILLER

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

CONFLICT of jurisdiction over buildings of various city departments is a real one, and as an example the case of plumbing and drainage in buildings in which the Bureau of Buildings is directed by law to prepare rules and regulations for the installation of plumbing and to enforce the same can be cited. At the same time the Tenement House Law makes certain requirements as to plumbing in tenement houses and as a matter of fact, the Tenement House Department is issuing orders with respect to plumbing.

The Health Department in the Sanitary Code has a number of provisions affecting the plumbing, and it still assumes the right to regulate plumbing, as shown by the fact that they recently revised one of the sections of the code. The Labor Department also assumes certain jurisdiction over plumbing in factories. Similar conditions exist to some extent in matters of elevator installation, and other things.

Present Situation.

The present situation seems to be somewhat similar to that which existed prior to 1892, in which year the Building Department was created by combining the functions previously exercised by the Health and Fire Departments. This, it will be recalled, was done at the instance of the building interests. Since that date, the Building Department has been gradually stripped of its powers, at one time by the passage of the tenement house law and the creation of the Tenement House Department. Later on provisions of the Labor Law were made covering construction and arrangements of factories; then the transfer of jurisdiction by the Hoey law over exit facilities from the Bureau of Buildings to the Fire Department.

The heads of the different departments now having jurisdiction over buildings report to different elective officials. There are, in the first place, five different Superintendents of Buildings who each report to an independent Borough President. There are the Fire and Tenement House Commissioners who report to the Mayor. There is the Labor Department, which reports to the Governor. With the best intentions, co-operation under the circumstances is difficult, if not impracticable. Two officials may differ honestly as to how certain provisions may be interpreted or enforced. If each feels his responsibility, one is unwilling to yield to the other anything that seems material. If, however, both of these men were under the jurisdiction of a single commissioner there would be a responsible head who could decide as to whose judgment was to prevail.

Consolidation Solution.

The logical solution seems to be consolidation of these various different departments having jurisdiction over building into one city department and charging this department also with the enforcement of the provisions of the Labor Law within the city limits, so far as they affect buildings or building construction. This proposed department should consist of three great divisions, which I will call, for convenience sake, the Construction Division, Maintenance Division and Fire Extinguishment Division.

The Construction Division should have the supervision over all new buildings and alterations to existing structures and enforce requirements of the Building Code so far as they apply to new construction and such parts of the Tenement House and Labor Laws as affect new buildings for alterations.

RUDOLPH P. MILLER.

The Maintenance Division, the most important of the three, should look after the building when completed, alterations finished, the lawful conditions maintained and to see that exit facilities are adequate in old buildings, and that the newer ones are kept available at all times. It would also be in the province of this division to see that ordinary housekeeping conditions are properly observed. In this way the dangers from fire would be lessened. This division would also have the inspection force of the Tenement House Department, which now looks after old buildings; the inspection force of the Fire Prevention Bureau; the inspection force, so far as there is any, of the Department of Water Supply —meaning by this those inspectors who are sent around to see that there is no water waste and those who look after the electrical wiring of buildings.

The inspection work, so far as it applies to buildings, now under the Board of Health would also be included in the work of the Maintenance Division, which would also take care of the special inspection work, such as elevators, plumbing, boiler and the supervision over combustibles.

As a matter of administration, the inspectors of this division could be divided into groups, each unit limiting their work to the inspection of tenement houses, for instance, others theatres, factories, and so on. It may be found that such an arrangement would lead to a greater efficiency, but these details should be left to the departmental heads to arrange.

Fire Division.

The Fire Extinguishment Division would be designed to look after putting out of fires. At the present time there is a very important division, and if the department were thoroughly organized and the other two divisions raised to a high standard of efficiency this third division would lose much of its importance, for if buildings are properly constructed and maintained the causes and chances of fires should be reduced materially.

One of the greatest advantages to accrue from a consolidated department would be the possibility of transfer of inspectors from one division to another as would be necessary. It has been maintained by many that the most efficient inspections for fire prevention can be obtained by the employment of firemen. I am not in accord with this idea. Firemen are employed and are trained primarily for the extinguishment of fires, and it does not make for efficiency to have their duty interfered with by requiring them to do inspection work. While there is an advantage in firemen becoming familiar with buildings through inspection, such work should be restricted to the lightest form, namely, merely to see that places are kept free from rubbish and matters of that kind. If, however, it is true that the firemen make better inspectors than others, as these men grow older in the service they could be transferred from the Fire Extinguishment Division to the Maintenance Division, where they could be utilized as inspectors. There they could act as a reserved force to be called upon by the Fire Extinguishment Division when there is a special stress, such as occurred at the time of the Equitable fire, when men were kept on duty for extended periods, day and night.

Inspectors Transferable.

Within the Maintenance Division transfers of inspectors could be made from one group to another, as may be found desirable. In the Construction Division transfers of inspectors from one borough to another could be made as conditions warrant. Under the present arrangements this is practically out of the question. At the present time structural operations in Manhattan are at an ebb, while in Brooklyn and Queens the Building Department is not sufficiently well equipped. With the consolidated department it would be a simple matter to transfer some of the inspectors at a time like this from Manhattan to Queens. This adjustment of the inspection force should prove economical.

It is essential that the head of the proposed department be efficient in every respect. Any machine, no matter how well designed and constructed, would fail to give satisfactory results if in the hands of an incompetent. The New York Building Managers' Association might well consider it one of its functions to exercise its influence to obtain the appointment of satisfactory men to administer departments.

IMPROVED CONDITIONS.

With the gradual improvement in general conditions witnessed during the last few weeks, realty brokers are taking a much more hopeful stand.

C. A. McDonald, who specializes in the Park Slope section: "An anomalous condition exists in the realty market today, owing to an abundance of well-rented properties of every description and paucity of buyers. Not for years has there been such a prolific renting season, a condition that the long-suffering landlord patiently has awaited, and one to which he is by right entitled. Probably never before was afforded such splendid opportunities to obtain choicely located, well-rented realty at absurdly low figures."

J. Archer Fischer: "When the small number of vacancies in the section between 30th and 50th streets is taken into consideration there is little to be said about the renting market. Applications for space during the last few months have been greater than the supply and rentals are maintained to a satisfactory point. From present indications the spring renting period should be an active one. There has been a good demand from investors during the last few months and several properties in this section have changed hands, and many applications have been filed for large properties on and adjacent to Sixth avenue, for the erection of structures for mercantile purposes."

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

A Space-Saving Bed.

HIGH cost of living and the necessity for many families, accustomed to moderate home comforts and luxuries, to retrench, combine to attract attention to a disappearing bed that is being introduced by the Johnson Metallic Bed Co., of 278 Johnson avenue, Jersey City. A glance at the accompanying cuts tell the story regarding this device.

The lower cut shows a living-room complete with bookcases and a curtained mantle. The next illustration shows the same room with the curtain drawn back and a double bed set into the room. The smaller picture shows how the bed folded into its original position as a curtained mantel can be wheeled from one room to another. Plans are now under way to develop this idea still further, especially in apartment house construction. The bed in this case will be built into the concealed wall and in the day time the curtain or other covering will hang flush with the wall. It will appear in the daytime as an ordinary blind mantle, but at night the bed can be drawn from the wall and the sitting room made available for sleeping purposes.

The device is known as Wylie metal folding bed. Besides the ordinary sanitary features embodied in a metal bed it is an ornamental piece of furniture and lends to rather than detracts from the appearance of a room. The beds are 3 feet, 3 feet 6 inches, 4 feet and full width, and their lengths are in accordance with the standard sie mattress. They are put on the market complete with the spring, mantle and curtain rod.

The manufacturers claim for these beds that they are safe, as they cannot close up while occupied. The bed itself occupies a space of 15 inches when folded up.

Fog Prevention.

LYONS, France, has set aside a certain sum to carry on experiments for preventing local fogs. George Onofrio, Director of the Fourviére Observatory of that city, who has devoted much study to the fogs that cover Lyons for many days during the cold season, has become convinced that these may be lessened, if not entirely obviated. Lyons, situated at the confluence of the two navigable rivers—the Rhone and the Saone—has a population of more than half a million, and, although containing with its suburbs many manufacturing establishments, can in no wise be considered smoke-infested. Frequently in winter the fog rises and filters through the streets, shutting out sunshine and causing discomfort to the inhabitants.

Various facts have been collected from different points, showing the efficacy of the oil coats in reducing the roughness of water, escape of unhealthy odors, and the prevention of rapid evaporation. Experiments have been made in Lyons on a small scale with a long vat, at the end of which very hot water was introduced. At the other end there was an opening, so that there was a rapid and regular current. From the entire surface thick steam constantly arose. At about one-quarter of the distance from the inlet a dividing partition was let down in the form of a double sieve, holding tow moistened with a small quantity of oil. Following the current, an oily coating extended over the lower three-quarters of the vat, and immediately vapor ceased to rise. It is estimated that a coating of oil of 1/1,000,000 millimetre (the millimetre = .039 of an inch) in thickness is sufficient to cause the disappearance of the vapor from the boiling water.

This experiment was carried out with water at the temperature of about 185 degrees F., whereas the temperature of the two rivers on which Lyons is situated averages about 59 degrees F.; so it is believed that an exceedingly thin sheet of oil will be still more efficacious when spread over a cold surface, even should it attain the thinness of 1/200,000 millimetre. The thickness proposed for the rivers is 1/150,000 millimetre, which will require about .8 of a gallon for about every 460,000 square metres (552,000 square yards). The oil best suited to this work has not yet been determined. Trials are being made with as many as fourteen different oils—animal, vegetable and mineral—to find one that will come nearest to fulfill the required conditions. It should be an oil that will spread rapidly and easily over the surface of the water, and at the same time it must be an oil with the strongest possible power of resistance and tenacity.

An oil film that will readily break on the water is of little value. These two qualities are more or less opposed, and it will require some study to find the oil that will spread most easily and still not break. It is thought that an animal or vegetable oil will be found preferable to a mineral oil, though the mineral oils would probably be a good deal cheaper. It is not possible to give the probable cost of keeping the entire city free of fog before an effective oil has been determined upon, although a rough estimate for both rivers puts the expenditure within $30 a day for the cold season. It is hoped, through the exhaustive experiments now beginning, to replace the average sixty-two days of fog with which Lyons is annually troubled by sixty-two days of normal weather.

How Coal Is Wasted.

MORE than one-fourth of the yearly coal bill in factories is directly controlled by the firemen. A single fireman will burn $40 to $50 worth of coal a day in a 500-horse-power plant. That is $12,000 to $15,000 worth of coal a year. This man receives from $1.75 to $3.00 a day for his work. Depending upon the skill with which he handles his shovel, he will waste or save $3,000 to $4,000 a year of his employer's money.

Forty-nine managers out of fifty are quite ignorant as to the disposal of this fourth part of their coal bill. A frequent attitude on their part is: "We employ 'good men' and we can't be losing much," and, "I guess you will find we are doing as well as the next fellow."

"In a recent case of this kind," says David M. Myers, in The Engineering Magazine, "I found one firm wasting over one-quarter of its fuel by wrong operation alone. When the matter was set right, which was quickly done, it expressed itself as undecided whether to be pleased with the saving or to be overcome with remorse that it had been losing such a large sum of money annually for so long a time.

"With the exception of the fireman, I know of no other class of worker who is intrusted with the expenditure of $12,000 to $15,000 a year of the firm's money who in the first place receives so little as $2 to $3 a day, and in the second place goes wholly unchecked as to the return he makes to his employers for the amount expended."

About 12,000,000 tons of soft and hard coal are handled annually in New York by 18,000 firemen.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Modern School and Church Development in Course of Construction in Harlem—To Broaden and Take in Many Educational Features

DURING the last four months there has been a notable building development of an educational nature in 137th and 138th streets, west of Fifth avenue, and probably in no better way can the far-reaching effect of the movement be realized than by walking through these thoroughfares. Not so long ago the blocks were devoted entirely to residences and flat-houses, but now they are being supplanted rapidly by buildings of a modern educational tendency, such as schools and churches.

Situated in the central part of Harlem, in the midst of the negro population, these institutions will be devoted for the exclusive use of negroes. The tendency of modern church and school development in this district is to broaden and take in many features heretofore neglected.

The St. James Presbyterian Church for Negroes, with the assistance of the church extension committee of the Presbytery of New York, has broken ground at No. 59 West 137th street for a church building, to contain an auditorium and facilities for social work. The building is planned to fulfill the requirements of the modern church, which must attract and hold its people not only by services for worship, but also through classes for cultural work, by lectures, social gatherings, men's and women's clubs and gymnasium facilities. Besides the housing of all of these activities the roof will be utilized for a recreation garden for children, also for evening entertainments and open-air services.

Ludlow & Peabody, Architects.
ST. JAMES' PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

In establishing an architectural style, the architects, Ludlow & Peabody, of 101 Park avenue, felt that the traditions of the negro race in this country are affiliated perhaps more with the Southern colonial than with any other architectural mode. The materials employed are red brick laid with wide white joints, with stone and terra cotta trim. The auditorium is trimmed in white and mahogany and has a seating capacity of four hundred and fifty persons. The barrel-vaulted ceiling is supported on a double row of Corinthian columns which border the aisles. The chancel, with its lectern and pulpit, accommodates the choir, and over a reredos screen is a large muntin window with the typical colonial fan ribs and folding white blinds. The wall stones will be in light yellow, the glass of amber tone and the entire interior in accord with the colonial feeling. The basement is devoted to the gymnasium, which has at one end a stage, and in close connection are locker rooms, shower baths, etc., for men and women.

The women's rooms on the first story are connected with the kitchen in the basement by dumb-waiter and are fitted for social gatherings and classes. The rooms on the second story are devoted to men and comprise the club-room, reading-room, etc. These rooms will be used also, in the day time, for children.

In 138th street, at No. 61 West, between Fifth and Lenox avenues, the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament of Cornwells, Pennsylvania, have just completed a school building for the welfare of negroes. The building is entirely fireproof, four stories in height, exclusive of the basement, and contains beside the school a residence for the sisters conducting the school. There are seven classrooms, boys' and girls' playrooms in the basement, boys' and girls' playgrounds in the yard, and also adjoining staircases for boys and girls, all entirely separated from each other.

The residence contains the living quarters in the upper stories, including a club-room on the fourth story and an infirmary on the second story; the chapel parlors and entrance hall are on the first story; and boiler room, refectory, kitchen and visitors' quarters are in the basement. This building is one of a group, which, when completed, will include the rectory and church of St. Mark's, St. Mark's Hall, and St. Mark's School and residence.

St. Mark's Hall is now in course of erection and will be located to the east of the school, between the residence and church. Mother Mary Katherine Drexel is Superior, Mother Mary Katherine is founder of the order and is the present Mother Superior. Ballinger & Perrot, of 1328 Broadway, are the architects for the residence and school at 57 West 138th street, and the hall at 61 West 138th street has been designed by N. Serracino, of 1170 Broadway.

The additions of these institutions to the negro colony is indicative of the tendency of these people to enlarge their educational activities whenever possible. That section of Harlem roughly bounded by 132d street, Eighth avenue, 138th street and Madison avenue, has become one of the most thickly populated negro districts in the city, and for their enlightenment, numerous institutions have sprung up, not only in 138th street, but also in the streets to the south. Throughout the district may be found many clubs, political organizations, theatrical associations, etc., indicating an intention to remain permanently located.

The colony is unique in many ways, not only on account of its location in a central section of the city, but because it is hemmed in on every side by white population. To the south is residential Harlem with block after block of dwellings and apartment houses. To the north and west are similar neighborhoods, while to the east, towards the Harlem river, there is the industrial and manufacturing development characteristic of nearly all waterfront districts. Residents of the colony gain their livelihood in other sections of the city and not in their own immediate locality. This may be considered unusual when it is noted that in most cases moderate-waged workers try to live as near as possible to the places where they work, in order to save carfare.

The rapid expansion of this section, particularly to the south, has resulted in the formation of an association which has for its purpose the improvement of the interests of owners and tenants in north Harlem. It will attempt an equitable and non-partisan solution.

Plans for New Race Track Started.

Koehler, Spyr & Farrington, of 489 Fifth avenue, have been engaged to prepare plans for a new race track at Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, including a steel grandstand, affording a seating capacity of 90,000 people. The work contemplated is expected to be completed by June 1, 1915, and will cost approximately $1,000,000. Reports have been circulated for some months or more that the old Sheepshead Bay race track in all probability would be made over into a large motordrome. The owner is a syndicate, whose officers have not yet been elected.

SUBWAY CRISIS.

Ninety Per Cent. of Alien Labor Causes a Protest from Trade Unions.

With ninety per cent of the workmen employed in building subways aliens, while American workmen are left idle, it was inevitable that there should be a protest from the local trade unions. A State law, whether constitutional or not, prohibits the employment of aliens, under severe penalties. For two years the local unions have been protesting against this condition of affairs without definite results.

Responsibility for the discrimination against citizen workmen was disclaimed at every door where the union officers sought redress. They had no money to carry a case through the civil courts. They have charged from time to time that the contractors were not paying the prevailing rate of wages and were violating the law as to working hours, as well as employing alien union labor.

It was said at the office of the Building Trades Council that of all the carpenters employed on the works not one has a union card. Utility men instead of regular craftsmen were being largely employed. Fully ninety per cent. of the eighteen thousand total of workmen of all trades were aliens, it was said. Italians seemed to have the preference, and the post office money order records would show where their savings went to.

It was further said that the wage question was of course the fundamental one in the case. The Italian labor was cheaper than the American. There were plenty of the latter willing to do the work if they could get living wages, but they cannot live as the Italians do.

The contractors after a meeting on Wednesday evening announced their purpose to obey the law. None have followed the lead of the Oscar Daniels Company in shutting down their works. Hundreds of Italians are daily taking out naturalization papers, which proceeding may indicate what is likely to be the principal solution of the case.
